Fine roast

By ADRIANE TILLMAN | VILLAGE NEWS

Bird Rock Coffee Roasters along La Jolla Boulevard has become a source of pride in the community as Bird Rock's poster child for a local, successful business. It has also become a social hub for neighbors.

Owner Chuck Patton has carved a niche in the market across the street from Starbucks Coffee. Patton describes the success of his business as an "organic" process that evolved step-by-step into its popularity today.

"I didn't get the idea to be in the business and then build a café the next day," Patton said.

"When I taste coffee, I look for something that's unique and interesting, the same as you would for wine."

CHUCK PATTON
Owner, Bird Rock Coffee Roasters

Patton, who lives a few blocks from the store, taught English at Grossmont College and City College and knew nothing about the coffee business. He began roasting coffee as a hobby at home. Eight years ago, he turned his hobby into a business when he began roasting coffee commercially out of the VFW kitchen on Turquoise Street to sell at the La Jolla farmer's market.

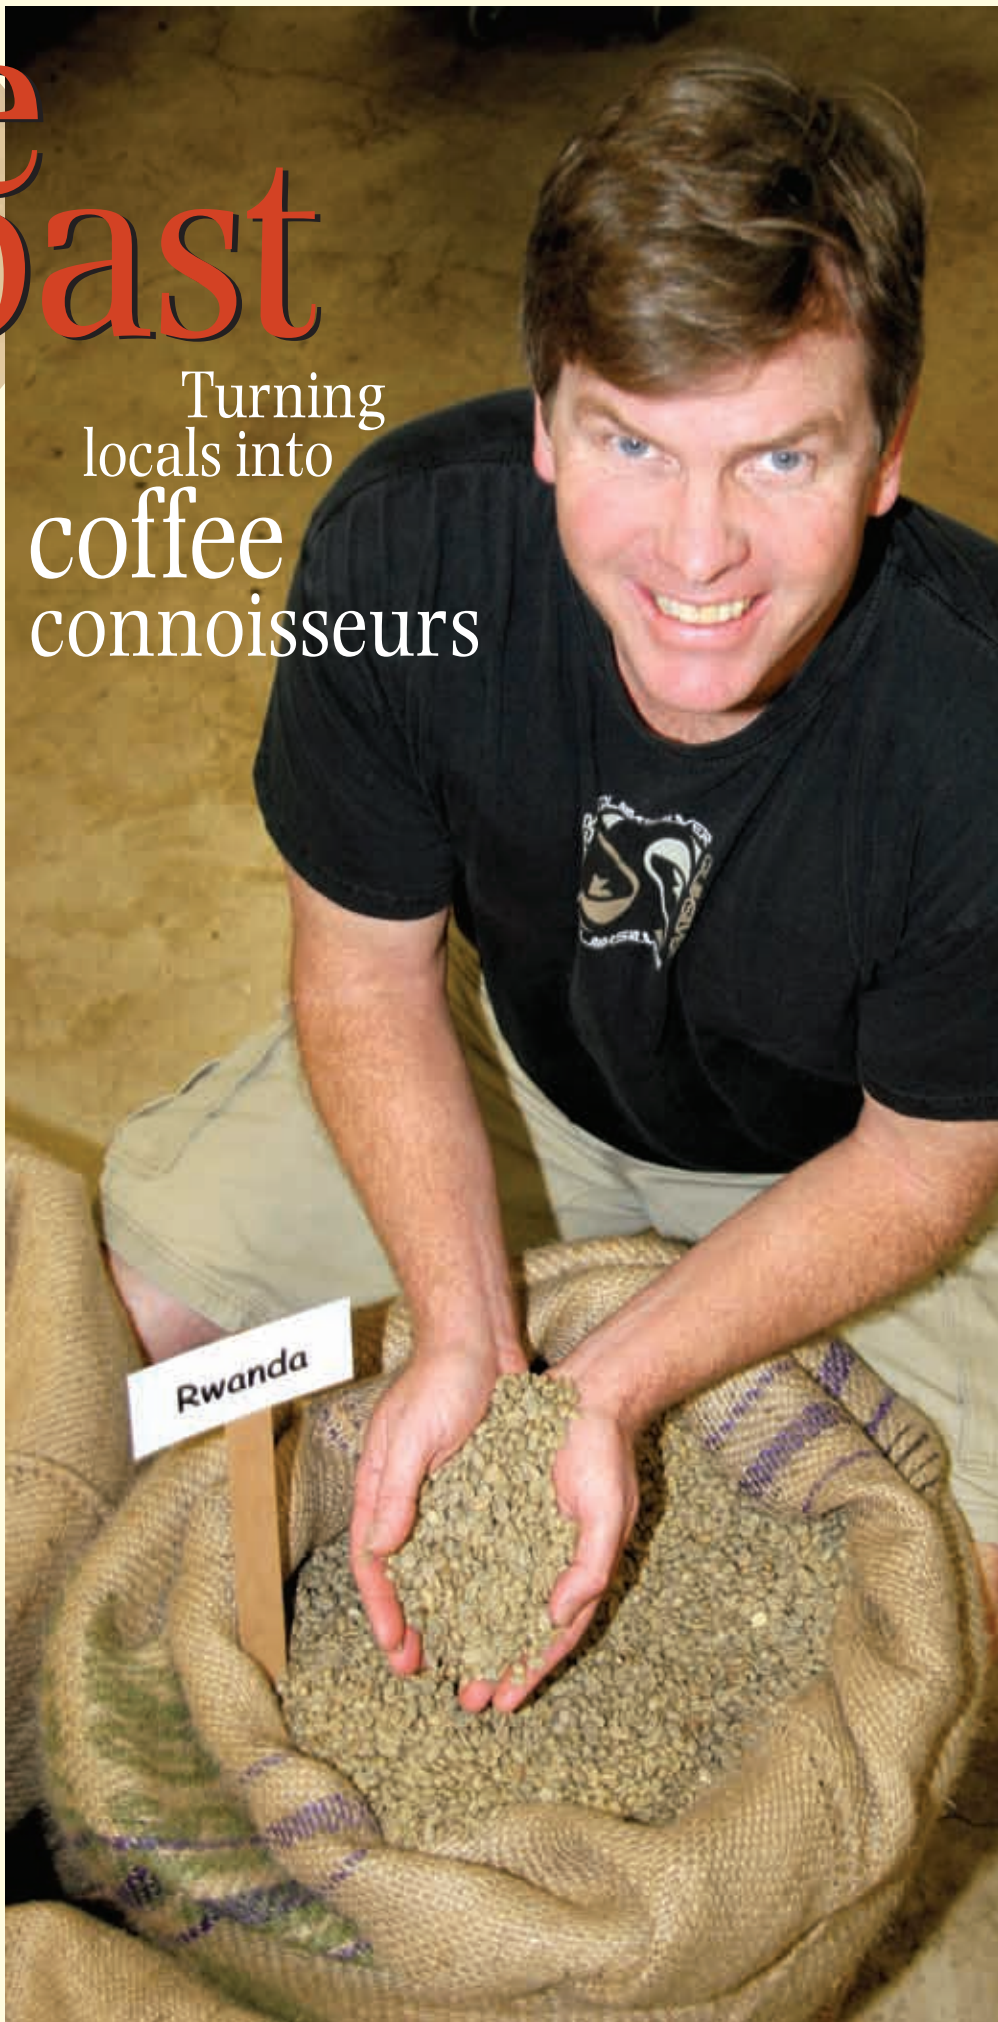

Patton eventually purchased his first retail space — a kiosk behind Albertson's on Turquoise Street — to sell cups of coffee.

"At each step, I was better defining the brand and learning more about the cost of the operation," Patton said. "I got excited about the possibilities. I realized that no one is doing this here. No one is doing a good enough job exposing people to good varieties."

Patton is now trailblazing his own business model for sourcing exceptional coffee by establishing direct relationships with individual farmers and rewarding them for the quality of their bean.

For the past two years, Patton has traveled to places like Ethiopia, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Columbia,

Mitt Romney draws a crowd

One-time presidential candidate greet fans at local book signing

By ADRIANE TILLMAN | VILLAGE NEWS

Former Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney visited the Mormon-run Deseret Bookstore in University City to sign copies of his latest book “No Apology: The Case for American Greatness” on March 22.

The line of people waiting to get their books signed snaked across the mall and into the parking lot.

Romney said his book lays down actions America needs to take to remain “the strong, powerful hope of the world.”

In a press conference following the book signing, Romney criticized the health-care bill that was passed Sunday, calling the bill unconstitutional.

