PLNU falls shy in its bid for national title

By KEITH ANTIGIOVANNI | THE BEACON

The Point Loma Nazarene University (PLNU) Sea Lions baseball program wrapped up its most successful season to date Friday, finishing second in the nation in the National Athletic Interscholastic Association (NAIA) College World Series with an 11-8 loss to Lubbock Christian University in Lewiston, Idaho.

The second-place showing is the highest finish in school history and the highest rung reached by any Golden State Athletic Conference (GSAC) team since Azusa Pacific University in 1984. "We had a great trip," said PLNU head baseball coach Joe Schaefer. "A lot of people didn't expect us to get there. Anytime you make it to the national championship game and you're one win away and you don't win, it's a disappointment."

In the final championship game against Lubbock Christian, the Sea Lions fell behind 5-0 in the first inning but rallied to tie the game the next inning — only to fall behind 8-5 in the third inning.

PLNU fought back with two more runs in the fourth inning to cut the deficit to 8-7 but Lubbock got back the two runs in the bottom of the inning to extend its lead 10-7. Both teams scored one more run each, but the championship was not meant to be for Point Loma as the Sea Lions continue to look for their first national championship.

Neighbors tackle safety and vision for Sunset Cliffs

By SEBASTIAN RUIZ | THE BEACON

Residents have replaced about five memorial benches that were removed by the city for liability reasons from choice spots along Sunset Cliffs Boulevard — punctuating differences in the community's vision over safety and quality of life issues inside Sunset Cliffs Natural Park.

The recent removal of the benches sparked community debate over the implementation of the Sunset Cliffs Master Plan during a meeting of the Sunset Cliffs Natural Park Recreation Council on June 1. That plan also calls for the return of the Point Loma Nazarene University/community softball field to its natural state.

The dominant topic of the meeting, however, was the return of the benches along Sunset Cliffs Boulevard, which have long served as a social gathering point and rest area for neighbors, walkers, joggers and skaters.

The park council voted unanimously Monday to return some benches to park property in the main parking lots.

It is unclear, however, whether the city will allow the unauthorized return of the community's memorial benches along Sunset

Taking one big step into the future

Students at Point Loma Nazarene University basked in their day of honor Saturday, May 14 during commencement ceremonies. Three graduation ceremonies celebrated 565 undergraduate and 271 graduate students who earned degrees. Among the standouts was Kristen Johnson, a political science major recently awarded a Fullbright Scholarship. She will travel to Morocco in the fall. Katie Saalberg, a nursing major, organized a benefit concert last fall to provide scholarships for Indian nurses after seeing the need there during a mission trip to India. Tatiana Thorson, a graduate student in education, is an international student who lost everything in the 2007 wildfires. She overcame the odds to earn her degree anyway.

Aussie tourist's assailant handed 14-year sentence

By NEAL PUTNAM | THE BEACON

A man who severely beat and burned an Australian tourist in Ocean Beach in 2008 has been sentenced to 14 years in state prison.

Damian Maple, 22, was ordered May 27 to pay nearly $2,100 in medical expenses to the tourist, Robert Schneider, now 27.

Schneider and his parents, who live in Adelaide, wrote letters to the judge noting Schneider's continuing recovery from the Feb. 27, 2008 beating that took place at the foot of Abbott Street.

Schneider was beaten over the head with a skateboard and thrown into an active fire pit.

In a separate decision, San Diego Superior Court Judge David Danielsen also ordered Maple to pay more than $160 medical expenses to another victim, Justin Hayes, whose jaw was fractured by Maple on Feb. 9, 2008 at Dog Beach in Ocean Beach.

Maple was given credit for already having served 13 months in jail. He pleaded guilty to the attempted murder of Schneider and to felony assault on Hayes. He agreed to accept a 14-year term to resolve the Schneider case and other charges involving one other victim were dropped.

Francisco "Cisco" Montoya, 47, a co-defendant in the Schneider case, pleaded guilty to assault with a deadly weapon — the skateboard — and was sentenced March 16 to two years in prison. Montoya was also ordered to pay restitution to Schneider.

Schneider suffered a skull fracture and brain injuries, along with severe burns, broken bones and facial injuries. He was in a medical coma for weeks. His parents traveled from Adelaide to be by his side in the hospital.

"He still has a long way to go (in recovery)," wrote Judy and Peter Schneider in a letter to the judge.

They said their son cannot fully relax and becomes agitated somewhat easily. They said Schneider also has dizzy spells and is sometimes reclusive. They wrote that Schneider has still not talked about the incident in detail to them.

According to another letter written to the judge, Schneider said he must apply cream to the burned skin area three times daily and has to wear a special suit that aids the healing of his skin grafts. He wrote he has not been able to surf or travel since the incident.

Schneider said he finally recovered enough to get a driver license five months after returning to Australia, citing frustration at having to constantly ask for rides from people.

