Race-based tension boils over at UCSD

Klan-style hood, noose at library

By ADRIANE TILLMAN | VILLAGE NEWS

Racial tension has intensified at the University of California, San Diego (UCSD) since a KKK-style hood was hung on a statue outside the campus library on March 1, and a noose was found hanging in the library on Feb. 25.

A white pillowcase, which had been crudely fashioned into a hood with a hand-drawn symbol, was placed on a statue outside Geisel

"It was a mindless and stupid mistake. When I got up to leave a couple hours later, I simply forgot about it."

UCSD STUDENT
regarding noose at library

Library and a rose was inserted into the statue's fingers, according to a statement from the Chancellor's Office.

Police are processing fingerprint and DNA evidence from the pillowcase.

The Chancellor's Office released a statement promising to punish the perpetrator "to the full extent of the Student Code of Conduct and all applicable laws."

A noose was seen hanging from a bookcase on the seventh floor of the library on Feb. 25.

A female student, who identified herself as a minority, confessed to hanging the noose and gave a statement to UC police, which the department refused to release since the investigation is ongoing. Police described the incident as "hanging a noose with intent to terrorize."

The student, who has been suspended, claimed she did not hang the noose as an act of racism in an anonymous letter she wrote to the campus newspaper, The Guardian. A Guardian editor verified the letter writer's authenticity.

The student claims she found a small piece of rope on campus that her friend had tied into a noose.

"I innocently marveled at his ability to tie a noose, without thinking of any of its connotations or the current racial climate at UCSD," wrote the student in the letter.

The student said she went to the library to study, where she began playing with the rope and "ended up hanging it by my desk," the student wrote.

"It was a mindless act and stupid mistake," the student said. "When I got up to leave a couple hours later, I simply forgot about it. This was Tuesday night."

Campus police completed its investigation on March 2 and has handed the case over to the City Attorney's Office. Campus police called the act "a possible hate crime."

Another UCSD student hosted an off-campus party to mock Black History Month on Feb. 27.

The Facebook invitation announced a costume contest that awarded bonus points for "pimp smacking your ho," wearing "booty shorts," having a "ghetto body" and getting beaten by the police.

The "Compton Cookout" off-campus party held Feb. 15 was the first to anger the community as the Facebook invitation told students to dress like outrageous black stereotypes.

Students and faculty in the Ethnic Studies program likened the Compton Cookout to the blackface minstrel shows wherein whites showed power over blacks:

"... events such as this one are marked celebrations of the play of power characteristic of whiteness in general and white minstrelsy in particular: the ability to move in and move out of a racially produced space at will; the capacity to embody a presumed deviance without actually ever becoming or being it; the privilege to revel in this raced and gendered alterity without ever having to question or encounter the systemic and epistemic violence that produces hierarchies of difference in the first place." ■

Lady Knights marooned by Islanders

By DAVE THOMAS | VILLAGE NEWS

Two old rivals met once again Saturday evening with CIF Division II gold on the line. When all was said and done, Coronado High left victorious in a 10-7 win over The Bishop's School.

Gabby Stone kept Bishop's (23-6) in the contest with 10 saves, while Sammi Peck paced the offense with three goals. Sarah Presant, Melanie Boehrig, Jessie Webster and Kristen Casey each added a goal.

Prior to getting to the title game, Bishop's bested rival La Jolla High last Wednesday, 12-8.

Leading Bishop's in that win were Kirsten Siegel (three goals) and Casey (two goals, four assists). Stone led the way with 12 saves in goal, despite having a sprained thumb.

Despite the CIF loss to Coronado, Bishop's finished its season with championships at the TYR Cup and The San Diego Open, as well as its 13th consecutive 20-win season and 13th straight trip to the Division II CIF championship game.

The Lady Knights say goodbye to six seniors, including co-captains Peck and Siegel, as well as future Brown University player Presant, soon-to-be Siena College player Boehrig, Michigan-bound Katy Feaver and Julia Hill, who has not yet decided on a school. ■

Rec redesign could include skate park

By ADRIANE TILLMAN | VILLAGE NEWS

Marnie Gavit, 45, is a La Jolla mother of three who believes the village needs a safe, designated place for children to skateboard. She also happens to be a skateboarder herself who has spent time hurtling down Black Mountain Road.

Gavit is working with the Tony Hawk Foundation and skate park designers Spohn Ranch Skateparks and Site Design Group Inc. to get the wheels spinning.

"We have ideas but it takes the whole community to plan it and to get involved with it," Gavit said.

Gavit has floated the idea of locating the skate park at La Jolla Recreation Center on Prospect Street. The board is in the midst of conceptualizing a redesign of the recreation center, which still must go through the public vetting process. The preliminary plan moves the basketball courts to the south side of the building.

Gavit is also looking at locating the skate park in the canyon north of the fire station on Nautilus Avenue near the walking trail. She is less interested in suggestions to build a skate park near the French-American school since she said it would be less accessible to students.

Deciding where to locate the skate park — or whether to build a few small skate parks around the village — is a process that takes time and is not a quick decision, said Miki Vuckovich, executive director of Tony Hawk Foundation.

Most importantly, the park needs to be easily accessible to the skaters and bikers who use it, he added.

"The idea is not to put the skate park behind a warehouse and give them the message 'out of sight, out of mind,'" Vuckovich said. "We should put them in a visible spot to show them that they are

Police will investigate student's death on cliffs

Sandy Khoo, an 18-year-old student at San Diego State University, reportedly died after falling off the Torrey Pines cliffs on Feb. 14 but her mother is suspicious about the accident.

At the mother's urging, San Diego detectives are investigating.

Khoo's last phone call was made from 4585 College Ave. at 12:04 a.m. to inquire about the bus schedule. Khoo's mother and friends can't understand why she was out so late.

"Her friends couldn't believe it and I couldn't believe it either," said Khoo's mother, Saw May Khoo. "At nighttime at that hour, she would not have gone alone."

Saw May Khoo said her daughter often requested an escort home after late-night classes.

Khoo died from multiple blunt force injuries after falling nearly 50 feet, according to the Medical Examiner's Office. A backpack, water bottle and flashlight — still turned on — were found near her body. She had been at the beach on Feb. 13 and had caught a cab to a trolley station to return to the university, her mother said. Khoo was seen on campus later that evening around 7:45 p.m. by other students.

