Playing in cars

'The Car Plays' ride into La Jolla Playhouse

By Patricia Walsh

In our technology era of intimacy interrupted, "The Car Plays: San Diego" drives into town for a site-based theater experience at the La Jolla Playhouse — staged up-close-and-personal in cars.

"Expect the unexpected," said Michael Shutt, who has acted and directed in The Car Plays since its 2006 inception. "What's amazing is how intimate the shows are. The audience comes right into your world."

The Moving Arts' production, conceived by Paul Stein, is a series of 10-minute plays in which audiences of two move from car to car to experience five works by different playwrights. Carhops usher the audience to a car, the doors close and a drama — or comedy — unfolds. Ten minutes later, the doors open and the audience moves to a new car with new actors and a new story. In the course of an hour, the audience takes in five plays.

"The Car Plays: San Diego," which runs from Feb. 23 to March 4, is the second in the Playhouse's Without Walls series. The production, funded by a grant from The James Irvine Foundation, will feature work by four commissioned playwrights from UC San Diego's Graduate Playwriting Program, seven local directors and Moving Arts' playwrights.

Sara Wagner, a "Car Plays" actor and director, said using a car as a stage creates a new theatrical dimension.

"It's like you're doing a film scene in a car, but instead of a camera and a director,

Scripps climate scientists to share stage with Dalai Lama at UCSD

By PATRICIA WALSH | VILLAGE NEWS

Two world-renowned climate scientists from Scripps Institution of Oceanography will share the stage with the Dalai Lama when he visits San Diego for a symposium entitled "Compassion Without Borders" on April 18 and 19. The spiritual leader's first trip to the city was arranged by and will include lectures at UC San Diego, San Diego State University and University of San Diego.

At UCSD, Richard Somerville, a professor and theoretical meteorologist, and Veerabhadran Ramanathan, professor of atmospheric and climate sciences, will join the Dalai Lama in a panel discussion on "The Global Impact of Climate Change: Balance through Universal Responsibility, Compassion and Human Consciousness." Tickets for the event go on sale Feb. 22 at www.dalailamasandiego.org.

Somerville, an expert on computer simulations of the atmosphere, was recently in the heat of debate over climate change after an op-ed column in the Wall Street Journal titled "No Need to Panic About Global Warming" debunked the severity of global warming. Somerville joined 37 other scientists from around the world to refute the editorial in a letter to the editor.

At 70, Somerville is currently working on the history of climate science. He has received awards from the American Meteorological Society for his research and his book, "The Forging Air: Understanding Environmental Change." He is a coordinating lead author for the 2007 Fourth Assessment Report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC). The IPCC shared the 2007 Nobel Peace Prize with Al Gore.

La Jolla Village News: When you received your Ph. D. in meteorology from New York University in 1966 did you see yourself in the role of environmental communicator?

Richard Somerville: Absolutely not. I was a weather buff. I had been a nut about the weather since I was a little kid. I had a weather badge in Boy Scouts. I had a weather station in the back yard. I thought I was going to be a weather forecaster or have something to do with weather forecasting. When I came to Scripps in 1979 I got involved in climate and for a long time I did just research as a scientist. The whole idea of outreach and communication dawned in mid-career.

La Jolla mobilizes to save post office

By PATRICIA WALSH | VILLAGE NEWS

The race is on to save the La Jolla post office building.

In a rare meeting of the minds, civic and business groups throughout the Village have locked arms and formed a task force through the La Jolla Historical Society to preserve the post office building at 1140 Wall St. The goal is to keep the building as is, Belle Baranceanu murals and all, and the postal operations right where they are.

The group rallied Feb. 4 on the Historical Society lawn to officially launch its plan. District 1 City Councilwoman Sherri Lightner spoke and led the crowd of more than 100 people in a "save our post office" chant just as the 10 a.m. bells chimed from St. James by-the-Sea

Girard to dip no more?

James Alcorn of Alcorn & Benton Architects reintroduced the Prospect Belvedere Restructure plan, also dubbed the “Girard Dip” — a proposal to restructure the confluence of Prospect Street and Girard Avenue.

The LJTC put together a recommendation called the “Downtown Master Plan” 22 years ago, which included a proposal for the restructuring of the steep dive at the intersection of Girard Avenue and Prospect Street. The proposal later became a part of the La Jolla Community Plan, as well as the updated community plan in 2004, said Alcorn.

Under present circumstances, Prospect Street dips seaward just before meeting up with lower Girard Avenue.

“The idea here is to make a through motion along Prospect and lower Girard, becoming a ‘T,’” he said.

The project, as conceptualized, would also include a pedestrian promenade along Prospect Street from Herschel to Girard Avenues, relocate 15 parking spots and create an overlook over Scripps Park and the Pacific.

“The idea of having a center of La Jolla is something that both the merchant’s association seems to be enthusiastic over [and] you all [Town Council] approved it 22 years ago,” Alcorn said. “I just wanted to make sure that there’s nothing in the woodwork that I’m overlooking.”

Alcorn and his associates hope to find a private sponsor or sponsors to fund the project.

Although a full analysis and further drawings are required before getting an exact cost estimate, “it’s not a great amount of money in today’s standards,” he said.

At the LJTC’s meeting on Feb. 9, trustees voted in favor of the Prospect-Belvedere pedestrian promenade project and assigned a liaison, trustee Mike Dershowitz, to submit ongoing reports to the Town Council regarding the project’s progress.

The laws, they are a changin’

Trustees will vote on amendments to the LJTC bylaws at the March 1 meeting.

