The Map project has stalled, more funds needed

By DAVE SCHWAB | LA JOLLA VILLAGE NEWS

It's difficult to figure out whether the restoration of The Map project, a 2,400-square-foot mosaic depicting La Jolla Shores marine life, is a monumental work of art, or a cutting-edge educational tool.

Actually, it's both. The original Map, completed in 2008, deteriorated and had to be replaced. Its replacement is presently spread across the concrete floor inside a Scripps Institution of Oceanography building.

The brainchild of famed, late centenarian Scripps oceanographer Walter Munk and his wife, Mary Coakley Munk, who represents nonprofit Friends of La Jolla Shores, creation of The LithoMosaic Map is nearing completion. Once funding is found, The Map is to be returned to its previous location, the educational plaza at Kellogg Park near the playground and restrooms.

But there's a problem: More money is needed to complete the project.

The Munks have donated $300,000 to the project, with $500,000 yet needed to fund its installation, which will include educational panels and landscaping.

Friends of La Jolla Shores and the Walter Munk Foundation for the Oceans are spearheading the project.

The timetable for funding and replacing The Map in Kellogg Park has been pushed back now to sometime in September, following Munk's death, at age 101, on Feb. 8.

City rescinds vehicle habitation ordinance, La Jolla leaders react

By DAVE SCHWAB | LA JOLLA VILLAGE NEWS

La Jollans reacting to the San Diego City Council's recent unanimous vote to repeal a 1983 ordinance prohibiting residents from living in a vehicle on streets within city limits, fear the new law has great potential for abuse.

"Well-intentioned folly, but crazy nonetheless," concluded Beach-Barber Tract resident Frances O'Neill Zimmerman. "This means a homeless person or persons can park and sleep in front of my house or near the local elementary school. I wouldn't like either of those things to happen."

Added O'Neill Zimmerman, "Social services and public health measures cannot be delivered to homeless people living in cars."

La Jolla Parks and Beaches, Inc. board member Bob Evans, speaking on his own behalf, noted people sleeping in cars "is already quite prevalent in the beach communities – it's just that it's not out in the daylight and flies under most people's radar."

Noting there's already no-parking signs at the beach lots, Evans pointed out, "So, it can be pretty tough to pull an all-nighter." He concurred however with those who see the new vehicle-habitation law as problematic.

"All it would take is a small uptick in trash at the curbside and people relieving themselves on private property to get residents riled," said Evans adding, "Trash and the management of such is already a big issue in the area."

The vehicle habitation ordinance has not been enforced since Aug. 21, 2018 following U.S. District Judge Anthony J. Battaglia's ruling that the ordinance "was both vague on its face and being arbitrarily and discriminatorily applied."

Battaglia granted plaintiffs' request for a preliminary injunction. That meant RV residents were exempted from being ticketed, or paying fines for outstanding tickets, or having their vehicles impounded.

Community activist Phyllis Minick understands why allowing people to "live" in a vehicle on the street helps the homeless by providing them a place to sleep.

"However, I am obliged to say, 'no' (to new rules)," Minick said. "Those individuals require toilet and bathing facilities, and I've witnessed the results of street gutters and parking lots used as open-air toilets. Since garbage facilities are also absent, I've seen the related mounds of trash."

Minick added she knows a female apartment dweller who has a curbside, live-in-car neighbor and feels threatened for the safety of herself and two young children, as well as the unsanitary condition of the street and sidewalk."

"This is an important issue, as it reflects the critical housing shortage in San Diego," said Realtor John Shannon. "People need safe and affordable housing for all levels of society, and the city's policy change to allow people to live/sleep in their vehicles seems the right humanitarian decision for the short-term. However, for the long-term, we need to adopt more policies to encourage more new housing construction. How else will we accommodate 1 million additional people by 2050?"

Added Shannon, "People living 'on the streets' is not desirable, but the beach communities seem unduly burdened, as they are simply more attractive, and are already the dumping areas for dockless bikes, scooters and homeless living in doorways, alleys, canyons, and empty lots. No-one wants the trash, sanitation, and safety issues associated with people living without proper facilities."

La Jolla High School starts construction on modernization project

By EMILY BLACKWOOD | LA JOLLA VILLAGE NEWS

La Jolla High School has officially started its Whole Site Campus Modernization Plan.

Construction has begun on the interior of the school's cafeteria — and that's just the beginning. The project includes renovating the science classrooms, building two additional science classrooms, installing a PA system along with additional safety regulations, updating the physical appearance of the school's exterior and, probably the most exciting aspect, installing air conditioning.