"This doesn't appear to be anything but a tragic accident," San Diego Lt. Ernie Herbert said.

Detectives are interviewing family and friends to try to determine why Khoo was on the cliff late at night.

"If there was any evidence of foul play, I'd be the first to bring it forward," Herbert said.

Khoo's body was seen on the cliffs by a passerby on Torrey Pines beach around 12:30 p.m. on Feb. 14.

"I want to tell people [to] just come forward to give me some information and peace of mind," Saw May Khoo said.

Anyone with information is urged to call police at (619) 531-2293 or (888) 580-8477.

La Jollans interested in meeting their local fire fighters can attend an open house at Fire Station No. 9 on Saturday, March 6 or the following Saturday, March 13, at 2 p.m. at 7870 Ardath Lane.

The open house events are part of an ongoing campaign to raise money to renovate the fire station. La Jollan Sally Ricchiuti launched the campaign with a private fund-raiser at her home after she toured the facility and decided it needed help. The fire fighters have requested new beds with linens, new carpeting, a remodel of the kitchen and gym equipment. ### La Jollan charged in animal-cruelty case

A La Jolla man admitted to pinning down and choking his 10-week-old Labrador retriever for 20 seconds to teach it a lesson, according to Lt. Dan DeSousa with the county's Department of Animal Services.

The owner took the puppy to an emergency veterinary clinic because it could not walk, had difficulty breathing, had red-tinged saliva and its gums were blue. The puppy, named Coco, went into cardiac arrest and died two days later.

Veterinary staff notified the Department of Animal Services.

David Hale Warner, 50, admitted to restraining and choking the puppy because it scratched his girlfriend's nose and then was barking while the girlfriend was on the phone, according to DeSousa.

Warner has been charged with felony animal cruelty charges, punishable by imprisonment or a fine of not more than $20,000, or both. He also has an outstanding warrant for domestic violence.

Warner was arraigned on Feb. 26 and will return to San Diego Superior Court on March 9.

MLCDs are issued and managed by Union Bank, N.A., and sold through UnionBanc Investment Services, LLC, a registered broker-dealer, investment advisor, member FINRA/SIPC and subsidiary of Union Bank, N.A.

IMPORTANT
Market-Linked Certificates of Deposit purchased through UnionBanc Investment Services LLC:

- Require that investment suitability be determined individually for each investor as the financial instruments described herein may not be suitable for all investors.
- Are CDs of Union Bank, N.A., and are held in the name of Union Bank, as Custodian.
- Are FDIC-insured within permissible limits. It is the customer's responsibility to make sure that all funds held with Union Bank are considered when reviewing for FDIC coverage.
- Are NOT insured, backed or guaranteed by SIPC or Broker.
- Involve significant risks, including risks not typically associated with fixed-rate or floating-rate CDs or debt instruments such as liquidity and market risks. The payment at maturity may yield a return that is less than that of a traditional certificate of deposit or debt instrument of a comparable maturity.
- May be subject to a cap on returns. Returns may be subject to a cap either on a quarterly basis and/or on the overall return potential at maturity.
- May have provisions that allow Union Bank to call the MLCD prior to maturity which could result in a lower return on the MLCD.
- Could result in a significant loss of principal if sold prior to maturity. Any losses incurred due to the sale prior to maturity are not FDIC-insured. Due to the extremely limited resale market for this product, investors may be unable to sell their MLCD prior to maturity and, should they do so, they may receive more or less than their original investment.
- In taxable accounts, interest is declared annually and taxed as ordinary income, which is based on an estimated yield for the MLCD even though no interest may be paid until maturity. The ordinary income tax rate may be a higher rate than the lower capital gains rate normally paid by investors on longer term investments. This annual declared interest raises the investor's cost basis, reducing tax consequences at maturity. Consult your tax advisor for information relating to your individual tax situation.

Make sure to read the Final Disclosure Supplement carefully, which describes this and other aspects of the Market-Linked CD in greater detail, prior to purchase.

than $1.3 million for the project that took three years to complete. The school district matched the first $500,000 the community raised, tapping into its funds earmarked for high school athletic fields, according to Howard Frank, chair of the Turf It committee.

"The project is really significant because it has the potential to benefit every single student in La Jolla," Frank said. "The old field was absolutely unsafe and was really an embarrassment. People were getting hurt in P.E. classes."

The synthetic field is expected to save more than two million gallons of water each year.

Jeff Jacobs, son of Qualcomm co-founder Irwin Jacobs, made the largest contribution to modernizing the field, although Frank declined to specify the exact amount.

"It was by far the most significant donation and a key to us being able to complete this project," Frank said.

Correction

Last week's story "La Jolla wants a divorce" (Feb. 25, page 1) stated that Independent La Jolla has not yet raised $75,000 for a feasibility study. In fact, the group completed a feasibility study in 2004 to prove the village could provide enough revenue to support its services if it seceded from the City of San Diego. The study cost approximately $30,000. The study will have to be updated, however.

OBITUARY

Anita V. Figueredo, 93; pioneering surgeon, doctor

San Diego County's first female surgeon, Anita V. Figueredo — who practiced at Scripps Memorial Hospital — died at her La Jolla home on Feb. 19 following a cerebral hemorrhage.

A memorial service will be held for Figueredo on Friday, March 19 at 2 p.m. at the Immaculata Church at the University of San Diego.

Figueredo was born in Costa Rica in 1916. At the age of 5, she declared she wanted to become a physician despite the fact no medical school existed in the country. Her mother apparently believed in her unlikely dream and the two of them set sail for New York, where they settled in a Spanish Harlem tenement. Figueredo's mother worked in a sweatshop to support the family.

At the age of 15, Figueredo was awarded a full scholarship to study pre-med but she turned it down when an admissions officer made a disparaging remark about her high school. Instead, Figueredo headed to Manhattanville College, which had created a pre-med program exclusively for her.

At the age of 19, Figueredo enrolled at the Long Island College of Medicine as one of four women in the program. Following World War II, she was one of the first two female residents in surgery at Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases (now Memorial Sloan-Kettering) in New York.