Trustee Peter Wulff, chair of the Bylaws Committee, emphasized two important points regarding the proposed bylaw changes.

First, trustees must consider whether or not to change term limit allowances from six to nine years. Currently, trustees are termed out at six years, but they can return after a one-year absence if they are elected again.

Second, trustees must determine whether to adopt bylaw or code of ethics changes based on a majority vote — which is the current voting procedure — or by two-thirds vote.

“There really hasn’t been much change to our bylaws in the last 60 years, so this is something that really needs to get done for the future of our organization,” said LJTC President Rick Wildman.

CIVICreport Bird Rock Community Council, Feb. 7

By BLAKE BUNCH | VILLAGE NEWS

The Bird Rock Community Council (BRCC) met Feb. 7 to update concerned citizens regarding a slew of break-ins, a proposed Chase Bank location and to perform the annual budget review.

Crime report update

Michelle Fulks, the Bird Rock Neighborhood Watch chairwoman, along with officer Bannon of Northern Division, elaborated on the series of burglaries from November to mid-January.

“There have been 10 burglaries since November, so we decided to call a meeting in direct response to this problem,” said Fulks. “One burglary was domestic, and detectives did a fantastic job in cracking the case early.”

The nine other cases, according to detectives, are being viewed as unrelated.

Bannon noted that most of the break-ins have occurred during daylight hours, and recommended that residents be wary of people moving door-to-door around their neighborhood.

“The detectives were able to nab a suspect who was trying to use gift cards they stole from a home,” said Bannon. “In this particular case, it was a nanny who had staged the same thing a year or so prior. Currently, we are still working on the other cases.”

Chase Bank proposed location

Steve Laub, the Land Solutions consultant to Chase Bank for the Bird Rock project, discussed concerns regarding the bank’s move. Chase’s ultimate goal is to open a location at the former Bird Rock Surf Shop, which would require a neighborhood-use permit change from a retail location to a service location, he said. The big question concerning the BRCC, citizens and Chase Bank is: “How does the community feel about the move?”

Although no official voting action was taken, none in attendance outwardly opposed the proposed location.

“Chase wants to be part of the community, and the closest branches are two miles or so between Pacific Beach and La Jolla,” said Laub. “The property is too small to create a much larger building.”

Roundabout roundup

BRCC President Joe Parker delved into some ongoing projects, including the pipeline project in Bird Rock, which entails about eight miles of sewer.

“When it was decided to do the undergrounding project, areas were picked out of a hat,” said Parker. “The

La Jollans turned heroes

Two La Jolla women were honored at the 14th annual Local Heroes Awards show on Feb. 8 at the Balboa Theater.

Barbara Bry and Edith Eger were among 17 San Diegans chosen to receive the honor for their dedication to enrich the lives of others.

The honorees were announced as part of the 2011 Cultural Diversity Partnership, which recognizes and pays tribute to local heroes from eight diverse communities who are making a difference by improving their workplace, profession, neighborhood, community, region and the world. The year-long celebration of diversity is a project of Union Bank and KPBS.

Schick signs on for more

The La Jolla Symphony & Chorus (LJS&C) announced the renewal of a five-year contract with music director Steven Schick.

“Steve has brought an incredible infusion of talent, energy and new ideas to the organization,” said LJS&C board president Stephen Marsh. “Each season seems more exciting than the one before. We are very pleased that Steve’s commitment to our musicians, to our audience and to the San Diego community remains so strong.”

Schick, a professor of music at UC San Diego and an internationally renowned percussionist, started as LJS&C’s director in April 2007.

Teaming up to clean up

By MORGAN CARMODY | VILLAGE NEWS

Proving that it's sometimes preferable to go au naturel, members of University City High School's (UCHS) Roots and Shoots club teamed up with Friends of Rose Canyon on Feb. 12 to give native plants a boost in the Rose Canyon Open Space Park.

Volunteers from the two organizations cleared non-native plant species, making way for new native oak trees to grow. They also planted willow and mule fat in some of the more eroded areas in an effort to counter erosion.

The park, volunteers said, provides some much-needed natural solace in the midst of the city's hustle and bustle.

"I love the canyon because I come several times a week to walk and I can pretend I'm not in the city," said Friends of Rose Canyon board member Gretchen Nell.

The roughly 400-acre Rose Canyon cuts a path through University City, meandering from the 805 freeway west toward I-5 before plunging south and ending at Highway 52. Friends of Rose Canyon has been hard at work preserving the space for nearly 10 years.

"It was initially founded to stop the Regents Road Bridge Project ... [but] now we have more of a focus on saving and preserving the canyon," said Deborah Knight, executive director of the organization.

The group has received grants from organizations like San Diego Gas & Electric and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to help continue engaging the roughly 4,000 students within walking distance of the canyon.

"We want to get kids to connect with nature," Knight said. She emphasized the importance of the work being done in the area. "Rose Creek runs into Mission Bay, so what we do here helps protect the overall water quality in Mission Bay."

Friends of Rose Canyon protects the canyon from threats to the open space — including the constant risks that increased population and traffic woes pose in the form of widening streets that threaten to encroach upon the park. Aside from the proposal for the Regents Road Bridge, which was stopped in its tracks in 2010, the group has battled other proposals — like the one for a trolley route through the canyon.

"We always have to pay attention," Knight said, explaining that the organization is constantly on the lookout for issues that may pose a problem to the canyon — and is constantly searching for alternatives solutions.