There was an outpouring of local support for Schneider following the assault, spawning fundraisers that helped offset his hospital bills. Schneider's parents have expressed their gratitude.

"There were two bad people in San Diego," Peter Schneider has said. "[But] thousands of people [there] have poured out their hearts to us."

Robert Schneider was following a dream of his to travel and was staying at the Ocean Beach Hostel on Newport Avenue at the time of the incident, according to court records.

The records also say Schneider was with Maple and Montoya around 5:30 a.m. when the argument began.

Maple later admitted to police he had taken LSD that night and was also drinking tequila.

Maple and Montoya fled the area following the assault on Schneider. Both were arrested in separate states on the same day in March 2008.

Maple was found hiding under a bed in the home of an acquaintance in Idaho. Montoya was arrested in Eugene, Ore.

Lifeguard union's ex-GM now suspected of money mischief

By ALYSSA RAMOS | THE BEACON

Weeks after San Diego City Council members approved a plan allowing lifeguards the option to leave their current union — the San Diego Municipal Employee Association (MEA) — to join the 911 teamsters, MEA officials said in a May 29 memo to union members that an internal investigation resulted in the involuntary resignation of former MEA president and general manager Judie Italiano under a cloud of allegations.

"We as MEA's elected officers placed MEA's General Manager Judie Italiano on an involuntary leave of absence in order to conduct an unfettered investigation of possible misfeasance in the handling of MEA's monies," MEA officials said. "We have concluded that Ms. Italiano breached her duty of trust as MEA's General Manager by using the MEA credit cards which were entrusted to her... and, in so doing, she incurred a substantial indebtedness to MEA."

The San Diego MEA union represents about 100 full-time life-guards and nearly 4,500 white-collar city employees.

MEA member and San Diego lifeguard Sgt. Ed Harris said Italiano was not fulfilling her member responsibilities. So Harris sued Italiano on or about May 6, citing a September 2006 report from former San Diego City Attorney Michael Aguirre that alleged Italiano unlawfully used MEA credit cards for personal use.

"This continues to unfold and we continue to learn more things — that was the purpose of the lawsuit," said Harris' attorney, Amy Lepine.

Lepine said she asked lifeguards and MEA members to join the class action lawsuit.

According to court documents, by January 2006 Italiano allegedly used MEA credit cards to purchase at least $131,000 of merchandise from stores such as Nordstrom and spent more than $1,000 at Pechanga, Harrah's and Las Vegas casinos. Three years later, Lepine said she "estimate[s]" the amount has doubled.

Floral group to showcase 3 Pt. Loma gardens

The San Diego Floral Association will host another annual tour of historic gardens on June 6 — including three magnificent gardens in Point Loma.

Saturday's walk is scheduled to take place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., according to event organizers.

In addition to the Point Loma showcase gardens, the tour will include three gardens in Bankers Hill.

One Point Loma garden was designed by distinguished architects Milton Sessions and Roland Hoyt, while a Singen garden and a garden of "creative rooms" complete the Point Loma offering, organizers said.

Two delightful patio gardens, a waterwise garden and a garden gracing a 101-year-old home make up the offering in the Banker Hills portion. A complimentary wine reception for tour guests will be offered at the French Garden Shop on India Street during the event hours.

Tickets will be on sale at various nurseries for $15 prior to day of tour and will be available for $20 on the day of tour.

Tickets may be purchased by calling the floral association at (619) 232-5762, or purchased at the following nurseries: Walter Andersen in Poway and San Diego, Weidner Garden in Encinitas, Kniffing Nursery in El Cajon, Cedros Gardens in Solana Beach and Mission Hills Nursery.

Proceeds from the tour will provide funds for the floral association's education programs, scholarships and to publish a compilation of articles from California Garden.

Tickets are still available for Saturday's walk, which runs from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Replacement sought for retiring county sheriff

The County Board of Supervisors is seeking candidates interested in replacing Sheriff William Kolender who plans to retire on July 2 after 14 years of service. The board will appoint an interim county sheriff to carry out the rest of Kolender's term through January 2011.

Candidates must submit an application from May 13 through June 10 at 5 p.m. in person at the office of the Clerk of the Board, located at the County Administration Building, 1600 Pacific Highway, Room 402.

The County Board of Supervisors is expected to review the qualifications for all applicants at a hearing on June 16 and will select no more than five finalists. On June 23, the board will review and select an interim sheriff. The sheriff oversees 4,000 employees.

Candidates must fulfill specific requirements, including a certain level of experience and education, listed at www.sdcounty.ca.gov/cob/sheriffvacancy.

County attorney's office cites 2008 record

A 94 percent felony conviction rate — one of the highest in California — and an honor as one of San Diego's best places to work were cited among last year's accomplishments at the San Diego County District Attorney's Office, according to a recent report from the office.