In 1942, Figueredo married a fellow medical student, William Doyle, who became a pediatrician. They were married for 58 years and raised nine children together.

"A faithful and free-thinking Catholic, Dr. Figueredo loved to tell the story of the day God directed her attention toward a lanky, young med school classmate, telling her in a loud and unequivocal voice, 'That's the one,'" wrote Figueredo's son-in-law, Brent Eastman, M.D., who is chief marketing officer of Scripps Health.

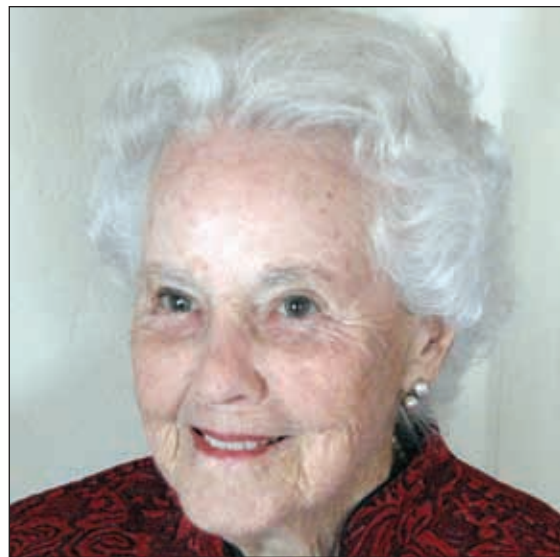

The couple moved to La Jolla in 1947, a community Doyle discovered while stationed in the Navy as a lieutenant medical officer. Figueredo performed oncologic surgery at Scripps Memorial Hospital. She became the first female physician in the county, in addition to the first female physician from Costa Rica.

Figueredo maintained a demanding practice throughout motherhood.

"She once walked straight from the operating room to the maternity ward, where she gave birth and returned to make rounds on her patient the following morning," Eastman wrote.

Eastman shared a practice with Figueredo and called her a "technically exceptional surgeon."

"Dr. Figueredo revolutionized the approach to cancer in her community, not only by applying the surgical techniques she learned at Memorial but also with concepts of prevention and the cancer detection exam, including the Pap smear she learned from Dr. Papanicolaou himself," Eastman said.

Figueredo was also an intimate friend of Mother Teresa for four decades. The doctor lobbied Mother Teresa to establish a mission in Tijuana, which is now the headquarters for Missionaries of Charity Fathers. Figueredo founded her own charity in 1982 called "Friends of the Poor" to serve needy residents in San Diego and Tijuana.

"A woman with no patience for traditional leisure activities nor attachment to material things, Anita spent her retirement happily sorting donations of medicine, clothing and food," Eastman wrote.

Figueredo was also a fierce proponent of women's higher education and a founding member of the board of trustees of San Diego College for Women, now the University of San Diego, and served in that capacity for 40 years.

Figueredo's oldest daughter, Sarita Eastman, wrote about her mother's life called "A Trail of Light: The Very Full Life of Dr. Anita Figueredo."

Figueredo was preceded in death by her husband, William J. Doyle, and sons Robert, Thomas and Richard Doyle, all of La Jolla. She is survived by three daughters: Sarita Eastman of Rancho Santa Fe, Anita Doyle of La Jolla, and Teresa Doyle of La Jolla; and three sons: William Doyle of Santa Rosa, CA, John Doyle of San Diego and Charles Doyle of La Jolla. Figueredo is also survived by 11 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to Friends of the Poor. Donations may be made on-line at www.friendsofthepoor.us or sent to Friends of the Poor, 417 Coast Blvd., La Jolla, CA 92037.

"It will not be enough to oppose racist speech with 'more speech,' with lessons about the limits of satire or even with well-intentioned but ultimately symbolic campaigns such as the proposed 'Not in Our Community' initiative. This incident, and the potential for others in the future, should convince campus policymakers that serious structural changes are long overdue."

BSU has issued the administration a list of 32 demands to support minority student retention, studies and causes.

Among the demands, BSU has called on the university to fully fund and staff the African American Studies Minor, and to create an office to research the communities of color that are underrepresented at UCSD.

The Chancellor's Office indicated it would meet "nearly all" of BSU's demands.

This is not the first time black students have spoken out about the lack of diversity.

Earlier this year, African Americans worked on a campaign called "Do UC us" that revealed many black students feel uncomfortable at UCSD. The campaign collected testimonies from many African-American students who said they felt uncomfortable on campus.

"I am now entering into my fourth year at the university and I have to re-assert my presence to the entire campus on a daily basis simply because I am constantly looked at to represent the entire Black Community," testified one student in the campaign's report. "...the underlying issue is that I am constantly under surveillance no matter the scenario, from the classroom, to social atmospheres, faculty expectations, etc."

One part of the problem is that minority students don't choose to attend UCSD when accepted, according to the 2007 Yield Report on minority students.

Only 13 percent of the African-American students admitted accepted to attend UCSD in 2006, compared to 44 percent at University of California, Los Angeles.

African-American students comprise less than 2 percent of the undergraduate student body at UCSD.

The 2007 Yield report had called on the administration to do more to attract such students, and urged the Chancellor's Office, Academic Affairs, the six colleges and various academic departments to get involved in the recruitment process. ■ part of the community. It instills in them a sense of stewardship."

An estimated 2,000 skateboarders live in La Jolla, with 14-year-old boys comprising the majority, according to Vuckovich.

La Jolla Parks & Rec. Inc. board members showed interest in bringing a skate park to La Jolla at the group's meeting on Feb. 24. The board advises the Park & Recreation department on parks in La Jolla.

"I caution everyone on the board ... to ask, 'Is this a goal for the community to work towards,' versus getting wrapped up with, 'Oh my God — not here! [at the recreation center]'" said board member Darcy Ashley.

Board member Melinda Merryweather expressed support for incorporating the skate park into the redesign of the recreation center.

"I don't like the idea of the recreation center being only for old people or just for kids," Merryweather said.

Others were more skeptical of the idea of locating the skate park at the recreation center.

"I think that ... Marnie Gavit [is] going to have a difficult time convincing the community that the best use for the La Jolla Recreation Center — given its proximity to schools, churches, museums and residences — is a skateboard park," said Chip Rome, president of La Jolla Parks and Rec. Inc.