The Roots and Shoots program, founded by Dr. Jane Goodall and 16 Tanzanian students in 1991, is a nationwide organization that aims to engage young people in projects focused on environmental and social justice.

"I saw Dr. Goodall lecture at UCSD and thought UCHS could benefit from Roots and Shoots," said Tara Howell, UCHS faculty advisor. The UCHS branch of Roots and Shoots, she said, was a result of combining the former Earth Club and the Invisible Children Club — programs that were both experiencing dwindling numbers at the time.

As such, Roots and Shoots has two club presidents — and 27 student members, with four years under its belt. The club doesn't limit itself to environmental problems, nor does it focus solely on local issues.

"Aside from working with Friends of Rose Canyon, the Invisible Children branch of the club works to help build schools in Uganda," Howell said. The group also works with organizations like San Diego Coastkeeper for beach cleanups and is trying to organize volunteer opportunities with the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

"I love the dedication of the students ...," Howell said. "They are very self motivated."

That dedication was present at the recent Rose Canyon cleanup, as students worked to clear dead brush and trash from the area. The work wasn't easy — as UCHS senior Mckenzie Forgey discovered when she tried to free a discarded Big Wheel Bike from under a block of cement — but the payoff was worth it.

"It's worth more than all the gold in the Golden Triangle," Knight said.

Which of these costly homeseller mistakes will you make when you sell your home?

SAN DIEGO, A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9-Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their home and become disillusioned and — worse — financially disadvantaged when they put their home on the market.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9-Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar."

What's the scoop? Highlighting La Jolla merchants

Finally — enjoy evenings over the cove at Brockton Villa

By MARIKO LAMB | VILLAGE NEWS

For more than 20 years, Brockton Villa has offered guests fresh seasonal fare, great customer service and a spectacular vista overlooking La Jolla Cove. And as if that weren't enough, the restaurant's executive chef, Mareyja Sisbaro, has rolled out a winter menu, marking the launch of the seaside dining venue's year-round dinner offerings.

The longtime La Jolla favorite previously only offered breakfast and lunch items during the winter off-season. Due to a high demand from locals, regular customers and concierges, Brockton Villa's owner Megan Heine determined it was time to open the dinner doors for good.

"We followed daylight savings in late fall, closing nights except for private events once the time change occurred, and reopening in the spring," she said. "We will probably have a dark night on Monday to keep up with training, scheduled maintenance, etc. It's hard on a little 100-year-old building to serve from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., seven days and nights a week."

Sisbaro has pulled out all the stops to create a unique and delicious winter menu that fuses the restaurant's signature fresh local fare with seasonal comfort ingredients — a perfect match for the restaurant's cozy atmosphere and stunning vantage point over the Pacific.

"We have such a great winter dinner menu — very unique and delicious," said Heine. "Some favorites this year include the oysters 'Brockefeller,' citrus-brined pork chop, seafood, as always — cioppino, sea bass, salmon, scallops — and our 'Epic Chowder.'"

Other menu options include unforgettable items like the classic paperdelle bolognese with pancetta; oven roasted tomato, mushroom medley and grana padano; petit filet with Maytag blue ravioli served with roasted winter root vegetables; charred broccoli rabe and port demi-glaze; and ginger lemon-grass roasted chicken served atop curry spiced quinoa, golden raisins, toasted almonds, apricot chutney, roasted red pepper emulsion and tzatziki.

A warm winter drinks menu will supplement the entree menu this season with salted caramel lattes, s'mores espresso mochas, spiced apple ciders, hot buttered rum and other after-dinner sippers that are sure to warm any soul, particularly when served alongside Brockton Villa's famed Coast Toast a la mode with a choice between cinnamon or vanilla gelato.

As the restaurant marches closer to the much-anticipated sale of its millionth Coast Toast, Brockton Villa will offer a free T-shirt and complimentary Coast Toast for every 500th order. Guests can also take advantage of the restaurant's new BIP — "Brockton Important Person" — rewards card, which diners can use each time they visit to rack up $10 for each $100 spent and receive emails about promotions and events at the restaurant.

Mt. Soledad cross again at the crux of debate

By MARIKO LAMB | VILLAGE NEWS

The Mt. Soledad Veterans Memorial has undergone more than two decades of legal debate about whether or not the 29-foot cross atop the war memorial, which sits on federally owned land, is a government endorsement of religion, thus violating the Establishment Clause of the U.S. Constitution.

The Liberty Institute, a nonprofit organization dedicated to limiting government and promoting Judeo-Christian values, filed a writ of certiorari on Feb. 9 asking the U.S. Supreme Court to take up the long-standing case.

The Texas-based nonprofit filed the petition on behalf of the Mt. Soledad Memorial Association, which maintains the memorial, in the hopes of overturning the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals' decision last year that ruled the cross unconstitutional.

"We conclude that the memorial, presently configured and as a whole, primarily conveys a message of government endorsement of religion that violates the Establishment Clause," wrote Judge Margaret McKeown in the court's published opinion. "The result does not mean that the memorial could not be modified to pass constitutional muster nor does it mean that no cross can be part of this veterans memorial. We take no position on those issues."

She further indicated in the opinion that simply because there is a religious symbol on public land does not mean there is a constitutional violation; however, the cross — at 29 feet tall, 12 feet wide and perched atop a 14-foot base — was deemed as the "defining feature" on the war memorial and violates the First Amendment to the Constitution, establishing freedom of religion.