"It's just our time, said La Jolla High School Principal Dr. Chuck Podhorsky. "The school is the heart of the community and the community should be really proud of the school."

The kitchen and cafeteria renovations are planned to be completed by the summer of 2019, while the entire modernization plan will take until the fall of 2020 to be completely finished. And that's perfect, according to Dr. Podhorsky, because it's just in time for the school's 100th anniversary. La Jolla High School opened its doors at 750 Nautilus St. in 1922.

And beyond fixing any leaks and giving some areas a face lift "just like you would any older house," Dr. Podhorsky said that he hopes the renovations will turn the school into the state-of-the-art learning environment its students deserve.

"The spaces are just going to look much nicer," he said. "And I'm a big believer that if you have a high-quality business or educational experience, you're going to have certain expectations for what that's going to look like. So you always want to put your best foot forward to show people that you value what you do."

Mayor proposes new regulations for electric scooters and dockless bikes

On Feb. 14, Mayor Kevin L. Faulconer released a set of proposed regulations for dockless scooters and bicycles to address public safety concerns by slowing the devices down in heavily-trafficked public spaces, establish clear rules of the road to hold operators accountable, and charge an annual fee for each device.

The proposed ordinance will be discussed at the City Council Active Transportation and Infrastructure Committee meeting this week.

Faulconer's proposed regulations cover six primary areas — limiting maximum speed of motorized scooters in designated zones, vehicle staging and parking, rider education, data sharing, fees and legal indemnification for the City of San Diego.

The mayor's proposed regulations include:

Permit and fees: Each company wishing to operate within City limits will be issued a six-month permit and will be required to pay $150 per device annually. Operators will only be allowed to amend or renew their permit, including increasing the size of their fleet, during the permit issuance months of January and June. Companies offering an approved equity program can receive a $15 per device reduction in their annual fee.

Operators will also be required to pay a "performance bond," which can be returned in the event they cease operation in San Diego and remove their devices.

Limiting speed: Using geofencing technology, operators will be required to slow their devices down to eight miles per hour in designated high-pedestrian traffic zones around the City, including:

- Boardwalks in Mission Beach, Pacific Beach, and La Jolla beach areas;
- Spanish Landing;
- Petco Park;
- Balboa Park;
- NTC Park;
- Mission Bay Park.

In two other areas in downtown

San Diego, scooters will be required to slow to three miles per hour, with riders being notified they are in a no-ride zone. Those areas are:

- North and South Embarcadero;
- Martin Luther King Jr. Promenade.

Staging and parking: Operators may stage their devices in groups of up to four, and there must be 40 feet between groups of staged devices. They will also be prohibited from staging in school zones and hospital zones.

Jury deadlocks at trial in death of UC San Diego student

By NEAL PUTNAM | LA JOLLA VILLAGE NEWS

After four hours of deliberations, a jury told a judge on Feb. 19 they were split 6-6 and could not reach a verdict in the hit-and-run trial of a driver who is accused of killing a UC San Diego student and leaving the scene.

A mistrial was declared in the case of Corundolus Toussaint, 39, who is accused of killing Andres Perkins, 21, after San Diego Superior Court Judge Paula Rosenstein asked jurors if anyone felt a verdict could be reached.

One juror said he thought a verdict was possible if the jury received additional instructions, but 11 other jurors said it was hopeless. The seven man, five woman jury began deliberations Tuesday morning after hearing closing arguments, but they were discharged around 5 p.m. after they said they could not reach a verdict.

Deputy District Attorney Karra Reedy said Toussaint would face a retrial. Rosenstein ordered Toussaint to return to court on Feb. 25 for scheduling a retrial. He remains in jail on $140,000 bail.

His attorney, Manuel Avitia III, unsuccessfully asked Rosenstein to dismiss the case after he said a second jury might also not be able to reach a verdict.

Reedy said the jury's first note came within 10 minutes after they started deliberating and they wanted to know what type of sentence he would face if he was convicted of hit and run resulting in death.

Rosenstein repeated her instructions that jurors are not supposed to consider what the penalty is for a crime.

Toussaint picked up a woman in Mission Beach around 2:15 a.m. and the two of them were going to go to a hotel. He was apparently distracted, and struck Perkins on Interstate 5 at 2:43 a.m. as he approached the Old Town exit.