A man who lives across from the recreation center worried about noise from the skateboarders and illicit use of the park at night. Late-night basketball players already bother him with their noise, he said.

Building a skate park will cost an estimated $500,000 to $1 million depending on the location, according to Gavit. She is in the process of setting up a board of directors and establishing a nonprofit 501c3. She plans to set up a table at the farmer's market to sell T-shirts and gather support for the cause. Gavit also intends to raise money, in part, through private fund-raisers and events with professional skateboarders.

"I'm passionate about this," Gavit said. "It's not just for our children; it's for everyone's children."

Gavit will present her idea to the Parks and Beaches Committee on Monday, March 22 at 4 p.m. at La Jolla Recreation Center, 615 Prospect St. For more information, e-mail her at Chang-ingtides86mg@yahoo.com.

LJ Rec Center on drawing board

The 96-year-old La Jolla Recreation Center could be better, agree members of the La Jolla Parks & Recreation Inc., an advisory board to the city's Park & Recreation Department.

In 2008, the group began putting its ideas together and has since drafted a preliminary conceptual plan to redesign the recreation center.

"I joined the board along with some others who feel that the recreation center could use a fresh face, and that this wonderful gift that Ellen Browning Scripps gave to the community could be better utilized if certain changes were made to it," said Chip Rome, president of La Jolla Parks & Recreation Inc.

In the plan, the basketball courts would move to the south side of the building to be replaced with a grass playing field.

"In the Center's 'Back Yard,' not only are the basketball courts too close to the building, they also separate the field play from the playgrounds," states the draft plan, designed by Spurlock Poirier Landscape Architects.

The preliminary plan calls for more shade and picnic areas. It recommends building a shaded pergola and tree-lined pedestrian walk adjacent to the building. A sculpture garden would be added to the front lawn, which would, otherwise, remain the same.

An underground parking garage or skateboard park is not part of the preliminary plan, Rome emphasized to dispel such rumors.

The board has not voted on the preliminary plan, which still must go through a public vetting that has not started. Ultimately, City Council would vote on the redesign of the recreation center.

"If any community member is interested in seeing something at the recreation center, now is the time to come forward when we can actually do something about it," board member Mary Coakley said. ■

The Elegance of WinterFest, and a Grand Reopening

Starry, starry nights

"We bring the world to San Diego" is the catchphrase of La Jolla Music Society, one of the most highly respected and well-loved organizations bringing fine music to our area. Their performance schedule spans a wide musical spectrum, ranging from early music and symphony orchestra concerts to solo recitals, chamber music and jazz, played by some of today's most highly regarded artists and ensembles. Their SummerFest and WinterFest galas are glamorous social affairs that combine beautiful music with fine food and stunning venues.

Vivian Lim and Sevil Brahme teamed up to chair WinterFest 2010 recently, with Helene Kruger as their Gala honorary chair. The evening would include a musical performance at Copley Symphony Hall, and they picked the University Club as the site for the gala. It was a perfect choice — not only because the performance was just an elevator ride away from the party but also because the University Club's reputation for fine food and elegant service is truly well-deserved, and they have the absolute best view in all of San Diego.

The evening began with valet parking at the front door of Symphony Hall, followed by a quick ride up to the 34th floor atop Symphony Towers. There, the black tie guests were welcomed with glasses of Champagne and that stunning view. Fabulous hors d'oeuvres and libations of choice were served as the 185 congenial guests enjoyed each other's company, but all too soon, it seemed, it was time to be seated for dinner. Once the first course had been consumed, Bill Menish auctioned off a range of fine luxuries, after which a very young violinist played Old MacDonald Had a Farm. She was followed by a somewhat older music student, his trumpet artfully sounding notes reminiscent of a Spanish bullfight. Both were products of LJMC's free music program at the Community Music Center. Menish then proceeded to extract donations for the SummerFest Fellowship Artist Program, including one particularly generous pledge of $15,000.

Dinner continued, featuring an excellent filet mignon, perfectly prepared and garnished with the finest fried onion rings imaginable. Fully satiated, guests descended to Symphony Hall, where they had the best seats in the sold-out house (capacity over 2,000) for what proved to be a paramount performance by superstar violinist Joshua Bell and acclaimed pianist Jeremy Denk. They played Bach, Saint-Saëns, Schumann and Ravel, and although the Ravel selections didn't include Bolero, their performance certainly was a Ten as evidenced by the instant standing ovations and multiple curtain calls. The appreciative audience was rewarded with an encore based on the music of Dvorak, and responded by rising to their feet to applaud yet again.

Gala guests returned to the University Club for a post-concert Champagne Reception. It included not only a beautiful dessert buffet with coffee, champagne and wine, but also a chance to mingle with the performers themselves. Joshua Bell brought his violin along. You can bet it doesn't go with the checked baggage on the airlines — in fact, it probably never leaves his side. It's an incredible Stradivarius — one of the few still in existence. Jeremy Denk didn't bring his instrument along, but that's probably because it was just a Steinway...

This was a very successful event for LJMS. The gala and concert were both sellouts. "Having Josh Bell and Jeremy Denk in a recital program at such a large hall, and having it so well received, was a tribute to how many people in San Diego really appreciate great music," said board chair Leigh Ryan.

La Jolla Spa MD has been remodeled, redecorated and rejuvenated (which is pretty much what they offer their clients, too). To celebrate all these "re-" accomplishments (including a broad reorganization), owner/president Dianne York held a "Grand Reopening" reception recently. Guests came to reacquire themselves with the spa, which promises to revive your senses, renew your spirit and refresh your image.

Guests arriving for the glitzy party were handed "passports," which they were encouraged to have stamped as they visited various areas within the spa.

(Collecting those stamps improved one's chances in a drawing for free spa services.) Practitioners of various specialties, some of them quite unusual, exhibited their services. Beyond the usual plastic surgery procedures, weight-loss treatments and high-quality makeup products, offerings included such things as hormone therapy, anti-aging, highly oxygenated waters, thermographic diagnoses, brain entrainment, etc.