"[T]his war memorial — with its imposing cross — stands as an outlier among war memorials, even those incorporating crosses. Contrary to any popular notion, war memorials in the United States have not traditionally included nor centered on the cross, and, according to the parties' evidence, there is no comparable memorial on public land in which the cross holds such a pivotal and imposing stature, dwarfing by every measure the secular plaques and other symbols commemorating veterans," she said. "The use of such a distinctively Christian symbol to honor all veterans sends a strong message of endorsement and exclusion. It suggests that the government is so connected to a particular religion that it treats that religion's symbolism as its own, as universal."

Representatives from the Mt. Soledad Memorial Association and Liberty Institute maintain the judges erred in their decision ruling the cross unconstitutional.

The Liberty Institute held a rally at the memorial site on Feb. 9, relaunching its "Don't Tear Me Down" campaign, an effort to spread public awareness and galvanize support for the 58-year-old San Diego landmark and other memorials that bear religious imagery.

"Let's put an end to these attacks on memorials that bring pain to veterans, and go back to celebrating and respecting what these soldiers have done for our country," said Kelly Shackelford, president and CEO of Liberty Institute, calling the removal of the cross a "move that would anger many military veterans."

Shackelford said removing the cross on Mt. Soledad would set precedent for other "battlefields" where religious symbols on veterans' memorials are at stake. "This isn't the only attack like this going on right now," he said. "If this cross comes down — this is a 29-foot cross — what do you do with the 24-foot cross in Arlington Memorial Cemetery, the Cross of Sacrifice? What do you do with the 10-foot cross there, the Argonne Cross? What do you do to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier that says 'known but to God?' What do you do to literally every community of every state of this country that has crosses and Stars of David throughout?"

William Kellogg, chairman and CEO of the Mt. Soledad Memorial Association, said the memorial site in its entirety must remain to honor veterans and share their stories.

"This veterans memorial is unique. It is a significant destination for local residents as well as visitors from around the world. Thousands visit the memorial every month and they walk the walls, so to speak, to read the stories of honored veterans," he said. "The original cross, together with the walls, the flagpole and the walkway, form an integrated monument that means everything to so many families. It must remain as it is and where it is. To do otherwise would be an unforgivable insult to those who sacrificed everything to protect our way of life."

In addition to supporters of the cross remaining at the site, the rally also drew several protesters who wanted the Court of Appeals' decision to be upheld, calling for the removal of the religious symbol.

"We want to protect the religious liberty of all Americans," said Debbie Allen, president of the San Diego chapter of Americans United for Separation of Church and State, an interfaith organization dedicated to preserving religious freedom for all. "A cross conveys a sectarian message that does not represent all deceased veterans."

Allen said the right to religious liberty is not secure if the government presumes to promote religion over non-religion or favors one faith over another.

"AU believes that our rights are not secure when the state taxes you to pay for someone else's religion or when the government appropriates and displays the symbols of a faith that you may not share," she said. "We are not saying anything against memorializing the service of our veterans. We think that memorializing service and sacrifice is important and should continue. Americans United would favor a symbol that did not further divide our citizens, but rather unite as many as possible."

The Supreme Court is expected to decide whether or not to take the case by June. If the request is accepted, the battle of the cross's presence will continue at the highest U.S. court. If the request is denied, "That's it," said Shackelford. "The case is over, and the cross would come down."

A rally at Mt. Soledad on Feb. 9 drew demonstrators on both sides of the polarizing issue of the war memorial's 29-foot cross.

you've got the theater audience sitting behind you," she said. "When you separate that big audience into little groups of two you get a very specific personal response and it's very immediate."

Because the audience is new each time the play starts — five times in an hour, three runs a night — Shutt and Wagner find it helps keep every performance fresh.

"Every set of two people brings a different energy and the energy is palpable," Shutt said. "Whether they know it or not, they're affecting the course of the play."

Wagner agreed.

"Their different reactions give me a new experience every time I do the play," she said. "People cry. People talk back. People are stone silent. People even do their hair and makeup. And maybe they've had a few too many cocktails."

"It's a challenge as an actor to remain truthful to the piece without feeling you have to earn somebody's attention because maybe they're not quite present in the car," she said.

Nature also plays a part in "The Car Plays," which take place rain or shine, day or night.

"There's a reason to do site-specific theater in a less-controlled environment," Wagner said. "We're in the elements. People walk by. Planes fly overhead. It might rain. It's always surprising in a good way."

Stein was inspired to create "The Car Plays" while sitting in Los Angeles traffic. He couldn't help but notice a couple in another car arguing in sign language. He lingered on their exchange to try to figure out what the story was and got the idea for plays in cars. When Moving Arts lost its stage space in 2006, he seized the opportunity to keep the company going and launched "The Car Plays."

What makes a car play successful is that it is something that only happens in a car, Stein said. The same play would not translate to stage. Vehicles also help define characters — a byproduct of our car culture dictum that says you are what you drive.

"Think about people who drive a particular car," Stein said. "What does that say about a character?"

At the Playhouse, a taxi and a town car will be in the mix.

Stein recalled one audience member who put a seat belt on.

"Which is OK, even though the car is not going anywhere," he said. "But once the door opens, you have to get out."

If you go...

Fireworks in the works

District 1 City Councilwoman Sherri Lightner is working with the San Diego Regional Chamber of Commerce to change the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) to exempt special events that are less than 48 hours from having to undergo environmental review, announced Lightner's representative Erin Demorest.