During 2008, the group worked with the federal Drug Enforcement Administration, resulting in the arrests of 75 San Diego State University students for selling various controlled substances. It also took part in two undercover narcotics operations that resulted in drug charges against 82 defendants.

The office also recovered a record $1.5 million in bad check funds, broke up a real estate fraud scheme that victimized hundreds of county homeowners and assisted in an investigation that resulted in a $1.4 million judgment against retail giant Wal-mart. Its child abduction unit helped recover 93 children worldwide.

The office co-sponsored a summit to combat county gang violence and released statistics centering on the county's 1,200 homicides unsolved over a 10-year period.

The office received a prestigious 2008 Workplace Excellence Award as one of San Diego's most outstanding places to work. Citing employee communication, quality of life programs and a focus on staying healthy, the office's Employee Relations Department was singled out among 130 nominees. The office was also honored for its Diversity Pipeline Project, aimed at recruiting minorities to careers in the criminal justice field.

City launches pipe project on Harbor Drive

The city began replacing about 18,000 feet of 16-inch water pipes along North Harbor Drive late last month to improve service from the aging water mains.

Two construction crews will replace the aging and failing cast-iron pipes with plastic pipes. Some of the pipes have been installed as early as 1950, according to officials with the San Diego Engineering and Capital Projects Department.

City officials said they aim to complete the estimated $5.7 million project by September.

The project will occur in two sections with one crew in each section. One project replaces pipes along North Harbor Drive from West Laurel Street south to Pacific Highway and along Pacific Highway south from F Street to Seaport Village.

The second project will replace pipes along North Harbor Drive from the San Diego International Airport's terminal-2 to Lee Court, according to the statement.

Locals cast off for Naval Academy experience

By MICHELLE HACKNEY | THE BEACON

Seth Estrada and Desmond Fields, two 17-year-old martial artists from the United States Karate Academy (USKA) at Liberty Station, are soon to embark on a life-changing journey. Both have been accepted to the prestigious United States Naval Academy's summer seminar, despite having traversed rough waters.

Estrada and Fields follow in the footsteps of their USKA chief instructor, Sal Convento, a graduate of the Naval Academy and former naval aviator who beat many odds with drive and determination.

"As an immigrant from the Philippines with a language barrier, and as the 13th child in a family of humbles means, it took everything I had to persevere," said Convento. "It took a lot of discipline on my part. I tell my students that nothing is unattainable if they are willing to dedicate themselves."

Estrada took that advice to heart and turned his life around. After a difficult childhood, and after traveling back and forth to live with separated parents in different states, he buckled down at school and in his community. He said he took on leadership roles that helped him realize his potential. Estrada said he has come to terms with himself, and has gained self-control and discipline.

"It hasn't been easy, but I'm striving to do better in all things," said Estrada. "I'm adamant about respectfully representing the United States and I want to make a positive impact on the future of my nation by setting goals to reach my fullest potential as a naval officer, aviator, and civil/structural engineer. I'm grateful for this chance and for everyone that supports me."

When Fields heard that he was accepted to the summer seminar, he said it was a dream come true. It was a difficult and emotional process to overcome barriers, Fields said, because as a child he endured other children picking on him and calling him "small and not smart" at school.

"I want to be looked up to, to be invoked with a sense of power and vigor that no common man wields," said Fields. "Without USKA, my parents and my friends, I don't think I would even have had a chance at getting accepted by the Naval Academy. I'm really excited that I am going to be able to show what I'm made of. I now know with enough dedication, discipline and desire — the desire to succeed — anything is possible for anybody."

The United States Naval Academy summer seminar is a fast-paced, six-day experience for high achievers who are interested in serving their country as an officer and who have completed their junior year in high school.

The program is broken into three sessions that began May 30 and end June 19. Summer seminar teaches about life at the Naval Academy.

Attendees stay in Bancroft Hall (the dormitory in which all Naval Academy midshipmen live). They eat in the dining hall, participate in academic and leadership workshops and experience a variety of other activities on campus.

Getting accepted to the summer seminar isn't an easy task. Estrada and Fields needed superior high school standing, strong SAT/ACT results and a GPA of 3.0 or higher.

Acceptance letters were only sent to candidates who demonstrated achievement in athletics and extracurricular activities, especially those that demonstrate leadership qualities.

Candidates also must exhibit a positive attitude and self-discipline. This is a competitive entry program because interest outweighs hosting capacity. From thousands of applicants from all over the world, only 750 or so are accepted to attend each session and are expected to work harder than they've ever worked before.

They are expected to push themselves beyond their old limits because becoming a midshipman is unlike freshman year at a civilian college.

Young men and women make a commitment to live a military lifestyle. They take an oath of office, promising to be loyal to their country and to defend it if necessary. They agree to be honorable in everything they do and say.