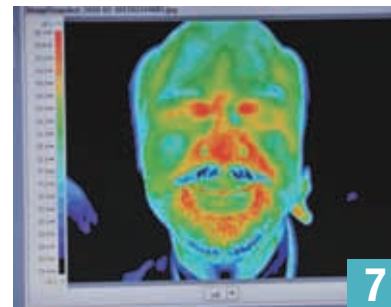

The passports also guided hundreds of partygoers to various ports of call, where refreshing libations, sumptuous cuisine presented by culinary master chefs, and exquisite floral designs tantalized and delighted the senses. Perfectly-proportioned young men and women modeled abbreviated bathing suits, resort wear, and sparkling gowns throughout the venue, and a trail of money (not real, unfortunately...) led to a blackjack casino upstairs. Proceeds from a scavenger hunt donation drawing would benefit local charities.

Oscars present full plate of nominees

By JAMES COLT HARRISON | VILLAGE NEWS

The first Academy Awards were held in 1927. Movie buffs have been fascinated ever since to see and hear about who the winners — and losers — are each year. Across the world, billions of people tune in to their TVs to watch the blockbuster show. This year's ceremony is Sunday, March 7.

A nomination is a wonderful thing, but being a winner is better. Stand-up comic Mo'Nique, getting a Best Supporting Actress nod for her turn as a vicious mother in "Precious," said, "What an honor to be nominated for this prestigious award. God bless us."

Her fellow actress Gabourey Sidibe in the same movie said of her Best Actress kudo, "I am so excited and honored to be recognized by the Academy and included in such a remarkable group of actors."

One of the classic actresses to receive more than one nomination is Katharine Hepburn, with 12 nominations and four wins. Screen icon Bette Davis swept the boards with 11 nominations and two wins. Today's Meryl Streep has surpassed them with 16 nominations and, so far, two wins. She is nominated this year for "Julie & Julia." Streep is seemingly nominated for every role she plays.

This year's Oscar race is a good one, with a variety of roles and actresses to tickle the Academy's voters. Other actresses nominated include Sandra Bullock for "The Blind Side." Some are touting her as the winner because "it's her time." Helen Mirren, who is so good in everything, was nominated for "The Last Station." Youngster Carey Mulligan is getting shouts for her role in "An Education." The San Diego Film Critics Society went off the deep end and chose Michelle Monaghan for her role in the unknown "Trucker" film, something that came straight out of the blue. My personal choice is Meryl Streep.

Leading men this year were also diversified. Top Best Actor favorite is Colin Firth, who played a gay man who is suffering the loss of his companion. He won the British Academy Award, and is a leading favorite for the Oscar. Jeff Bridges has done well for the small film "Crazy Heart," playing a broken down country singer. George Clooney may do well for "Up In The Air" because of his own personal popularity with voters. Morgan Freeman, one of my personal favorites, did a stellar job impersonating Nelson Mandela in "Invictus." The surprise in this category is newcomer Jeremy Renner for "The Hurt Locker." Relatively unknown, the actor is relishing his first starring role. I'd like to see Firth win, but Bridges will take home the Oscar for sentimental reasons.

Youngster Anna Kendrick was nominated as Best Supporting Actress in "Up In The Air." She said, "I am thrilled beyond words to be nominated with these talented and inspiring women."

Vera Farmiga, her fellow nominee in the same film, was equally enthusiastic. "I am deeply honored and humbled by this recognition and truly grateful to the Academy for their support of 'Up In The Air.'" Other than the aforementioned ladies, Penelope Cruz was nominated for "Nine," and Maggie Gyllenhaal won recognition for "Crazy Heart."

The Best Supporting Actor category this year is a good one. Stanley Tucci did a chilling job as a creepy neighbor in "The Lovely Bones." But I preferred his delightful performance in "Julie & Julia." Woody Harrelson did his best work in "The Messenger," and Matt Damon perfectly captured the South Afrikaan accent in "Invictus." Christopher Plummer, long-time stage star, was at his zenith in "The Last Station." But the man who played the vicious and charming Nazi in "Inglourious Basterds" was Christoph Waltz, and he deserves the Oscar.

Nominating ten films for Best Picture is not new. Way back in the 1930s it was standard practice. This year's list includes a battle between a former man and wife for both Best Picture and Best Director. James Cameron and Kathryn Bigelow duke it out for "Avatar" and "The Hurt Locker," respectively. "The Blind Side" was a fluke as was "A Serious Man." The sci-fi hit from South Africa, "District 9," was an audience favorite as was Quentin Tarantino's "Inglourious Basterds." Although a depressing film, "Precious" has won some fans. The breezy but serious "Up In The Air" had George Clooney fans swooning. "An Education" pleased the Academy, as did the animated film "Up," also nominated as Best Animated Feature. My choice for the best film of the year is "The Hurt Locker." ■

Warm, wonderful 'Yonkers' opens new White Theatre

By CHARLENE BALDRIDGE | VILLAGE NEWS

When it comes to getting inside a family, Neil Simon may be one of the greatest American playwrights. Among the most underrated. A case in point is the Old Globe's production of his 1991 Pulitzer Prize- and Tony Award-winning "Lost in Yonkers," which officially launched the new, 250-seat Sheryl and Harvey White Theatre Thursday, Jan. 28. The poignant comedy, set in 1942, continues through March 7.

Scott Schwartz's casting and direction of the comedy is superb. Judy Kaye portrays Grandma Kunitz, surely one of the great female roles in American theatrical literature. As a youth she escaped the Holocaust, but not without injuries, physical and psychological. These injuries, the loss of two children and a husband, and Kaye's humane portrayal make this Grandma understandable if not sympathetic. She has raised her family by running a candy and ice cream shop below the Yonkers apartment in which she lives with her developmentally challenged child, Bella (a gut-wrenching, bravura performance by Jennifer Regan), whose body has matured, leaving her mind and judgment far behind. Bella, however, has common sense and a certain practicality to go along with her challenges.

When the play opens, Grandma's son Eddie (Spencer Rowe) is offstage in the bedroom, talking to her. It's a rare visit. Over the years of Eddie's marriage, his life was devoted to his recently deceased wife and his two sons, 15 ½-year-old Jay (Steven Kaplan) and 13 1/2-year-old Arty (Austyn Myers), who we find onstage complaining about the heat and wondering why their dad's been talking to Grandma so long.