"It's so important for the entire city of San Diego — and to La Jolla in particular — to be able to have exemptions for special events where you don't have to go through this onerous environmental review because that would add thousands of dollars to the cost of your event and months to your permitting process," Demorest said. "The La Jolla Fireworks Show and a lot of special events that are near and dear to us are at stake, so we want to do everything we can to try to preserve those."

For more information or to get involved, visit www.saveourevents.org.

Food trucks may get the grade

County Supervisor Ron Roberts is working with the county Department of Environmental Health to determine the feasibility of giving letter grades for food trucks.

"With gourmet food trucks' growing popularity, it concerns the supervisor that patients cannot confirm the safety of the food just as they can at a brick-and-mortar restaurant," said Roberts' representative, Portland Bates. "The county does not track food truck and food-cart inspections electronically as it does with restaurants. Only paper forms are used instead, so there is no handy way to identify whether the vehicles are carrying food safety standards. The letter-grade system will assist in this process."

Bates said the county's Department of Environmental Health regularly inspects more than 1,100 food trucks and coffee carts to ensure that food is stored at proper temperatures, there are adequate hand washing facilities on site and other services are properly sanitized.

"The goal is to help the public distinguish legal trucks and those which are operating illegally," Bates said. "In these tough economic times, the last thing we want to do is stifle business, especially business growth, so we're going to make sure we keep costs as low as possible in doing this."

Also, for those who missed it, Roberts' full State of the County Address can be seen at www.sdcounty.ca.gov.

Post office gets LJTC's vote

LJTC trustees voted unanimously to support all community efforts to preserve the post office on Wall Street.

The Save the La Jolla Post Office Community Task Force has come up with a three-part plan to keep the Wall Street post office intact at its current location and preserve the mural inside.

Save the La Jolla Post Office meets every Friday afternoon at the La Jolla Historical Society. For more information, email savelajollapostoffice@gmail.com.

Around town

• The La Jolla Traffic & Transportation committee approved the ITU World Triathlon street closures on May 11 and 12 and voted to reject any request for valet parking until the committee has drafted a valet master plan, announced LJTC Vice President Rob Hildt.

• The La Jolla Planned District Ordinance Committee voted unanimously to approve signage for Bird Rock Fine Wine and the Rush Indoor Cycle Studio in Bird Rock, announced LJTC trustee Mike Dershowitz.

• Independent La Jolla filed to become a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization, announced Independent La Jolla president Cindy Greatrex.

• The next Sunsetter event will take place at the Steakhouse at Azul, 1250 Prospect St., on Feb. 16 from 5 to 7 p.m. This month's community happy hour will host special guest sommelier "Will the Wine Guy," who will be pouring wine for guests at the event. The cost of attendance is just $5 for members, $10 for nonmembers or free for new members who sign up and pay dues at the event.

• Warwick's recently signed on to offer a discount for the "Shop Local, Shop La Jolla" reward card program, making it one of more than 30 local businesses to offer a discount for LJTC members.

2nd Vice President John Weinstein urged members and trustees to participate in expanding the program by talking to their neighbors and local businesses about LJTC membership and the one-of-a-kind deals and discounts offered by the "Shop Local, Shop La Jolla" program.

Membership cards are available at LJTC meetings, SunSetter happy hours and at the LJTC office, located at 7734 Herschel Ave. For pick-ups from the office, please call for availability.

For a full listing of discounts offered or to sign up to become a LJTC member, visit www.lajollatowncouncil.org.

idea was to have a fair distribution of that project among the various neighborhoods of La Jolla."

The BRCC, Parker said, recently made an application to the Business Improvement District (BID) Council for a grant for special funds regarding merchants and infrastructure. The day of the meeting, the BRCC received notice it had been approved for the grant, which would be in the ballpark of anywhere from $5,550 to $8,500.

The BRCC has brought up the notion of a "locals only" card in past meetings. The goal of the card is to create cooperation between the BRCC and local merchants for deals in area shops and restaurants. Members would sign up for the card would receive offers and specials from local merchants, who would have a direct way to market to residents. The idea has been in the works for a few years, and a similar program recently began in La Jolla Village. The program, Parker said, has begun to take force.

On a lighter note, Parker said that as early as March, the BRCC would be meeting openly for happy hour.

MAD Review

"We are trying to educate the community about the different organizations throughout La Jolla," said Parker. "The BRCC is the designated contractor to manage the Maintenance Assessment District (MAD). MAD extends up to La Jolla Mesa, and when they put on these hats, they are a contractor with the City."

POST OFFICE

Episcopal Church. Task force members spoke, rally goers signed petitions and some La Jollans shared their post office memories, videotaped for posterity by photographer Daniel Soderberg.

The task force is now waiting to hear when the U.S. Postal Service will hold a community meeting. The group has requested Feb. 29, according to Leslie Davis, task force leader. Postal Service spokeswoman Eva Jackson said a date has not yet been set.

At the rally, Davis presented three scenarios for keeping the building.

"The post office is much, much more than a post office, it's the heart of our community," she said. Plan A, she said, would stop the closure and sale of the building, while Plan B would buy the property through a preservation fund and lease space back to the post office. Plan C would find a buyer who would preserve the building.

The USPS announced on Jan. 10 its need to sell the post office, built in 1935, to raise much-needed capital. The USPS reported a net loss of $5.1 billion last year and must reduce its operating costs by $20 billion to return to profitability by 2015.

Soon after the plan to sell the building was made public, Ellen Merewether seeded the effort to save the building with a $10,000 donation to the La Jolla Historical Society Preservation Fund.