“This bill is an incursion into the commerce of various states that violates the Constitution and takes away an authority that is reserved to the states,” Romney said.

As governor in Massachusetts, Romney signed into law a health-care bill that required residents to obtain health insurance.

Romney said he has no current plans to run for president in 2012.

“I’ll make that decision down the road,” Romney said. “I have no thoughts at this stage. Sometime after the elections in the fall or early next year, we’ll think about that.”

Outside, Californians Against Hate activists protested on the street, calling on Romney to help stop the Mormon church’s fight against gay marriage.

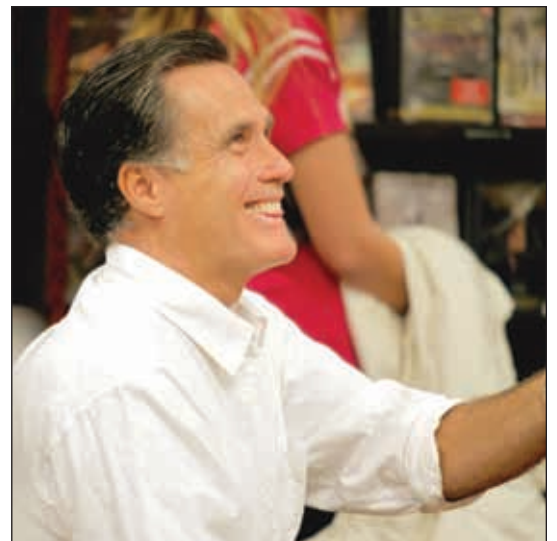

Romney said he won’t interfere with the politics of his church.

“I don’t tell my church what to do politically and they don’t tell me what to do politically,” Romney said.

At home in La Jolla

The former Massachusetts governor purchased a house in La Jolla in 2008. Romney said he wanted to move to the area to be close to his two sons and six grandchildren who live in Rancho Bernardo. He had searched for a house in La Jolla and Del Mar to be close to the ocean, he said.

Springtime in La Jolla's Secret Gardens

From my Garden
Linda Marrone

Every spring for the past 12 years, the La Jolla Historical Society has invited the public to stroll beyond the garden gates of some of La Jolla's most beloved homes and enjoy their cherished Secret Gardens.

Over the years, featured gardens have ranged from intimate to grand and included gardens at historic homes, quaint cottages, active family homes, European-inspired villas and elegant estates.

The garden locations will remain a closely-guarded secret until the tour day, Saturday, May 15, but since I have a little "inside information," I wanted to give you a glimpse into what will be in store for you as you meander through the garden gates of six beautiful homes.

Once again, the tour will take you through various La Jolla neighborhoods. In the heart of the Village, you will be treated to a historic home with a charming cottage-style garden that boasts a necklace of white iceberg roses. Two gardens are located above La Jolla Shores. One features a beautifully-manicured garden with a vibrant color scheme that overlooks ocean vistas. Hidden down a private drive, the next garden is designed in classic Southern California style with a bounty of Meyer's lemon trees and heavenly ginger to scent the air.