Perkins was killed almost instantly, and Toussaint kept driving until he reached a Shell service station at 2521 Pacific Highway. He left the damaged, blood-stained Honda Accord at the station. The front license plate was found on Interstate 5, and the vehicle was registered to Toussaint's girlfriend.

"I had reasonable doubt about his state of mind," said one juror afterwards, who said she voted for acquittal.

"Certainly for the first hour (after the accident), he was not in his right mind," said the juror.

Toussaint testified he was in a haze and needed an insulin shot as he had diabetes. He turned himself into the California Highway Patrol two days later.

"I saw a lot of holes in his story," said the jury foreman, who said he voted for conviction.

"He may have been in shock initially," said a third juror who said he voted for conviction. "(Later) he knew what was going on and made a decision to start drinking."

Reedy told jurors that Toussaint claimed to have received an insulin shot in downtown San Diego after the accident, and his cellphone records shows he made 202 phone calls after the incident and before turning himself in.

Women with hair loss can have thick and healthy hair and look years younger!

Volume is the most requested service of all clients. Thick, healthy hair is never out of style! Even with all the excellent professional volumizing products available, nothing compares with the real thing: thick, healthy human hair!

The unique patented process used at Judy's salon attaches a protein bond of real human hair to a small section of your own hair. The bonds are so discreet you can style your hair anyway you choose. Once this application process has been applied, you will be amazed at the transformation that occurs, not only in your hair, but also in your outlook!

How do you match extensions to a client's existing color?

If you are blending colors choose extensions that are the same level of color as the client's own hair. If you are changing the level of the client's hair choose a shade that works well with the skin tone.

How do you customize extensions for a client with thinning hair?

Use an extension with a smaller attachment bond and a single strand application process so the hair is not damaged and can hold the weight of the extension. This will give natural looking volume and length to thinning hair.

What type of hair extensions do you use?

Judy uses Great Lengths® all-natural hair extensions and prefers these extensions because they are created from 100% human hair and use a unique, application process that attaches a bond of protein the same molecular structure as your hair. This is an extremely high-tech method of bonding the hair strand to your own hair. Whether creating a new look, following fashion or with a special occasion on the horizon, Judy's hair extensions have over 55 colors to choose from and blend with your own hair for perfect color matches.

Can hair extensions damage my hair?

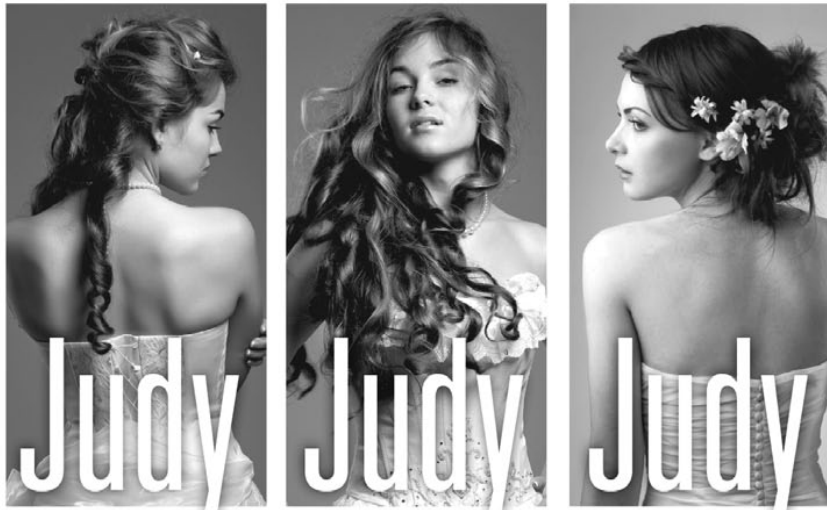

No, they will not. Actually, even very fine and damaged hair can become healthier if you're wearing hair extensions because they will protect your hair from things that could damage it like curling irons, blow dryers, styling heat and environmental damage. Because of the unique application bonding system, the extensions can be easily removed. This is different than many hair extension methods that bond too tightly to your hair. Most people don't even notice a difference between the hair extensions and their own natural hair. Those old methods can lead to hair breakage when being removed. Judy's La Jolla hair extensions are joined to your natural hair by using a safe, all-natural, keratin protein bond application system.

How do I maintain my extensions at home and between visits to the salon?

Judy is fully trained on how to educate her clients to professionally take care of their hair extensions at home. Judy will recommend hair care products, brushes, combs and appliances for use at home. Hairstyling is very similar to how you style your hair without extensions. Contact Judy in La Jolla today for answers to any more of your hair extensions questions.