"I'm really, really tired of seeing beautiful buildings in La Jolla knocked down to put in condos," she said. Since her initial donation, another $6,000 has been raised. "We would love to find a group of donors or another nonprofit to partner with to save the building."

The task force has also created a website, www.savelajollapostoffice.org, as well as a Facebook page, www.facebook.com/savethelajollapostoffice. Signatures are being collected to send a petition to the Postal Regulatory Commission. The petition requests that the La Jolla post office be considered a closure — as opposed to a relocation — in the USPS' nationwide downsizing.

"Relocations have less visibility and less process," Davis said.

More than 600 signatures were collected at the rally. The petition is available for signing at the Historical Society, Mondays through Saturdays, as well as at Warwick's Bookstore and Pannikin Coffee & Tea.

"It's a tough fight," Davis said. "There's very little transparency. Where's the information and definition as to why the building is being sold? It's all moving so fast."

Still, Davis said she remains optimistic.

"I expect the post office is going to stay exactly where it is, in that build-

Thinking about Selling Your Home This Spring?

Experts Say: Start planning for it 60 to 90 days before you sell.

A recent interview with Jeffrey Middaugh of Coldwell Banker, revealed several helpful tips for anyone who is thinking of selling their San Diego County home.

Many Home Owners think they can't sell their home in today's real estate market. The fact is over 33,000 homes sold in San Diego County in 2011. The good news is you don't need to sell below market. With the right marketing plan you can sell at 2012 market prices.

One secret to getting top dollar is list with an agent who will market your property to the entire world.

There's a free report available that shows you the things that buyers most look for in a home, and how to make your house irresistible to buyers. You'll learn;

- Why buyers love model homes and how to make your house show like one.
- A $2 designer's secret that could net you $5,000 to $10,000 more when you sell your home.
- How to sell your home without even putting it on the market.
- Three things you can do to get your house on a buyer's "must see" list.

Jeffrey has compiled a free report that can be mailed to you

How to Sell Your House for Top Dollar – Fast! This report details several specific ways to prepare your house for sale. Jeffrey says the information in this report is the secret to his 20 years of success in selling homes so quickly, and the reason he can guarantee to sell any house in less than 90 days.

Mr. Taco feels the heat

A fire broke out in Mr. Taco at 7918 Ivanhoe Ave. on Feb. 9 shortly before 5 p.m. The blaze was ignited by grease in the exhaust flue that set surrounding wood on fire, according to fire officials, and smoke damage was spread to neighboring businesses. One Mr. Taco patron said he had just ordered his food and when he returned from the restroom, the restaurant was filled with smoke. The fire caused about $1 million in damages, $500,000 to the structure itself and the rest to the building's contents.

DREAM STYLE

The Bridal Bazaar presented "Dream Style" Jan. 29 at the San Diego Convention Center, a showcase of style for a dream wedding. Guests were greeted by the sounds of Classic Brass and potential brides and grooms were offered ideas from 320 wedding professionals showcasing their wares.

The event, voted "San Diego's Best Bridal Show," featured three fashion shows with all the latest trends in wedding apparel. Singers and dancers, including a couple from Champion Ballroom Dance Studio, joined models on the runway and Mary Murphy from Fox's "So You Think You Can Dance" was on hand to sign autographs.

A featured upcoming trend was bridal gowns in blush and pink shades, including a standout pink floral-print taffeta gown from the Vera Wang Collection, sold exclusively at David's Bridal. PreVue Formal & Bridal presented a beaded gown that got a wild response from the audience, but the biggest crowd pleasers were the flower girls and ring bearers.

Veils and headpieces from The Feathered Head and men's fashions from Bridal & Tuxedo Galleria, Friar Tux Shop and The Men's Wearhouse also got a chance in the spotlight.

Other trends included two-tiered skirts and electrifying colors. Christina's showed many of these vibrant gowns in red, burgundy, cobalt blue and teal. The store features gowns for second-time brides, mothers of the bride and party dresses.

Henkaa, a Canadian-based company showed off its convertible bridesmaid dresses. "Henkaa," which means "change" in Japanese, demonstrated the versatility of its dresses and how they can be worn in a variety of ways.

The finale, during which models carried gold balls holding prizes that they threw into the audience, featured Brides By Demetrios.

The Spring Bridal Bazaar will be held April 29 at the Del Mar Fairgrounds. For information, visit www.bridalbazaar.com.

INSIDE THE COSTUME CLOSET

The San Diego History Center and The Costume Council in Balboa Park had a fabulous afternoon that began with the unveiling of a mini exhibit in the museum's atrium featuring unique pieces from Betty Mabée's closet. Mabée, who owned the Golden Eagle Farm (which bred champion thoroughbred racehorses) was well known for her charitable work, including her work with Voices of Children, Angels of Asel-tine Auxiliary, Gold Diggers and the San Diego History Center's Costume Council. Two of Mabée's Adolfo suits are on display at the center.

Edward Maeder, former Los Angeles County Museum of Art curator, has named the San Diego History Center one of the 10 best collections in the country. On Jan. 31, guests had a rare opportunity for an exclusive tour into the costume collection archives. The extensive collection houses more than 7,000 items. Guests were first shown the oldest piece — a pair of beautiful shoes from 1770. Another exceptional piece was a handwoven cape worn by Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant (Julia Dent Grant). It took two years to weave in 1840 and was cut and made into a shorter cape in about 1870.

Guests were also shown two ball gowns with intricate beading — one designed in about 1895 by Paris haute couture designer Jacques Doucet, owner of the major Paris courtier house, House of Doucet. Mrs. Oliver J. Stough wore the other gown to the opening of the Hotel Del Coronado in 1888. The tour finished with a Bloomer outfit from the Marston Family from 1845-1860.