Three estate-sized gardens are also featured and their designs reflect each owner's lifestyle and passion. With one of the most spectacular views you will ever see, one garden overlooks the ocean and is adorned with the owner's collection of tribal art. It also features blackberries and blueberries, plants we don't regularly see in Southern California gardens. A passion for angels is the highlight of the next garden that has an East meets West style. The last garden is lush and green and it is bound to wake up your childhood imagination with its playhouse and tree house.

The Secret Garden Tour offers not only enchanting gardens, it also gives you the opportunity to see artists capturing the garden scenes on their canvases, designers' garden entertaining displays and talented musicians who will add their musical notes to the spring air.

In addition to the self-guided tour, there is also a Platinum Tour, which includes shuttle transportation to each garden, brunch and a special garden to view. This year, Platinum Tour ticket holders will be treated to a historic home with mesmerizing ocean views and a garden framed by towering pine trees that steps down to the ocean below. Brunch will be served at the Estancia Hotel and the hotel is offering a special rate package if you want to stay at the hotel or enjoy their luxurious spa.

All of the proceeds from the tour benefit the La Jolla Historical Society. The successful tour enables the Society to continue "Building a future for La Jolla's past." Stop by Wisteria Cottage (780 Prospect St.) and see what exciting restoration projects are planned for both the enchanting cottage and its grounds. A revered local landmark, generously donated to the Society by the Revelle family, the historic cottage will not only become a new headquarters for the Society, but it will also house a museum that will be shared with the community.

Admission is limited, so remember to plan ahead since the tour usually sells out weeks before. For more information, call the Society at: (858) 459-5335 for a recorded message or go to their informative Web site: www.LaJollaHistory.org for information on the self-guided tour, Platinum Tour and the Estancia Hotels special "Beautiful Botanicals" offer.

Council rejects request to close end of cul-de-sac

By ADRIANE TILLMAN | Village News

San Diego City Council voted against a request from two homeowners on Prospect Place to close off the end of the cul-de-sac in front of their homes.

Homeowners in the 7700 block of Prospect Place had asked the city to vacate 3,100 square-feet of the land where bushes have overgrown. The homeowners, Lisa and William Barket and Ken and Tara Nitahara, claim the area is trash-ridden and attracts crime. They wanted to build a sidewalk, install drains and lighting onsite. One of the homeowners also planned to build a garage with the extra land.

The City Council voted 5-3 to reject the request March 2. The La Jolla Community Planning Association had also voted down the proposal 9-2-1 on Dec. 3, 2009.

District 1 City Councilwoman Sherri Lightner, who represents La Jolla, made the motion to reject the vacation.

"Prospect Place must remain a fully functional street," Lightner said. "I'm happy to work with the applicants, the neighborhood and the city to design a cul-de-sac or a turn-around to address any concerns regarding traffic circulation and the appearance of the street."

Lightner said the neighborhood shouldn't lose parking spaces in the process.

Crime is not an issue at that end of the street, testified Lt. Jim Filley with the police department's Northern Division at the March 2 hearing.

District 8 Councilman Ben Hueso dissented on the vote.

"In my mind, when an easement is no longer used for the public benefit, it's the rightful property of the abutting property owner," he said.

Children's Pool policy stalls-out at meeting

By ADRIANE TILLMAN | Village News

Creating policy for the Children's Pool stalled at the city's Natural Resources and Culture Committee on March 17 when half the board wanted to get more information on options for managing the land — and the other half wanted to vote on closing the beach during pupping season.

No recommendation will move forward to the City Council. The Natural Resources and Culture Committee will discuss the issue again at a special meeting on Monday, April 5, from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.

District 1 City Councilwoman Sherri Lightner, who represents La Jolla, made a motion to ask staff to study the various options for the beach during seal pupping season, including a) keep the status quo of roping off most of the beach, b) reposition the rope, c) close the beach completely, d) close the beach at night.

Lightner also wanted to establish a task force on the Children's Pool to review other issues like year-round closure of the beach and human use during the summer.

"A plan with buy-in from the community and involved stakeholders will have the greatest chance for success," Lightner said.

But committee chair Donna Frye (District 6) and member Marti Emerald (District 7) wanted to move forward on the issue.

"In my opinion, those proposals will not change from the different sides," Frye said, adding that the committee has discussed the issue for the last eight years. "We can spend more staff time and more staff money and go out to the community and when this issue comes back, you can expect to see the same people with the same proposals."

"We will continue to have more and more problems as this is drawn out," Frye continued. "Passions will rise. Let's at least set one set of rules for the pupping season."

Joe La Cava, president of the La Jolla Community Planning Association, requested the city allow the planning group to vet the issue before the City Council makes a decision, which Lightner supported. Parking is scarce in the area and the Children's Pool attracts a large crowd to the neighborhood, La Cava said.

"Please don't forget this is the backyard of our community," La Cava said at the meeting.

The battle over the Children's Pool landed in the City Council's lap when Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger signed a bill permitting the beach to also be used as a marine mammal park in late 2009. Until then the city had been obligated to maintain the beach as a bathing pool for children, according to Ellen Browning Scripps' stipulations when she funded the breakwater and deeded the city the property to maintain in 1931.

Harbor seals at the Children's Pool beach area.

Sumatra and Ecuador to build partnerships with individual farmers based on the quality of their beans. He tastes the coffee before he purchases anything. Originally, Patton opted to work within the Fair Trade system — which ensures farmers are paid at least a set minimum price per pound — but he is now more interested in working directly with individual farmers to help them grow better beans.