Village Merchants Association discusses new guidelines for group's membership

By DAVE SCHWAB | LA JOLLA VILLAGE NEWS

In February, La Jolla Village Merchants Association unveiled new guidelines for associate membership in the group, and got an update on the new Cormorant boutique hotel.

At the end of the group's monthly meeting, LJVMA executive director Jodi Rudick marked out several accomplishments already made on their strategic plan outlining year-long objectives to be achieved.

LJVMA president Brett Murphy noted the group is "shifting to much more of an aggressive, offensive posture." He characterized the group's decision to create a fee-based associate membership as one example. "It is unfair for us to support those businesses not paying business-license taxes that are operating in the Village," he said.

"Associate members will not be able to serve on our board of directors per our bylaws," noted Rudick.

Associate membership annual fees will vary between $120 and $480 depending on the size of the business. Applications for associate membership will be available online.

Manoj Chawla and Tracy Ly of the new Cormorant boutique hotel under reconstruction presented on the old La Jolla Village Inn's conversion into the Cormorant, a new boutique hotel with a coastal-chic design including a rooftop lounge.

Norma Kay, who sells crocheted metal jewelry in La Valencia Hotel nearby, objected to the project at the meeting claiming neighboring businesses weren't properly noticed about the time and duration of construction. "My business has been greatly impacted by it," she said.

Rudick suggested Kay and hotel reps meet offline to discuss the situation. "We'd be happy to sit in on the meeting," she added.

In other action

• "We're moving forward as if the maintenance assessment district is not in place," said Rudick about LJVMA's plans to continue to maintain hanging baskets, landscaping, while implementation of the MAD continues to be tied up in court. Some landlords challenged the special district passed by La Jolla voters with a lawsuit alleging it constituted a second "tax" on public services.

Kid's On the Go physical therapy office opens on La Jolla Boulevard

By EMILY BLACKWOOD | LA JOLLA VILLAGE NEWS

The colorful floors, swings hanging from the ceiling and stuffed animals mounted on all the walls of Kids On the Go Therapy make it look more like a toy store than a physical therapy office, which is kind of the whole point.

"Our goal is for them just to think that they're playing and having fun," said Dr. Mary Hermes, director of Kids On the Go. "And hopefully they don't even realize that they've been doing a ton of work."

While Hermes has been providing pediatric physical and occupational therapy to children ages 0 to 21 for a few years, she did so by making in-house visits to her patients in the greater San Diego area. This past December, she opened the first Kids On the Go office in La Jolla, 5759 La Jolla Blvd. The new building served as a major milestone for Dr. Hermes and her team of five, who not only serve children but their moms too.

"When they come in, a lot of the focus is of course on the new baby," she said. "We started noticing some

"We saw an infant who had an extremely large stroke that left her paralyzed on one side of her body. By the time she was finished with us, she had regained full-use. Her parents and I joked that we may have worked her too hard, because the side she had lost was actually stronger than the other."

Mandarin House hosts Chinese New Year party to raise money for cancer research Mandarin House in La Jolla opened April 21, 1977 by Tat (John) Law and Wai (Bill) Man.

By EMILY BLACKWOOD | LA JOLLA VILLAGE NEWS

While most peoples' family get-togethers were centered around a barbecue and a friendly game of Scrabble, Nelson Law's family celebrated the Chinese New Year every year with a massive feast and the traditional Lion Dance.

"It was super lively back then," Law remembers. "Lots of people. My dad started one of the early Chinese restaurants, so a lot of people who came to San Diego worked at the Mandarin House."

The Mandarin House in La Jolla opened April 21, 1977 by Tat (John) Law and Wai (Bill) Man. Both men have died of cancer in the past 10 years; Bill Man of Paranasal sinus and nasal cavity cancer, and John Law of esophageal cancer.

That's why Mandarin House donates all proceeds from their annual Chinese New Year party to The Cancer Research Institute to help find a future cure and Scripps Cancer Center to help people currently going through cancer treatment. And while the event was restarted to honor both the founding owners, Nelson Law said they had to make a few changes to keep with the times.

While the Chinese New Year party will still include all the food and the Lion Dance — which Nelson believes is done to ward off bad luck and energy in the coming year — it now also has a casino and a DJ to "breathe some young life" into the event that was limited to family friends and employees for so long. Now it's opened to the community for a $20 ticket.