The next event for The Costume Council will be a coach trip to Beverly Hills on March 14 to see the exhibit Il Teatro alla MODA: Theatre in Fashion, which will display Italian haute couture stage costume designers. For more information, email gselak@sandiegohistory.org.

LJVN: The recent Wall Street Journal editorial challenged the data on climate change and the need to take action. Why would anyone discredit the data?

RS: People who discourage the research have a variety of motives, none of which are scientific. We know that parts of the fossil fuel industry and oil companies and coal industry have funded a lot of the disinformation because it hurts their bottom line — in the same way the tobacco industry tried to denigrate research that connected smoking with disease.

That's not the only factor at work. Some people don't like the policies that they think might get implemented if the scientific findings were widely believed. So in many cases objection to climate science is essentially ideological and political masquerading as concerns about the science. If people don't believe in the science then the need for the policy goes away.

LJVN: Science and religion are two separate belief systems. But with the Dalai Lama's visit it looks like the values of both practices are crossing.

RS: It's wonderful when someone who is so widely admired and respected speaks out on issues like this. The Dalai Lama has said publicly that he thinks it's important for the world to find a solution to climate change. There are many religious leaders who have said that it resonates with the concept of stewardship, God's gift to humanity. In general, the message is about preserving the environment.

LJVN: Does having a different voice support what scientists are saying about climate change give the message more credibility?

RS: The message is much better received when it comes from sources that the listener trusts and respects. They'd rather not hear it from scientists ... we're not the trusted messengers.

Think for example about the campaign to get people to stop smoking. Political leaders, movie stars, the surgeon general and all kinds of widely respected people are coming together to deliver this same message: "You smoke cigarettes, it's going to kill you." Many people quit because of that message. There are many examples like that where it takes time for the scientific findings to get processed.

Scientists aren't trying to tell the world what to do. The science community is trying to convey scientific research; it's non-partisan. There are no Republican or Democratic thermometers; there are no liberal or conservative satellites. We're processing data and coming to an understanding of how the climate system works.

LJVN: Are you optimistic about the future of the world's climate?

RS: Technologically, yes. Technologically a lot of things can be done. Energy efficiency and conservation, which are extremely doable, which decrease the dependence on fossil fuel, often have many other benefits and often save money. In this country you tend to see them on the individual, corporate, and state and local level. You don't see much action from the federal government.

In the last presidential campaign if you think back, both Obama and McCain said during the campaign that they thought climate change was real and serious and they were going to give in a high priority. But once this administration came in to office, we stopped hearing about it. When all is said and done, more will have been said than have been done.

Starry, starry nights

with Vincent Andrunas

The 2011 Cultural Diversity Partnership between Union Bank and KPBS culminated with the annual Local Heroes Awards celebration on Feb. 8. Seventeen area individuals who are making a difference by improving their workplaces, professions, neighborhoods, communities — and even the world — were honored with an event that began with ceremonies and merriment at the Balboa Theatre.

Like the honorees, the two-hour awards program at the Balboa embraced a broad range of cultures. The host and emcee was Yul Kwon (a Korean-American that fans of reality TV may remember from his win on "Survivor" in 2006), and entertainment interspersed throughout the evening included songs in Spanish, Polynesian dancing, a Klezmer ensemble and even ballet. The performances took place at intervals during the presentation of the honorees, each of whom appeared in a short video clip illustrating their contributions to the community before appearing on stage to receive their awards. Two were well-known La Jolla residents: Holocaust survivor Edith Eva Eger, Ph.D. (in recognition of Jewish American Heritage Month), and

LA JOLLA OFFICE
NOW OPEN

Harcourts Prestige Properties is officially open! We welcome the community to stop in to either say hello or to ask about what is going on in our market. The Harcourts Prestige Properties office is equipped with a "genius bar" featuring touch screen computers available for searching properties. You can come in and have a cup of coffee and have access to search all the properties for sale in the entire state of California via Harcourts One. If you are thinking about selling your property we also have the big screen LED TVs for display of featured properties as well as our Harcourts Magazine, the Blue Book, which will be distributed across Southern California. Being an international real estate company we also offer exposure to your home globally on our international web site! Harcourts is a full service real estate company that also offers service with residential sales as well as commercial properties. Please visit our websites, <http://www.harcourtsusa.com> (full version launch mid Feb. 2012) and the international web site <http://www.harcourts.net>. For further information about selling or purchasing a property you can also contact Tiffany Torgan Philips, Broker/Business Owner or any other of our knowledgeable Southern California Agents.

women's advocate Barbara Bry (in recognition of Women's History Month).

A short walk across Horton Plaza brought the 500 or so attendees to the nearby Westin Hotel, where they enjoyed a festive post-ceremony reception. Besides the tray-passed hors d'oeuvres, a pair of food stations offered potato martinis, a couple more had sliders made with beef or chicken (or just veggies), and there were two dessert stations and three bars. The generous hosts thoughtfully provided plenty of food, drink, tables and chairs — and even a talented musician playing a grand piano throughout the reception.

Mike Stillwell stood amid a small group with a playing card stuck to his forehead, and said, "Well, it is a 'face' card, isn't it?" He was right (it was the Queen of Hearts). And since Mike is a magician, this sort of thing is apparently normal behavior for him.