“The problem with Fair Trade is that the farmer [in the cooperative] is not rewarded for quality,” Patton said.

Plus, a portion of the Fair Trade cost goes to the $1,000 annual certification. Patton said he'd rather invest that money directly into the farm. Patton is experimenting with rewarding farmers with more pay according to the score their coffee receives in the shop.

Patton said he pays as much as $4 per pound of coffee when commercial importers typically pay $1.50 for a lower grade of coffee.

"It's easier to call a broker," Patton said. "That's why I'm one of the only ones doing direct trade. It's more expensive ... It requires an investment of travel.

Direct trade with individual farmers accounts for 30 percent of the coffee sold at Bird Rock Coffee Roasters, but Patton aims to push it to 75 percent by next year.

San Diego doesn't have the coffee culture like San Francisco or Seattle where people spend rainy days socializing in coffee shops and have grown to appreciate good coffee. Patton said he has the burden of making coffee connoisseurs out of San Diegans. So far, the locals are buying into it.

“People seem more educated about wine than coffee,” Patton said. “Coffee is just something they drink to get a buzz before going to work. They don’t think about it as having complexity and a flavor profile that’s different between countries.”

“When I taste coffee, I look for something that’s unique and interesting, the same as you would for wine,” Patton said. “Does it have body, acidity and finish? Is it clean and sweet with a pleasant acidity? In coffee from Sumatra, I look for a bigger body than in coffee from Costa Rica. In Ethiopian coffee, I look for blueberry notes. I understand the possibilities.”

NEWSbriefs*Navy jet makes emergency landing

An F/A-18 Navy jet screamed over the La Jolla and University City neighborhoods around 10 p.m. on Thursday, March 18 to make an emergency landing at Marine Corps Air Station Miramar on Runway 6.

The jet flew over the same neighborhood where an F/A-18 Hornet had crashed into the home of the Yoon family in University City, killing two women and two children, in late 2008.

The pilot was attempting for the first time to make a nighttime landing on an aircraft carrier north of San Diego. The pilot failed to land on the aircraft carrier and since he was in training, the military called for an “emergency” landing even though nothing was technically

La Jolla Cluster reacts to school budget cut

The La Jolla Cluster is tackling its first major problem: a 2.5 percent budget cut to each of the five La Jolla schools. The cluster — a group of teachers, parents and principals from all five La Jolla public schools — sent a letter to the superintendent and board of education asking the district to work with the principal to soften the blow.

The San Diego Unified School District board voted last November to cut 2.5 percent from the budget of each school in the district.

La Jolla Cluster member Sharon Jones, who represents La Jolla Elementary, said the funding reduction hits La Jolla schools harder than most in the district.

“La Jolla schools are among the lowest-funded,” Jones said. “The cut hits the lowest-funded schools the hardest because we don’t have as many sources of government funding.”

The cut in funding will affect programs to help struggling students, the Gifted and Talented Education (GATE) program, as well as textbooks and supplies, Jones said.

School budget cuts:

Bird Rock Elementary School loses $39,000, the bulk of which helps pay for math and literacy.

La Jolla Elementary School loses $26,000, half of which pays for support for struggling students.

Torrey Pines Elementary School loses $15,000, which helps fund support for English learners.

Muirlands Middle School loses $19,000 with a chunk disappearing from the GATE program.

La Jolla High School loses $48,000 with half of that being slashed from the GATE program.

The La Jolla Cluster plans to organize into a non-profit in April. The cluster includes teachers Ginny LaRowe and Laura McCord, parents Laurie Barnet and Lisa Bonebrake and principal Carol Barry to represent Bird Rock Elementary; teachers Debbie Balmat and Stephanie Cole, parents Sharon Jones and Fran Shimp and principal Donna Tripi to represent La Jolla Elementary; teachers Brenda Baniaga and Erika Saldivar, parents Missy Coleman and John May and principal James Solo to represent Torrey Pines Elementary; teachers Demian Hartmann and Suzanne Serafin, parents Alison Lee and Sherry Macelli and principal Chris Hargrave to represent Muirlands Middle; and teacher Malcolm Jarvis, parents Natalie Mann and Maureen Weber and principal Dana Shelburne to represent La Jolla High.

wrong with the plane or the pilot, according to Steve Fiebing, deputy public affairs officer for the commander of Naval Air Forces.

The aircraft carrier was closest to Miramar so the pilot was sent there, according to Fiebing.

“Because he was in a training situation, if they fail to trap on the ship, they’re sent to the nearest military airfield to make a landing at that air station on land, versus trying to land on the carrier,” Fiebing said.

The March 18 emergency landing unnerved and angered neighbors who heard the plane fly over, however.

Retired Navy pilot Ron Belanger ran out of his house when he heard the plane. Belanger, 67, lives on Cather Avenue, four doors down from the Yoon house that was struck by the military jet two years ago.

“I thought he was coming right toward my house,” Belanger said. “... He went by south of us and was flying very low at 100 to 150 feet above my home.”

Belanger believes a distressed plane shouldn’t fly over the populated area but should approach Miramar from the east over the designated crash zone, or land at the North Island Naval Air Station on Coronado.

Marine Corps Maj. Jay Delarosa said the military’s policy is to send planes in an emergency situation to the nearest airfield.

“The bottom line is that when an emergency is declared, they find the quickest, safest path,” Delarosa said. “They chose the most direct route. It’s not a prohibited air space. The plane landed safely and we made the right decision to bring it down.”