"2017 was the first year we threw it without my father or his partner around," Nelson Law said. "Over the years, we did close a couple of restaurants and we're down to just the La Jolla location. So it's less employees, less staff, everyone was getting older and the party just got smaller and smaller."

The event was more of a formality to uphold a tradition. With my dad gone, the party is not going to be the same without him. So it was time to either not have a party, or throw a bigger one."

Tickets for Chinese New Year Party, which is held Feb. 23 from 8 to 11:59 p.m. at Mandarin House in La Jolla, cost $20 and include food and a drink ticket. Participants can play in the casino to win tickets for raffle prizes. Last year, the event raised $4,800 for cancer patient care and research.

La Jolla bracelet company partners again with 'The Bachelor' Colton Underwood

By EMILY BLACKWOOD | LA JOLLA VILLAGE NEWS

La Jolla bracelet company Pura Vida recently partnered with "Bachelor" star Colton Underwood's Legacy Foundation to release a new set of bracelets and raise money for cystic fibrosis.

Underwood previously played as a linebacker for the San Diego Chargers, where he became friends with one of Pura Vida's owners, according to marketing manager Vanessa Skaggs. So when Underwood's charity launched in 2015, he was more than happy to design a bracelet to raise money for his foundation, which he started in honor of his cousin, Harper, who was born with cystic fibrosis while he was playing football.

Now he's teaming up with Pura Vida again; this time to design a set of three purple bracelets—the color of the national Cystic Fibrosis Foundation—all benefitting the Colton Underwood Legacy Foundation. The foundation has raised nearly $100,000 for CF patients as well as clinics and research organizations focused on treating people living with CF. Individual bracelets are $6, and the pack is $30.

"He wanted a platform to use his fame and success for something positive," Skaggs said. "He has a lot of success with his original design."

Part of that was thanks to Underwood, who wore the bracelet during the entire filming of "The Bachelorette." He made it down to the final four men competing for Becca Kufrin's heart. He's continued to wear them on his current season as "The Bachelor."

Pura Vida and Underwood's Legacy Foundation launched the new bracelets on Feb. 13 with a fundraising event at Mavericks Beach Club in Pacific Beach. All proceeds from the event went to the foundation.

Following the launch party, Underwood apologized on Instagram for leaving earlier than planned because he was being touched and grabbed inappropriately by fans.

"I'm sorry if you didn't get a picture at the event last night, but at one point during the event I was grabbed and touched inappropriately while people were throwing cameras in my face," Underwood wrote.

"I am the type of person who would have stood in line for hours to make sure anyone who supported the event got a picture, but once that happened, I had to do what was best for me as a human being. I didn't sign up to be a piece of meat or a zoo animal."

To purchase the new pack of Underwood's bracelets, visit puravidabracelets.com. A total of 25 percent of proceeds will be donated directly to the Legacy Foundation for research funding and medical equipment.

BISHOP'S GIRLS BASKETBALL

Another year of excellence for the Knights

By ED PIPER | LA JOLLA VILLAGE NEWS

Coach Marlon Wells has been doing this for 14 years at Bishop's, and this season is no exception: In line with his phenomenal 327-118 record over those years (at this writing), Bri Delatorre, Madi Chang and tribe resemble excellence, teamwork, and resilience.

The 2018-19 team entered the Open Division playoffs as the seventh seed, ranked sixth in the county by MaxPreps. The 18 wins against 10 losses in the regular season didn't come against wallflowers. They came against St. Joseph Notre Dame from the Bay Area (a sizzling 55-51 win), JSerra of Orange County (smashed them 62-43), and Bishop Gorman, a Las Vegas power (a narrow 57-55 loss).

Chang, a 6-foot guard/forward, puts it this way: "Our attitude is key. When games get tough, we communicate. We've gotten better at communicating, to make adjustments we need to make." The senior co-captain averages 11.4 points, 3.7 rebounds, 1 assist, and 1 block per game.

Delatorre, the other captain, an intense defensive specialist in the backcourt, assesses the team like a human resources expert, which she seems well on her way to being. "We have some really good individual players," the 5'6" guard says.

"We have some really good freshmen (5'4" guard Angie Robles, with 17.2 points, 3 assists, 3 steals per game, and 5'5" guard Renee Chong, 16.9 points and 3.5 assists a game). As the season has gone on, each of the players has found their niche."