The occasion was the cocktail reception of a benefit gala at the Estancia La Jolla, held Feb. 11 by the Women's Auxiliary of Seacrest Village Retirement Communities, a nonprofit charitable organization with a campus in Encinitas and another in Rancho Bernardo. A jazz trio played during the reception, and several different magicians performed close-up magic, including card and rope tricks and dazzling sleight of hand. It all matched the event's theme, "Magical Moments."

Cindy and Larry Bloch chaired the event, which honored Lisa and Gary Levine for their dedication and commitment to Seacrest Village. Once guests were seated in the dining room, a video showed how the Levines have been instrumental in Seacrest's expansion for more than 20 years, while also serving other diverse community organizations. A live auction followed, with pricy ($6,500) his-and-her Corum watches among the featured items. Guests enjoyed a choice of braised short ribs, pan roasted salmon or vegetarian entrees.

The entertainment centerpiece of the evening was a three-act magic show headlined by Murray the Magician, seen by millions on NBC's "America's Got Talent." His tricks included simultaneously spearing three specific playing cards tossed into the air by a trio of trustworthy audience members. Also on the bill were Stoil and Ekaterina — he's a magician and she (his wife, who trained as a ballerina) is a master of the quick change. Guests marveled at her seemingly impossible instant costume changes. The performers demonstrated that the impossible may actually be quite easily achievable. Following the show, Society Beat came on to play for dancing. Guests also enjoyed custom coffee drinks from Java Jive, and a "candy bar" with a wide variety of popular confections from Life Is Sweet.

Donovan's Steak House

They may look good enough to eat, but the paintings and sculptures at Donovan's of La Jolla are strictly off limits – so you'll have to content yourself with the USDA prime beef, the eatery's star attraction. If steak isn't in the plan, pork and veal chops and succulent seafood will satisfy the most discriminating of palates. And at Donovan's, fresh seasonal vegetables and your choice of potato are always included with each entrée.

Cafe Milano

Enjoy a taste of Milano right here in La Jolla. Chef - owner Pasquale's 25 years of experience with Northern Italian Cuisine and hospitality offers only the best and most incredible meal for the entire family. Chef - owner Pasquale will always go that extra mile from their homemade bread, pasta, dessert to your main dish and a variety of his signature sauces, you will surely leave the restaurant already planning when you will be back again! The Broken Yolk Café offers a large selection of home cooked meals in a comfortable and casual atmosphere. There are over 20 different omelets to choose from as well as a wide variety of other breakfast favorites which include pancakes, waffles and French toast. Feel more like lunch? Try one of our juicy ½ pound burgers or one of our large sandwiches.

The Spot

Though this restaurant is within spitting distance of several ritzy hotels, it manages to maintain a laid-back charm. Witness the painting of an old, pot-bellied surfer just inside the door. The restaurant is divided into a narrow bar area on the left and a dining room on the right; both have wood paneling and brown leather booths. The menu ranges from burgers and grilled snapper tacos to lobster tails and bacon-wrapped filet mignon.

K9 PHYSICAL THERAPY/REHAB CUTTING EDGE K9 REHAB www.cuttingedgek9.com We have Been Featured On Local And National News, Radio And A Number Of Local Papers And Magazine Articles. Swimming is one of our strongest recommendations for most K9's. It is an ideal form of exercise for a number of reasons. We offer assisted swimming in a warm water environment. The benefits are: • Non-weight-bearing (reducing stress on joints) • Facilitates full use of the front and hind legs vs. partial use as seen with underwater tread-mills • Dogs are often able to actively swim although unable to move their legs on land (due to stroke/ spinal injury) • Allows manual techniques by therapist/ manual resistance to an affected limb • Swimming in a controlled environment is the safest way for clients to exercise. • Speeds recovery following injury/ surgery • Improves function and quality of life • Works reciprocal muscle groups throughout the session (helps correct muscle imbalances) • Reduces pain and inflammation • Reduces canine obesity thus decreasing the risk of other health-related problems • Increases strength, range of motion and cardiovascular conditioning • Prevents overheating through proper water temp • Increases tolerance for extended cardiovascular training • Decreases recovery time • Reduces post-exercise soreness • Provides good cross training for the competitive, athletic dog (619) 227-7802

FORTY DAY SUMMONS THE STATE OF WISCONSIN, TO: TROY OCHOA-WICZ and TRINA OCHOA-WICZ husband and wife 2912 Ingelow Street, Apt 6 San Diego, CA 92106-2367 You are hereby notified that the plaintiff named above has filed a lawsuit or other legal action against you. The complaint, which is also served upon you, states the nature and basis of the legal action. Within 40 days after February 2, 2012, you must respond with a written answer, as that term is used in Chapter 802 of the Wisconsin Statutes, to the complaint. The court may reject or disregard an answer that does not follow the requirements of the statutes. The answer must be sent or delivered to the court, whose address is: Clerk of Circuit Court Outagamie County Justice Center 320 South Walnut Street Appleton, WI 54911 and to O'Dess and Associates, S.C., Plaintiff's attorneys, whose address is: O'Dess and Associates, S.C. 1414 Lindwood Avenue, Suite 403 Waunakee, Wisconsin 53213 You may have an attorney represent you. If you do not provide a proper answer within 40 days, the court may grant a judgment against you for the award money or other legal action requested in the complaint, and you may lose your right to object to anything that is or may be incorrect in the complaint. A judgment may be enforced as provided by law. A judgment awarding money may become a lien against any real estate you own now or in the future, and may also be enforced by a garnishment or seizure of property. O'DESS AND ASSOCIATES, S.C.