Scripps scientists explore Chilean earthquake site

A team of researchers from the Scripps Institution of Oceanography launched an eight-day expedition of BIG DIG — Contractors dig out a hole on the hillside above La Jolla Shores Drive to build a new research facility for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). The new facility will replace NOAA’s research building nearby that has been condemned because it sits too close to the edge of the eroding cliff. Contractors are building a 225,000-square-foot building on 3.3 acres of undeveloped land with an underground parking garage. Federal stimulus dollars are funding the $102 million project.

the Chilean coast March 17 to study the rupture site of the 8.8-magnitude earthquake that struck the region Feb. 27.

The team is conducting its study from aboard Scripps’ research vessel Melville, which was stationed off the coast of Chile for a separate exploration when the quake hit. Because the ship was already in Chile, the Scripps Oceanography team had a rare scientific opportunity to rapidly capture data from the ruptured ocean floor.

Researchers will use sonar mapping to produce topographical maps of the site, which they can compare to data collected by Germany’s Leibniz Institute of Marine Sciences (IFM-GEOMAR) before the quake happened.

The Scripps team will be joined by researchers from Chile’s Universidad Católica in Valparaiso, as well as scientists from IFM-GEOMAR.

Driver pleads guilty

A drunken driver pleaded guilty March 19 to gross vehicular manslaughter while intoxicated in connection with the fiery crash that killed Jared Franklin Purton, a scientist who worked at the Scripps Research Institute on Dec. 13, 2009.

Michael Patrick Landri, 30, of San Diego, admitted to driving while under the influence of alcohol when his Infinity struck Purton’s vehicle at the intersection of Torrey Pines Road and Genee Avenue not far from where Purton worked in La Jolla. The impact ruptured the gas tank of Landri’s vehicle, causing his car and Purton’s Volkswagen Passat to erupt in flames.

Deputy District Attorney Renee Palermo said Landri faces a maximum 10-year term in state prison. San Diego Superior Court Judge Eugenia Eyherabide set sentencing for May 14. Palermo said she will argue for a prison sentence.

Palermo said Landri, a bartender, had come from a Christmas party at a hotel he worked at and his blood/alcohol level was 0.16, which is twice the legal limit. Landri was driving too fast when he struck Purton’s vehicle around 9:53 p.m. and Purton died at the scene.

Palermo said Purton was on a work visa from Australia and doing research at Scripps Research as a post doctorate. He was engaged to a woman who also worked at Scripps. Purton lived in Pacific Beach.

Landri remains free on $150,000 bond on condition he abstain from alcohol and doesn’t go to places where alcohol is served.

Firefighters go on the auction block

Rock Bottom Brewery, 8980 Villa La Jolla Drive, is auctioning off firefighters for a date at its restaurant to benefit the UCSD Burn Center on March 31 at 6 p.m.

It’s the 10th year running for the auction and Rock Bottom hopes to raise $10,000 for the center.

“People love firefighters,” said Cory Beckwith, vice president of the city firefighters union 145 IAFF. “They have the right attitude and they’re very professional, but also they’re a fun group of guys who are willing to go out there and have a good time.”

Beckwith said the union runs a non-profit that draws money from fire fighters’ paychecks and typically raises $100,000 annually to support different causes in the community.

Rock Bottom will also auction off a football autographed by Chargers’ center Nick Hardwick, a Hornblower cruise, a fishing trip, golf clubs, SeaWorld passes and gift certificates to restaurants.

Vikings make strong showing at Beach City Invitational tourney

By ROB STONE | VILLAGE NEWS

The La Jolla Viking men's volleyball team came up just short of making an appearance in the championship game of the 10th annual Beach City Invitational at La Jolla last weekend.

"We wouldn't have made it as far as we did if we hadn't come back to win our first match," said Viking coach Dave Jones.

As it turned out, La Jolla (7-1) made it all the way to the semifinals of the Gold Division before suffering a tough two-game loss at the hands of the Aliso Niguel Wolverines of Viejo.

"We were seeded fourth, which was a great place for us to be," Jones said.

"A tournament like this will help our team come together as the season goes along."

DAVE JONES
LJHS volleyball coach

In the 25-17, 25-16 loss to Aliso Niguel, the Vikings were led by 6-foot senior Kyle Gutstadt (five kills, six digs), 6-foot-2 junior Blake Chadwick (five kills, five digs), 6-foot-5 senior Jack Latta (two kills, two blocks), 6-foot-2 senior Max Greenberg (15 assists, two blocks, two digs), 6-foot senior John Walsh (11 digs), 5-foot-6 senior Jake Shwisberg (five digs), and 6-foot-3 senior Matt Palatella (four digs).

"A tournament like this will help our team come together as the season goes along," Jones said.

La Jolla already showed signs of coming together with wins over the Silverado Skyhawks (Las Vegas, Nev.), Sanger Apaches (Sanger, Calif.), Temecula Prep Patriots (Winchester, Calif.), Bonanza Bengals (Las Vegas, Nev.), and Clairemont Chieftans earlier in the tournament.

"The match with Silverado was a little scary until we pushed our way through," Jones said.

In the 25-22, 25-18 victory over the Skyhawks, the Vikings were led by Gutstadt (four kills, six digs), Latta (four kills), Chadwick (three kills, 11 digs), Palatella (two kills, two blocks), Greenberg (19 assists, two digs), Walsh (14 digs), Shwisberg (two digs), 6-foot-3 senior Taylor Davis (four kills), 6-foot-1 senior Pierce Poynter (two kills), and 5-foot-9 junior Jack Ready (two digs).

"We lost our first game 25-23 against Clairemont," Jones said. "But, we came back to win the next two (25-19, 15-9) to win the match. If we had lost, we wouldn't have got into the Gold Division."

In the victory over the Clairemont Chieftans, the Vikings were led by Latta (6 kills, 3 blocks), Gutstadt (6 kills, 8 digs), Davis (5 kills), Chadwick (4 kills, 3 blocks, 3 digs), Palatella (4 kills), Greenberg (24 assists, 3 digs), and Walsh (12 digs).