The Knights tallied an 18-10 regular season record. ED PIPER / VILLAGE NEWS

Complementing the guard core, besides Chang, who at 6 feet can move from backcourt to frontcourt and into the post, is sophomore Jada Davis-Mack, a 6'3" tower inside, pulling down 8.5 rebounds a game. Jada runs the court well, is the fourth scorer with 9.2 points a game, and is developing as a young player into being more of an imposing presence inside.

Delatorre and Chang, the elder stateswomen of the unit, ensure that their teammates have plenty of bonding time off the court. "We make sure we eat lunch together," says Chang, evincing lots of maturity. "Before every game, we have a team meal provided by one of the moms in (assistant coach/English teacher) Ms. (Michelle) Shea's classroom. At those, we spend at least two hours together. During that time, we also watch some film to get prepared."

In a recent practice, Wells ran the scoreboard clock with Shea's assistance to time free throw practice ("How many did you get out of 10?" "7", "7", "7"), three-point shooting ("We need lots of shooting practice"), finally full-court offensive attacks for five-minute chunks with one group of five repeatedly on offense, the other defending.

At last, scrimmaging full-court combined reinforcement of skills, game conditions, and conditioning. Assistant Haseen Williams called out his encouragement and correction.

"I could see going into management and organization," says Delatorre of her future plans. "The good thing about undergraduate business programs is exposure to finance, marketing, accounting, entrepreneurship, operations."

"I'm thinking of studying nursing to go into pediatric intensive nursing, or behavioral neuroscience leading to nursing," says Chang.

spokesperson said, "It's very durable. Every tile is cut by hand, glued down by hand, one by one. It's done in sections anchored in cement."

The Map represents Munk's original pioneering research on waves. "Every department of SIO has been represented in this map," said Scarpella. "It's for the community. It's for the park, representing Walter and all of his work."

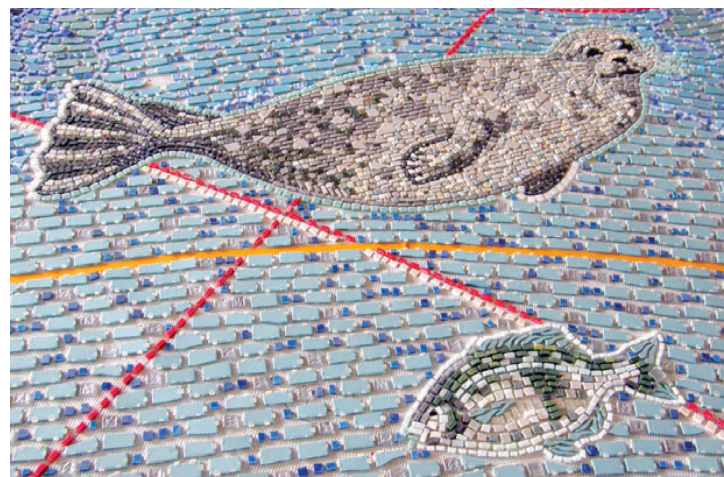

Birch Aquarium and local public and private schools are expected to use The Map as a field trip destination. Scuba instructors can also use it as a visual reference, introducing students to local dive sites and marine life.

Once in place, a three-foot-high fence will be installed around The Map's perimeter to prevent people from using it as a thoroughfare to get to the surf.

"It's meant to keep people in, and keep people out, and as a safety precaution for kids," noted Scarpella of the fence. "We just want to keep it a safe environment for kids."

Bill Kellogg of the La Jolla Beach & Tennis Club will provide daily maintenance for the project once it's finished.

The Map is being fabricated by San Diegans Wick Alexander and Robin Brailsford, who invented its LithoMosaic application technique. It features local sea life, underwater topography and resulting wave refraction. Scarpella added it will be a four- to six-month process to install The Map.

Reflections on the existence, possible or probable existence of God

Doing
it Better

By Natasha Josefowitz, Ph.D.

I came across an item which caught my eye: "Einstein's 'God letter' from 1954 goes on auction block" (USA Breaking News, December 2, 2018) that could yield $1.5 million. In it Einstein writes, "The word God is for me nothing but the expression of and product of human weaknesses, the Bible a collection of venerable but still rather primitive legends." I was surprised by the large dollar amount, but then further amazed by a follow-up article in the New York Post (December 5, 2018): "Einstein letter declaring God a 'weakness' sells for $2.9 million."