Eddie was forced to borrow money from a loan shark to pay his wife's final medical expenses, and he's been offered a job traveling, which of course means he won't be able to care for the boys. Grandma says no way. The loving Bella settles the matter by opening the sleeper sofa, and the boys become part of the chaotic household dominated by the bruised, first-generation immigrant woman. Eddie regretfully hits the road, with a goal of making enough money in 10 months to repay his debt.

Grandma's other grown children, shady Louie (Jeffrey M. Bender) and

Booters net victories as CIF playoffs roll on

By DAVE THOMAS | VILLAGE NEWS

For several local scholastic girls and boys soccer teams last week, the nets were friendly as they advanced in the CIF playoffs.

On the girls side, La Jolla Country Day (LJCD) School (11-7-2) topped Horizon School 1-0 in the second round of the CIF Division IV playoffs.

With 17 minutes remaining in the game, freshman Ana Cruz, with her back to the goal, beat her defender, turned and fired off a shot from about 25 yards that was all the Lady Torreyes needed.

Captain Aleena Young had another strong game at center mid, while Erika Shepard had a strong performance at forward and center mid with a couple of great crosses that couldn't be converted to goals. Sophomore Emily Eibl had a great second half at outside mid, while Allie Hieb anchored the defense again at sweeper as the defense was very stingy, offering virtually no scoring opportunities.

LJCD head coach Dave Jenkins also credited the play of defenders Rachel Locke, Jodi Morris, Kelly Mordente and Lily Wolfenzen.

LJCD met Francis Parker on March 2 in the semifinals and was eliminated 1-0. Christian and Parker will play for the Division IV crown March 6.

The Lady Torreyes advanced to the Horizon match with a 6-0 win over Guajome Park Academy, with scores from Shepard (two goals), Eibl, Young, Cruz and Katherine Klicpera. Locke and Alana Pockros shared goalkeeper responsibilities and the shutout.

Meantime, The Bishop's School continued its roll this season, scoring wins over Holtville (6-0) and Foothills Christian (5-0) in the Division IV playoffs. Six Bishop's players scored in the win over Holtville.

games, met Christian High in the March 2 semifinals and lost, 2-1.

In the Division III girls playoffs, La Jolla High used the third seed to beat Clairemont 3-1 in the quarterfinals.

La Jolla went up 2-0 after two goals from senior Brianna Chapman. After a fast start, the Lady Vikings gave up a goal close to halftime to go into the break 2-1.

Clairemont started with a lot of intensity in the second period, and after weathering the storm for the first five minutes, the rest of the second half was one-sided, according to La Jolla High head coach Kristin Jones. The majority of the game was played in Clairemont's defensive half. La Jolla was able to seal the game with a late goal off of a corner by sophomore Ellen Latta.

With the win, La Jolla advanced to the semifinals on March 2 against Cathedral and shut out the Lady Dons, 2-0. The Lady Vikings will face Coronado for the Division III final at 6:30 p.m. at Valhalla.

In boys play last week, Hunter Khaleghi scored a pair of goals as La Jolla Country Day (LJCD) School rolled to a 6-0 win over Horizon in a CIF playoff opener.

Lee Klitzner also scored on a direct kick and Ryan French scored his 10th goal off Dennis Roth's pass. Roth had a great night as he tallied his 20th goal of the season, tapping in a rebound after Alex Fleischhacker's shot, and then adding his 21st on a strong head-

Kite Festival marks 62 high-flying years

By ANTHONY GENTILE | VILLAGE NEWS

Children in Ocean Beach should not be offended if someone soon tells them to go fly a kite. The 62nd annual Ocean Beach Kiwanis Kite Festival and Craft Fair is being prepped for some high-flying fun Saturday, March 6.

"In most places you tell somebody, 'Go fly a kite' and it's an insult," said OB Kiwanis president Melanie Nickel. "In Ocean Beach, it's an invitation. It's a fun thing for people to do with their families."

In its sixth decade, the OB Kite Festival is one of the oldest in the United States. According to Nickel, the OB

Kiwanis started the festival in 1948 to celebrate its 20th anniversary and the event has been around ever since.

"We're into our third generation now," Nickel said. "We have people who were in it as kids bringing their grandchildren."

Perhaps the best part about the festival is that kids don't need to bring their own kites. OB Kiwanis provides all the supplies for kite making, which will take place from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Ocean Beach Recreation Center on Santa Monica Avenue.

"We have a special design of kite. It's not the classic type with the cross sticks and the diamond shape," Nickel said. "It's shaped more like a shield and it's plastic. They're guaranteed to fly. A 2-year-old could fly them."

Although all the kites in the festival will be the same style, that is where the similarities stop. Kite fliers will be given free rein to decorate their kites as they wish, with eight age divisions awarded prizes along with awards for most unique, best decorated and best theme.

"Kites are judged on how well-decorated they are," Nickel said. "They start out with a clean sheet of white plastic and they decorate it."

The festival will come to a close

The straight scoop on kelp curlers

By JUDITH LEA GARFIELD

If I had eight pairs of limbs, I'm certain I'd be constantly in knots. Fortunately amphipods — small, shrimplike crustaceans with said number of limbs — intrinsically know what pairs of limbs to use when and where. Ampithoe humeralis, commonly called a kelp curler, measure about 1 inch long. The package is made up of a j-shaped body, which is flattened from side to side, an oval head from which two super-long antennae spout, and lots of limbs.

Deciphering the jobs of the limbs is easier described than visually untangled. The pair closest to the head are short and fused at the base. They act as mouth parts. The longer and larger second and third limb pairs have pincerlike structures to gather food. The lower six limb pairs are all about mobility. Though not specially accessorized, these limbs are unique to other crustacea in the way the pairs are arranged: The first three pairs are adapted for swimming, and the three pair below them permit walking and jumping.

A kelp curler's world revolves around kelp. Found throughout the giant kelp (Macrocystis pyrifera) forests of California, the herbivorous curler not only depends on the seaweed for food but lodging as well.