"Against Clairemont, we came out a little bit complacent," Jones said. "But, we regrouped and responded."

Chadwick, Walsh, and Palatella, were all named to the All-Tournament team for La Jolla.

Softball teams will mix vets, newcomers

By DAVE THOMAS | VILLAGE NEWS

Local high school softball teams hope to pitch a strong season and ensure themselves a run in the CIF playoffs.

At The Bishop's School, new head coach Rio Dominguez leads the Lady Knights, who finished 14-9 a season ago.

Dominguez, who had been an assistant coach at Bishop's, will look to seniors Briana Martinez and Gabby Salerno, as well as juniors AJ Kiyoizumi, Nicole Herman and Megan Keiffer to lead the way. Dominguez is also expecting contributions from the sophomore duo of Alex Mejia and Leyna Rowan. The assistant coaches are Pete Camarda and Mark Bickerstaff.

"With seven returning starters, we are looking to have a great season and getting into the playoffs," Dominguez said. "The girls are motivated and excited to start the season. We have some power in the lineup, but we will use small ball and team speed to generate runs. Our defense is good to go."

At neighboring La Jolla Country Day School, the Lady Torreys are a fresh team this season, with only three returnees from last spring.

Returning sophomores Katie and Megan Woods, along with Jessica Schneider, lead a group of newcomers to the team.

According to co-head coach Corinne Brunn (Thomas Abeyta is co-head coach), the Lady Torreys will build with a strong group of freshmen including pitcher Christine Campbell, infielders Jessica Lewis and Katie Lamkin, utility players Miquela Fiori, Rebecca Shanks and Briteesha Solomon.

"We have a beautiful new softball facility and a very young team this season. I expect it to be a very exciting and successful season," Brunn said.

At La Jolla High School, new head coach Anthony Sarain leads the Lady Vikings, who went 2-8 in Western League play last spring.

Sarain expects contributions from key players Onezia Berotte (shortstop) and Anna Parma (catcher) to lead the way.

"We have a lot of returning varsity players, but there are no seniors on the squad," Sarain stated. "Onezia and Anna should have strong seasons at the plate and in the field. Our goal is to reach CIF playoffs."

La Jolla Country Day School pitcher Christine Campbell threw a no-hitter with 15 strikeouts in an 11-0 home victory over Mountain Empire on March 19.

SENIORSbrief*Brain Fitness Program can aid seniors

The Jewish Family Service of San Diego (JFS) is expanding its Brain Fitness Program with the addition of InSight, a brain training program that improves the quality and quantity of information absorbed by the brain through the eyes.

The software program, developed by Posit® Science, is designed to speed up the brain's visual processing and improve attention and focus. It consists of five visual exercises with "game-like elements" that adapt to each user's unique performance and track their progress, according to the JFS Web site.

JFS will hold InSight classes on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from April 13 to June 30 at the JFS University City Older Adult Center at Congregation Beth Israel, located at 9001 Towne Centre Drive. Classes will take place from 10 a.m. to noon. Those interested in taking the class can make reservations by calling (858) 637-3247, or visit www.jfssd.org/brain for more information.

THE PREVALENCE OF DEPRESSION IN THE ELDERLY

Researchers estimate that 20 percent of elderly people living in nursing homes or assisted living experience symptoms of depression. Late in life depression can have serious repercussions. It can increase mortality and disability, may result in higher health care utilization and longer hospital stays.

An estimated 15 percent of U.S. adults are providing care for seriously ill or disabled relatives. These family caregivers are simultaneously caring for their own children and also often working outside the home. Add the problem of elder depression in perhaps one in five of all family caregiving relationships and you can see the problem is huge. Many families don't even know what they're dealing with or how to care for their loved one when they don't fully understand what is happening to that family member.

Elderly people themselves will "ignore the blackness that descends on them" because it is hard for them to move away from the belief that depression is a sign of weakness and a result of flawed character. Also, they may think they should just handle things. That's where the RN Case Managers at Innovative Healthcare Consultants can help. They can recognize the warning signs of depression and can help advocate for your family member with their family doctor. If you want advice or have questions about depression in yourself or a family member, call us at (877) 731-1442 or view our website at www.innovativehc.com.

Advice for dealing with difficult conversations

Doing it Better

Natasha Josefowitz, Ph.D.

Potentially difficult conversations are the conversations we put off because we assume they will be unpleasant at best or escalate into acrimony at worst. And yet it must be done.

It can be anything from needing to tell an elderly parent he or she should stop driving (my mother got very upset and defensive with me when I said I worried about her safety) to telling a child you disagree with his or her school or career decisions, choice of friends or even mate. It can be a concern about the way your children are raising their children (the usual advice is to say nothing) or about a spouse spending money unwisely. It can be telling a friend about a self-destructive behavior or giving employees negative feedback on their performances. In other words, you're really not looking forward to that conversation. You're uneasy about the ensuing dialogue. Too often, rather than bringing us closer by opening doors, talking can shut doors and drive us further apart.

How can we not only keep doors open but also have a dialogue that leads to a resolution comfortable for both parties? One of the biggest problems we have is to come to the conversation well prepared. I often have rehearsed what I was planning to say and how I was to say it and even imagined the other's responses. This in itself is not a bad idea; the issue here is that we must be willing to forego our preparation and instead of being ready to talk, be ready to listen. Instead of just waiting for our turn to talk, we need to be able to drop our assumptions, change directions, step back and hear the other without an immediate reaction or prepared opinion.

We need to learn not only to talk together, but also to think together, becoming equal partners in the dialogue. This is not always easy, especially if there is a power differential. It can be status (boss to employee), age (parent to child), it can be due to expertise, to wealth, even to better skills at communicating. You must be willing to:

Listen without resistance.