It had been a while since I pondered the existence of God and remembered Pascal's Wager. Blaise Pascal, a 17th century French philosopher, argued "that a rational person should live as though God exists and seek to believe in God. If God does not actually exist, such person will have only a finite loss (some pleasures, luxury, etc.), whereas he stands to receive infinite gains (as represented by eternity in Heaven) and avoid infinite losses (eternity in Hell)." (Wikipedia)

When my son was diagnosed with pancreatic cancer, I paraphrased Pascal's Wager into a way of living—if you don't think you're going to die and either you don't die or do die, you have lived fully. If you think you're going to die and do, there is no issue. On the other hand, if you live like you're going to die soon and you don't, you would have wasted useless preparations for something that did not happen.

An article entitled "Wrestling with Religion and Spirituality" in Psychology Today (December 2018) written by Dr. Saul Levine, professor emeritus at the University of California, San Diego, takes up the issue of God's existence in a rational and comprehensive way which illuminated my own thinking. He writes:

Although I wasn't a firm 'Believer' in God, I couldn't call myself an Atheist, which somehow seemed too 'defiant' and definite. Nor could I comfortably say I was purely Secular, which felt simplistic. The description of myself as Agnostic seemed equivocating, perhaps dissembling. But I have since learned a few salutary things:

...We humans need to Believe: We tend to feel better, more grounded and safer, our lives are more meaningful when we have an intense Belief System, like God, or a system of overriding values or ethics.

...One can be spiritual and not religious. There is a spiritual dimension to human existence, which we can occasionally sense or 'connect with.' There are metaphysical forces which we do not, perhaps cannot, perhaps shall not, completely understand.

These thoughts reverberated in me, making me reexamine my thoughts on God and my own belief system. One of my favorite quotes is by James Lipton, host of the TV series "Actors Studio," who said when asked what he would want God to say as he entered the pearly gates: "She would say, 'Surprise, I exist.'" That pretty much sums up where I stand today...anything is possible: one God, many gods, a higher power, re-incarnation. After all, energy never dies, so it must go somewhere—into others not born yet or in that strange feeling of the presence of departed loved ones. I still talk to my late husband, Herman, and am convinced of his presence, in fact I feel him actually poking me when I fall asleep at meetings, which he always did. I have always felt the presence of a little angel sitting on my left shoulder protecting me. I am forever mystified by unexplainable occurrences, which many people have experienced.

We are all vibrating molecules, made of the same primordial elements that formed the galaxies, we are stardust sharing our DNA with every living thing on earth.

This makes me feel a part of everyone and everything; it tells me that I belong to this planet, my home. I think of it as similar to living in bee hives and ant hills—all living together, needing each other, helping each other survive and thrive.

I wake up every morning grateful to have woken up to a new day full of anticipated and unanticipated adventures. It could start with waffles for breakfast, my daughter sending me a new photo of my great-grandson, lunch with friends, a phone call, the sound of laughter...all wonders. I try to be attuned to the world's vibrations, listening for the atmospheric messages of love, of kindness, and of compassion, in a helping hand, a smile...we just need to look and then reciprocate. Miracles are everywhere.

University City news and community updates

Garden Club show and sale

The University City Garden Club will be hosting their first meetup and sale on Saturday, Feb. 23 starting at 1:30 p.m., located at 2750 Gobat Ave. Following a brief business meeting, the host will then speak on her magnificent one-third acre property, located along Rose Canyon. The property is landscaped certified Wildlife Habitat, National Wildlife Organization; with native California plants created during the past seven years. There are 100 species and 300 to 400 plants. A limited number of potted plants may be purchased. Included are massive Staghorn Ferns, Bromeliads, orchids, ferns, and much, much more. Note that light rain will not affect the Garden Club meeting, but all will be cancelled if heavy rains occur.

Construction updates

Gilman Drive Bridge – The Gilman Drive Bridge celebrated its official opening in early February. Finishing work, including sand blasting and patching blemishes, has been completed. Additional striping, sidewalks and crosswalk improvements adjacent to the project site will be conducted as part of the Medical Center Drive South Improvement Project.

Mid-Coast Trolley Construction along Genesee Avenue – Mid-Coast Trolley at the Genesee Avenue and La Jolla Village Drive intersection is complete. This work involved setting and securing four mega-ton girders at the intersection. The construction schedule for the girder installation at the final intersection in this area (at the UTC Transit Center) will be provided in the coming weeks. Due to the complexity of the work, closures can be postponed at any time without notice. For up-to-date closure updates, visit KeepSanDiegoMoving.com/MidCoastTrolley.