The blueprint for kelp curler home construction is simplicity at its best. First, choose a healthy leaflike kelp frond; second, lie down on the blade and pull one end of the frond over lengthwise until it touches the frond's other edge; third, "sew" together the curled frond with sticky homemade threads (a gluey substance) often referred to as "amphipod silk." The resulting domicile loosely resembles a pea pod and is variable in size. Often, the hollow interior can be quite roomy, a plus for any female protecting a growing brood. Yet, a kelp curler isn't a prisoner of its dwelling because both ends of the pod have a small opening to permit comings and goings.

I've rarely seen a kelp curler out in the open because if it's not cloistered in its jury-rigged kelp shanty, having near transparency makes for an ideal camouflage. Recently, I discovered lots of kelp curlers in folded-over giant kelp fronds off of La Jolla Shores. I watched how a curler leaves its home, first by sampling the great outdoors with long sensory tentacles to assure the coast is clear, then zipping out like a shot. They are fast movers as they race and hop from one frond to another. If what I describe sounds like paranoid behavior, I'd act the same way if I were a kelp curler because amphipods are on the menu of most any small fish and many other invertebrates.

After the kelp curler nestles into a kelp frond, it excretes sticky fibers to glue two edges of the frond to each other to form a safe house, as a tiny snail (Alia carinata) overhead goes about its business.

In general, curlers don't bite the hand that feeds them. Usually there aren't enough kelp curlers to seriously damage the host plant with all the population checks in place, but the crustaceans can overgraze if there are enough of them and the kelp is otherwise weakened. As far as impacts to kelp from curler home construction, studies in other Macrocystis and kelp curler species show that a kelp frond continues growing, albeit slower. The first three rules in real estate don't seem to apply to curlers because I find them (or their abandoned lairs) at all depths along a vertical kelp stand (from about 60 feet deep to the surface), which makes sense since every view is oceanfront.

As with most noncommercially important species, a kelp curler's role in the health and stability of a kelp forest community is poorly understood. This is concerning because, for example, we can't finely manage commercially important fish stocks like yellowtail, which are closer to the top of the food web, if we are ignorant of what's going on at the lower reaches of the food chain. If this food chain were a building, yellowtail would be part of the roof. Amphipods, being near the bottom of the food chain, make up part of a building's foundation. Here's why: many other fish rely on amphipods for part of their diet, and those fish are themselves preyed upon by other fish

A kelp curler (above) freely comes and goes from its kelp frond wrap via each open end. Backlighting from the sun (below) illuminates what's packaged within the semi-sealed kelp frond: an adult kelp curler and her brood of comma-shaped little ones. © 2010 JUDITH LEA GARFIELD species, and so on, until a fish distantly connected to the kelp curler is scarfed down by a hungry yellowtail. No doubt, a solid, stable foundation supports the rest of any structure. Fisheries management via single species is finally beginning to go the way of the dinosaur, having lost favor to the modern strategy of ecosystem-based management, which includes marine protected areas. I hope greater effort will be put toward understanding critters like the kelp curler, because the health of the kelp ecosystem, and the ocean ecosystem at large, rests to some degree on the shoulders of these small, secretive and silent partners.

SPORTS *briefsUndy 5000 set to aid foundation

They might try to keep this brief. The debut of the San Diego "Undy 5000 5K Run/Walk" will take place Saturday, March 6 At 8 a.m. at the NTC Promenade at Liberty Station in Point Loma.

Organizers said the event will kick off March as National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month. The Colon Cancer Alliance (CCA), a national patient advocacy organization, is dedicated to ending the suffering caused by colorectal cancer, will host the event.

The Undy 5000 is held in different cities across the country throughout the year. The goal is to educate the public about colon cancer, promote screenings and get people talking about the deadly, but preventable, disease. A percentage of the local proceeds will benefit the California Colorectal Cancer Coalition (C4).

Organizers said the event stands out from many other 5K events because participants run in specially-designed boxer-style shorts, providing a fun way to bring attention to a serious disease. The family-oriented event is open to all ages, and will include a family fun run and children's activities.

The event takes place at Rosecrans

Cagers tip off CIF basketball playoffs

By DAVE THOMAS | VILLAGE NEWS

The shots were falling for most local scholastic boys and girls basketball teams as CIF playoffs tipped off last week.

In girls action, The Bishop's School opened Division IV action with a 72-16 victory over Coronado last Saturday.

Eliana White paced the Lady Knights with 30 points, while Briana Martinez added 13 and Alissa Campanero chipped in with 11.

Elsewhere, La Jolla Country Day (LJCD) School placed four players in double figures in an 85-25 thrashing of Santa Fe Christian.

Ariana Elegado led LJCD (23-3) with 25 points, with Kelsey Plum (14 points), and Kaylah Miller and Maya Hood (13 points each) hitting double figures.

LJCD was scheduled to meet Horizon March 2 in the next round. Scores were not available as the Village News went to press.

In boys play, LJCD (13-12) opened Division IV play with a 50-45 victory over Coronado.

Frankie Bamford paced the Torneys with 17 points, with Sage Burmeister and Kai Tuites adding 13 and 10 points, respectively.

LJCD met Horizon on March 2 and was eliminated, 41-36. Burmeister tallied 13 points in the losing effort.

Meantime, La Jolla High (18-10) posted a 53-45 victory over Cathedral in Division III action last Friday, advancing to meet Saints this past Tuesday March 2. The Vikings beat the Saints 58-44, with Jack Latta leading er off a great cross by Noah Wolfenzon.

According to LJCD head coach Jerry Fleischhacker, Klitzner, Philip Poyhonen, Danny Rogers, Max Ferre, Brian Trausch and Alistair Dobke were nearly flawless on defense as they helped Michael Bailey earn his fifth straight shutout. Rodrigo Cuenca also played a strong game at midfield, while Dillon DuBois is returning to form as he had his best game since recently coming back from a long lay-off due to an ankle injury, according to Fleischhacker.

Elsewhere, The Bishop's School captured its first two playoff games, with wins over Maranatha Christian (7-0) and Christian High (1-0).

In the win over Christian, Zach Negroni scored the winning goal on a corner kick.

"It was a hard-fought game with little between the teams, played in very tough conditions," Bishop's head coach Malcolm Tovey noted.

Bishop's was to continue its season by attempting to upset CIF champion Mater Dei on Wednesday, March 3 as the Village News went to press. ■

BUSINESSbrief

Naval base fuel revamp on track

Navy officials say $195 million worth of construction to modernize operations at the fuel storage facility depot at Naval Base Point Loma (NBPL) is proceeding as planned.