Respect the other's different viewpoint by putting yourself in their place.

Forego expressing your own opinion before listening to theirs.

Speak to problem-solve and not to dominate or win an argument.

If your agenda is to talk the other person into a specific action, such as getting your parent to stop driving, the following steps may help:

What has happened or is happening? E.g., your parent's eyesight is failing.

What feelings are involved? Their loss of independence and your fear of an accident.

Change shoes. What would they do in your place? What would you do in theirs? Change roles and role-play a dialogue. The worst thing you can do is criticize or become defensive.

Paraphrase: In other words, state how you believe they think and feel.

Accept that not every difficult conversation can end with an acceptable compromise for both parties. There may be inevitable hurt feelings, but these can be mitigated by knowing one is understood, even if disagreed with.

Finally, if you can't prevent a conflict, and you're unable to resolve it, then try to contain it by either letting go until another more propitious time or asking for a third party to mediate if this is acceptable to both. In the case of your parents' driving poorly, get a doctor's opinion and have them do a driver's test.

Putting off a difficult conversation does not solve anything except making you anxious about needing to do it at some future point.

Might there be any predictable or unintended consequences? In this case, it might be having to find alternative transportation, which is predictable, or that your parents would not wish to spend the money and would instead stay at home more, which would be unintended.

Putting off a difficult conversation does not solve anything except making you anxious about needing to do it at some future point. The only time it may be helpful to wait is when a problem has a chance to resolve itself in due time.

You won't look forward to a difficult conversation if your plan is only to be heard, but you can look forward to finding out how the other person thinks, feels and prefers to act. Then, and only then, will you be able to paraphrase their position, ensuring that you have understood correctly and thus begin a true dialogue. Always being ready to either change your mind, compromise or stick by what you believe is in the best interest of both parties.

Form meets function

Ligne Roset
showcases furniture with radical design

Philippe Nigro's Confluence chairs are characterized by an interwoven yin-yang, puzzle-type effect.

By MEAGHAN CLARK | VILLAGE NEWS

Just walk past Ligne Roset's furniture boutique at 7726 Girard Ave. and you won't be able to take your eyes off its window — front and center is Philippe Nigro's Confluence chairs.

"[Passersby] have to look at it. They're taken by the style," showroom manager Cher Battoe said. "It's just such a clever idea."

The conversation piece doesn't just spark a conversation by its construction (the chairs are actually built to form together where loungers can face each other) but incites one because of its drastic design.

Considered a "trailblazer in terms of the new trend for 'counterforms,' as characterized by the interwoven yin-yang or puzzle-type effect," as Battoe describes, the Confluence designs are truly drastic. What defines this structure even more so is its wide color palette, perfect for centering a room or extracting excitement from a small space.

For the reason of frugality, French-based Ligne Roset went with a theme of "form meets function," where designs played not only a purpose but an emotional aesthetic. With bright colors and futuristic designs, the company's European designers have brought the simplicity of the chair or wall adorning and transformed it into a statement. For many, much like the Confluence sofa, the designs are pleasing to those "lovers of radical design ... who are seduced first and foremost by the freedom of posture and unheard-of conviviality," Battoe said.

Still, buyers are being more cautious with their money, purchasing for a purpose.

As Ligne Roset's season lies between fall and winter (the 2010 designs are currently being showcased in European furniture fairs in Milan, Paris and Cologne), designs must stand out early. Roman and Erwan Bouroullec's Clouds, in collaboration with Kvadrat, accomplishes this with its drastic compulsion for the extraordinary. This 3-D "tile concept" was designed as a room divider or wall garnish. Combining color and design in one, this piece remains multi-functional as home owners thrive for designs that push boundaries while additionally serving a purpose.

PASSION FOR ART

'The Exuberance of Creativity' exhibit opens

By WILL BOWEN | VILLAGE NEWS

Some people think that you can not understand a work of art without knowing the artist's background or the work's context of production. Others believe that an art piece generates its own meaning, independent of the author. Still others hold that meaning is all in the eyes of the beholder.

Nowhere are these issues more poignantly apparent than in examining the work of abstract expressionist painters such as Harold Frank, a collection of whose — numbering some 40 pieces — opened on March 20 (running until June 15 at the K. Nathan Gallery at 7723 Fay Ave. This is a unique opportunity to view an important but little-known artist whose work rarely appears on the market.

Harold Frank (1921-1995) was a Beverly Hills-based abstract painter, born in England, reared in the tenements of New York City and educated at several fine institutions, from UCLA to the Pratt Institute, who won many awards during his lifetime. Chief among his influences were Richard Diebenkorn and Willem de Kooning.

Frank's school — abstract expressionism — was an American post World War II art movement that achieved worldwide attention. It is exemplified by artists such as Jackson Pollock dripping paints on a floor canvas. In abstract expressionism the emphasis is on spontaneous, automatic or unconscious creation, with the painting seen as an event as well as a final product, which is, in turn, pure and liberated from value. The physical actions of the artist or the way paint is applied is important, as Frank expressed, "I use a fast and fluid brush stroke."

The paintings on exhibit at K. Nathan are chiefly wildly colorful, abstract, buxom female figures and indefinable female heads. Since Frank lived a solitary, monkish existence shunning human contact and was said to be incapable of sustained relationships, art critic Sandie Stern speculated that "by endlessly painting the female form Frank was able to overcome this void ... perhaps his artwork gave him some solace." However, Keith Kelman, the owner of K. Nathan Gallery, said that this was unimportant and "the female form and face were just the vehicle for Frank to explore techniques, materials, and concepts."

Nonetheless, Frank's own words are revealing: "As I get caught up in a painting, there seems to be a chemical change — I feel a shortness of breath and excitement. This is the exuberance of creativity. It is passionate, impulsive."