Fire Station 50 – Fire Station 50 (to be located on the southeast corner of Nobel Drive and Shoreline Drive) is currently in its design and permitting phase. Building construction is anticipated to start in late summer 2019. Meanwhile, grading (ensuring a level base for the project's foundation) on the project site will start soon, and the wet utilities (water and sewer connections) will begin shortly after the site grading.

UC celebration committee

It takes a whole community to plan a Fourth of July event, and volunteers are needed to plan the annual UC Celebration at Standley Park. The Fourth of July Celebration committee held its first meeting in February. Their next meeting will be March 6 at the Recreation Center. The all-day event includes a morning 5k race, pancake breakfast, kids bicycle and pet parade. For more information, contact event chair Randall Tonini at randalltonini@icloud.com.

MONK »

anti-communist fervor in the early 1950s and his passion helped create the architecture that would become the defining style of the Scripps Oceanography campus.

Munk's contributions to science throughout the latter half of the 20th century and into the present century were measured not only in terms of the new knowledge his research yielded, but in the quality and diversity of the questions he considered. An ethos he expressed throughout his career was for scientists to take risks, pursue new directions, and embrace the educational value of failure.

"Walter Munk has been a world treasure for ocean science and geophysics," said Scripps Oceanography director Margaret Leinen. "He has been a guiding force, a stimulating force, a provocative force in science for 80 years. While one of the most distinguished and honored scientists in the world, Walter never rested on his accomplishments. He was always interested in sparking a discussion about what's coming next. Ideas were important to him, and the future of geoscience and oceanography was so important to him that he pushed all of us to be audacious, to take action, and to focus on the big ideas that could transform our world."

"During my career I have worked on rather too many topics to have done a thorough job on any one of them," Munk himself wrote in a 1980 autobiographical essay. "But 'definitive papers' are usually written when a subject is no longer interesting. If one wishes to have a maximum impact on the rate of learning, then one needs to stick out one's neck at an earlier time."

However inconclusive Munk might have left some questions before turning to others, his work on nearly all he considered informs ocean and earth science to this day – in some cases, decades after he first posed them.

"From World War II through the 1990s, the U.S. Navy poured financial and logistical support into American oceanography, for its importance in anti-submarine warfare, national defense, and climate change," said Naomi Oreskes, professor of the history of science at Harvard University. "Walter Munk was one of the leaders of the generation of men and women who used this support to revolutionize our understanding of the oceans, particularly the physical phenomena of waves, tides and currents, and the relationship of these phenomena to basic geophysical processes. In his long life, he inspired scores of younger scientists to take on the challenges of understanding the geophysics of the Earth."

Rebellion and romance played a role in Munk's journey to a science career at Scripps. He was born on Oct. 19, 1917, in Vienna, Austria, to a cosmopolitan banking family. In 1932, when he was 14, his family sent him to New York for school with the expectation that his time in the financial capital would prepare him for his own career in banking. After spending a few years working at the firm, Munk decided he had no fondness for banking and applied to and was accepted at the California Institute of Technology.

David & Jensen Schroedl

I THINK MY DAD IS THE BEST ★★★★★ REAL ESTATE BROKER IN LA JOLLA!

Highly likely to recommend ★★★★★ Just bought a Single Family home in La Jolla, CA.

David is simply one of the best, hardest working realtors I have every worked with. He did an amazing job for us on our purchase & I would use him again in a second. He is always available and works incredibly hard. We have looked at lots of deals together since then and now I will buy/sell my next house with his help. I have referred many friends to him.

Highly likely to recommend ★★★★★ Just bought a home in La Jolla, CA

We worked with David for over a year and a half to find a house in La Jolla. He was knowledgeable, a pleasure to work with and patient. We are grateful for his help and love our new home!

Highly likely to recommend ★★★★★ Just sold a Single Family home in La Jolla, CA.

David is the simply best! He is without a doubt the most knowledgable agent in La Jolla, extremely responsive and a master at negotiations. He helped us sell our house through advanced planning and market analysis, thorough research, timely marketing and advertisements, all the while keeping us informed as to the progress and never failed to get our opinion on all the important matters. If anyone wants to sell or buy a home in La Jolla, David is your guy!

Highly likely to recommend ★★★★★ Just sold a Single Family home in La Jolla, CA.

David has helped me sell two homes in La Jolla and purchase one over the past 4 years. He was consistently responsive, available and clearly very knowledgeable of the local real estate market. Because I live out of the area, I really needed an agent I could trust to help coordinate all the details. David came through with flying colors! I am very pleased with the outcomes of all three transactions and would definitely ask David to be my agent again in the future.