The project was awarded in 2008 and eight additional options were funded under the 2010 Department of Defense Authorization and Military Construction Appropriations Act.

According to Navy officials, the five-year construction effort will deliver a complete and modernized fuel facility to replace the original fuel facility built between 1917 and 1954.

The depot, which is the largest defense fuel terminal on the West Coast, is expected to eliminate environmental risk caused by degradation of the existing aging facilities.

Noted as the largest construction project ever within the Defense Logistics Agency, the project will feature eight 125,000 barrel, above-ground fuel storage tanks to replace the existing one million barrels of jet fuel and diesel fuel storage capacity at the base.

The project will also replace a pump house, dispensing systems, distribution piping and fuel-oil reclamation facility, forming a complete and usable facility.

A new fuel-oil recovery site and installation of a temporary stockpile and treatment area is also under way.

Navy officials say there is rigorous monitoring of site air quality and noise levels to ensure compliance with the tight limits established in the project environmental assessment, and steps are being taken to ensure there is no adverse traffic impact.

Navy officials said the project is recognized as the "ultimate solution" to the underground fuel plume problem at Naval Base Point Loma, and that safeguards are being built in to prevent future fuel releases into the ground.

emotionally challenged Gert (Amanda Naughton), add flavor and substance to the family saga, which engages and informs, bringing much laughter to the audience and tears to the characters, who from youngest to oldest are brutally forthright in expressing themselves.

Rather than playing for the laughs, Schwartz goes for depth. The laughs come naturally and so does understanding of how courageous survivors of this catastrophe were, leaving their countries behind, learning a new language and doing what they must to support their families. Grandma Kunitz may have damaged her children, but one is left with hope, especially for Jay and Artie, so remarkably played by Kaplan and Myers. These two young actors, one from New York, the other a San Diego lad, seem to have bonded as if they are real brothers.

Associate artist Ralph Funicello creates the period flat in Yonkers, with costume design (love the crooked seams and white socks) by Alejo Vietti, lighting by Matthew McCarthy and sound by Paul Peterson. The fully trapped theater space allows Funicello to create a stairway to the candy shop and the street, making the flat appear like the little island it is.

"Lost in Yonkers" plays at 7 p.m. Tuesdays and Wednesdays; 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays; 2 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays; and 7 p.m. Sundays through March 7 in the Sheryl and Harvey White Theatre, at the Old Globe's Conrad Prebys Theatre Center, 1363 Old Globe Way, Balboa Park.

Ocean Experience Surf & Skate Camp

Ocean Experience offers boys and girls age 6 to 16 the most comprehensive surf and skate camps available. Since our first session in 1990, we have maintained the highest standards of instructional integrity, safety and supervision. Ocean Experience develops skills and confidence while empowering students to surf for life.

Campers spend the week in small groups with professional coaches, teachers and surfers receiving individual attention and instruction. Our staff/student ratio of 1:4 ensures safety and security allowing students to progress at their own rate and comfort level. Through surfing, our students learn oceanography, and water safety while gaining respect for the coastal environment. Friday afternoon BBQ and awards provide a unique closure to a week of exciting events and accomplishments. Our goal is for each camper to have a meaningful and memorable

Summer Academy of the Arts

The Winston School is hosting its annual Summer Academy of the Arts for students in grades 6–12 from July 12th to 30th, 2010.

Focusing on a theatrical production, which this year is "Grease," students have the opportunity to develop creativity in one or more art media — including visual arts, drama, digital arts, dance or music. Students produce a finished product and integrate their work with artists in other media such as a concert, a performance, or a film premiere.

The Winston School inspires hope and success in bright, creative students who have struggled to realize their potential.

The Summer Academy is Monday through Friday from 12:45 to 3:45 p.m. Tuition is $440 per student plus additional materials or trip fee if applicable. Please visit www.thewinstonschool.com or call 858-259-8155.

MBAC Camp is now "The Watersports Camp"

The exciting and popular day-camp at the Mission Bay Aquatic Center has changed its name and logo and is now known simply as "The Watersports Camp." While the name has changed, the camp will continue to offer the same great services and camps for all levels in wakeboarding, waterskiing, surfing, sailing, kayaking, windsurfing, and marine science. In addition, the camp will offer a few new options this year, which include a full day small boat racing camp, and a half-day multi-sport camp. The camp has been in operation for over 30 years and is offered by Associated Students of SDSU, UCSD recreation and the Peninsula Family YMCA. The camp offers both spring break and summer camp sessions. Expect to be impressed by their professional and friendly counselors and instructors. (858) 539-2003

Expanding the Horizons of San Diego Youth

As summer approaches many of the children in our community will go from days filled with the familiar structure of school to ones of loneliness with the television and video games providing companionship while parents work.

For over forty years, the Community Campership Council has provided memorable summer experiences for deserving San Diego children by funding a week at camp in partnership with 21 area American Camp Association accredited camps. We believe that the camp experience helps kids get to know our outdoors world, make new friends, learn new skills and values and socialize with a diverse group of campers. This broadens their perspective about the kind of life they can build for themselves if they work hard, treat people fairly and set goals for themselves.

SuperCamp — Immediate results. A lifetime of value.

Growth happens for students who attend SuperCamp's 7- and 10-day summer enrichment programs. It comes in many forms — added confidence and self-esteem, newfound focus and motivation, powerful new learning, study and test-taking skills, increased social and leadership skills.

SuperCamp actively involves the whole person and uses physical activity, creativity, music, images, color and other techniques to unlock each student's potential for learning and personal growth.

SuperCamp is an outstanding investment for parents. A recent study revealed that 77 percent of SuperCamp grads went directly into a four-year college after high school, with 41 percent receiving some scholarship support.

Students have a great time at SuperCamp. They make new friends and get to live on campus at such great schools as Stanford, UCLA, Loyola Marymount, Brown and Cal State San Marcos. Visit www.SuperCamp.com to view videos and to learn more. Call 760-722-0072 to speak with an enrollment specialist.

is an ideal form of exercise for a number of reasons. Our rehab services offer assisted swimming in a warm water environment.