Kelman has acquired a sizeable collection of Frank's work and is passing on the opportunity to acquire Frank at a very reasonable rate which may be a wonderful investment as he becomes better known. Some fine examples of the plein air painter, Alfred Mitchell, such as "Row Boats at La Jolla Shores," will also be on display.

Harold Frank's paintings on exhibit at K. Nathan Gallery are chiefly abstract, buxom female figures and indefinable female heads.

Penny's Penthouse and a Block Party

Starry, starry nights

with Vincent Andrunas

"Marvin Hamlisch and Kevin Cole, two of the greatest musicians in the whole world, are here tonight," said Ward Gill, San Diego Symphony executive director. The occasion was an intimate "little" fundraiser for the Symphony, held at Penny Wing's stunning downtown penthouse apartment. It was a top-class wine dinner featuring food from Pamplemousse Grille paired with Quintessa wines. They'd planned for 80 guests, but so many of the Symphony's extremely generous supporters clamored to come to this attractive event that they ended up seating 133 and still had to turn some away.

In much of Penny's spectacular penthouse, the ceilings are two stories high. It's a beautiful place, filled with fine art and tasteful décor, with sweeping city and bay views. The invitation promised "dinner under the stars," which it was, literally. After tasty hors d'oeuvres and the first two Quintessa wines, guests dined at tables along a large terrace, under a latticework of woven wood set with tiny white lights that twinkled like stars.

Winemaker Charles Thomas made all the wines that accompanied dinner and had a hand in the two served during the reception. During dinner, he spoke lovingly about the wines, which received high praise from the guests. Jeff Strauss' fabulous menu, presented in four courses, was accompanied by seven wines. Some courses came with two vintages of the same wine, the differences in successive vintages being readily apparent. The sensuously-attuned Symphony crowd praised both the food and the wines.

After dinner (and a Bill Menish live auction), guests were seated in the penthouse for musical entertainment. Marvin Hamlisch started with "The Days of Wine and Roses," followed by a spontaneously-improvised song about the evening's event. He called Penny "a lovely hostess and a fun chick."

Kevin Cole — a superb pianist — wowed the audience with a medley of Gershwin tunes and other great music.

Marvin returned to the keyboard with a quip about being the bar pianist at the U.S. Grant. "Next time I see you I'll give you a nickel, because you're worth more than just one penny," he sang to our hostess.

Post-concert, guests returned to the terrace for dessert, two more fine Quintessa wines and that wonderful view. The event raised money for the Symphony's educational outreach program, whose goal is to reach 50,000 San Diego children next year. This was an exceptional evening — the Symphony knows how to show patrons a really great time while financing a worthwhile cause.

The Reuben H. Fleet Science Center's annual "OH! Zone" gala had a "Block Party" theme this year. The event gave adults a chance to release their inner child in the spirit of hands-on focused interaction that has become synonymous with the Fleet. Thousands of identical, precisely-cut, plank-shaped blocks were provided, and guests were encouraged to build objects with them during the cocktail hour. Several carefully-assembled towers reached great heights, reinforcing the Fleet theme, "Building children's futures."

Servers in white lab coats carried racks of "test tubes" filled with a solution of vodka and citrus. Tray-passed hors d'oeuvres were varied and imaginative. After the reception, partygoers enjoyed a special presentation in the IMAX domed theater (which boasts a new, improved screen). The film clips, by Sean Casey of the Discovery Channel's "Storm Chasers" series, came from seven years of chasing tornados in a tank-like vehicle. The excerpts were only a few minutes long, but very intense. The adventurous filmmaker gets footage that will blow you away! The full-length film is tentatively titled "Tornado Alley."

After a very well-prepared dinner, guests explored several "zones" of entertainment. Some played Rock Band Hero on the IMAX theater's big screen. Elsewhere, a DJ spun disks for dancing and a photographer offered souvenir photographs. Most popular was the casino, where guests gambled "FleetBucks" at blackjack, roulette, craps and poker, winning tickets for a drawing at evening's end.

Event proceeds, which included a School Scholarship Auction, will help provide the Fleet field trip experience to more than 100,000 local students and teachers annually. Their program has reached nearly a million students over the past eight years, reflecting their mission statement: "...to inspire lifelong learning by furthering the public understanding and enjoyment of science and technology."

"Timeless pieces never cease to go out of style or look dated," Battoe said.

Fusing concepts from the Fireside Chair and Armchair, "the comfort of [the Archie] is far more superior than the design," Battoe added.

With a high back and seat proportions that mold with the body, Archie's concept fills the need of a consumer buy that both provides and entertains. The colors in the design are equally as vast for the season, from chartreuse to citron.

YOU ARE BEING SUED BY PLAINTIFF:
(LO ESTA DEMANDANDO EL DEMANDANTE):
Francis Ann Nguyen

You have 30 CALENDAR DAYS after this summons and legal papers are served on you to file a written response at this court and have a copy served on the plaintiff. A letter or phone call will not protect you. Your written response must be in proper legal form if you want the court to hear your case. There may be a court form that you can use for your response. You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), your county library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money, and property may be taken without further warning from the court. There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may want to call an attorney referral service. If you cannot afford an attorney, you may be eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program. You can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association NOTE: The court has a statutory lien for waived fees and costs on any settlement or arbitration award of $10,000 or more in a civil case. The court's lien must be paid before the court will dismiss the case.

Si no puede pagar la cuota de presentación pida al secretario de la corte que le dé un formulario de exención de pago de cuotas. Si no presenta su respuesta a tiempo, puede perder el caso por incumplimiento y la corte le podrá quitar su sueldo, dinero y bienes sin más advertencia. Hay otros requisitos legales.