"This really gives me a great feeling to know that these two excellent guys have this chance," said Convento.

"What a great opportunity for Seth and Desmond to prove themselves," he said. "At USKA we strive to be the very best that we can be and this is the epitome."

2 Point Loma small businesses honored

The San Diego Regional Chamber of Commerce honored 10 outstanding local businesses at a Small Business Awards luncheon recently — including two Point Loma merchants.

The awards, handed out May 27, recognized innovative small businesses that support the local economy and community, including contributions of new ideas and services to the marketplace, according to chamber officials.

The honorees included United States Karate Academy, 2590 Truxtun Road, Suite 200 in Liberty Station, for excellence in customer service.

Also recognized was AArrow Advertising, 4312 Valeta St., for most innovative marketing campaign/concept.

"It is important to recognize these leaders in small business, especially during a recession, as they are vitally important to our local economy," said Ruben Barrales, president and CEO of the San Diego Regional Chamber of Commerce.

For information about the chamber, call (619) 544-1300, or visit www.sdchamber.org.

New passport program begins for border crossing

Americans driving across the border of Mexico or Canada — or traveling to the Caribbean or Bermuda — by land, sea or air must now possess a passport book or card to reenter the United States. In 2007, Americans were required to possess a passport to travel internationally via airplane and that restriction has now extended to land or sea travel.

Residents living in border communities who frequently cross the Mexican or Canadian border or who travel through seaports from the Caribbean and Bermuda can apply for a passport card, which is not valid for international air travel.

Vacationers are advised to apply for a passport in advance, which can take up to six weeks to receive. For an additional fee, applicants can receive a passport within two to three weeks. San Diegans can apply for a passport at the County Administration Center at 1600 Pacific Highway, Room 402, opened Monday to Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. No appointment is necessary. Passport cards cost $45 for first-time adult applicants and $35 for children. For more information visit www.sandiegocob.com or call (619) 531 5600.

Question: I have a family member that is handicapped and receiving benefits. Is there anything I can or should do to protect their inheritance?

Answer: Yes, there is something that you can and should do. A Special Needs Trust can be established and funded by you to ensure that this person does not lose their public benefits, social security disability, medical health insurance, regional center support and others. This would protect their inheritance from being used to support them and will keep them qualified for all the benefits that they are on or that they may have at the time of your death.

The disadvantage of this trust is that it must be irrevocable. Once the trust is established, you can not change it. The Trustees will remain the same and the beneficiary cannot change until the death of the first beneficiary. At their death, the remainder of the funds can be distributed to their siblings.

revisit the ones on [Sunset Cliffs Boulevard].”

Monday's meeting opened community debate on several issues.

Joel Siegfried, a 38-year resident, highlighted several potential dangers that walkers and joggers encounter along the trail.

“People have been injured by these [exposed bolts from the bench removal],” he said. “I don't know if you've been sued but people have been injured.”

He pointed to jagged protruding bolts, adding that people continue to sit on the guardrail even without benches.

About 30 residents, staff members from City Council District 2 and an Ocean Beach Town Council representative attended the meeting to speak out on several topics concerning the Sunset Cliffs Natural Park Master Plan.

Part of the plan includes allowing a softball field inside the park to return to its natural state. Point Loma Nazarene University has maintained the softball field for roughly 30 years, according to Point Loma Nazarene University (PLNU) spokeswoman Megan Ekard.

The field played home to the university's women's softball team.

PLNU officials said decisions affecting the park are out of their hands.

“We realize that it was a great resource for the community but there was really nothing more we could do about it,” said Ekard, PLNU's director of community outreach and governmental relations, during a phone interview.

Ann Swanson, chair of the Sunset Cliffs Natural Park Recreation Council, said the return of the ball-field to its natural state was part of the plan all along.

“The baseball field was temporary,” Swanson said. “[And] the city was ready for the next steps of the master plan.”

A walk through the campus and around the park reveals that some in the community have started to notice the effects of the plan.

Many families and others in the community used to play baseball and have picnics on the softball field, said Dan Citron, an Ocean Beach resident who walks his dog through the park almost daily.

“Now we're going to be left with a dustbowl,” said Citron, who sat among audience members Monday. He added that developments in the park, such as a gate installed by the Navy, limit public access along the trails to relatively secluded beach areas.

Leaders of the Sunset Cliffs Natural Park Council said the plan has been in the works for more than a decade and invited Monday's participants and others to attend future meetings.

The City Council approved the Sunset Cliffs Master Plan in 2005 after an extensive environmental review process, Swanson said.

The master plan calls for the placement of native plants and vegetation. The plan caused some community upheaval with the removal of eucalyptus trees around the park several months ago.

But while some in the community worry about trees, benches and baseball fields, Ocean Beach resident Richard Aguirre said residents are missing the bigger problems stemming from erosion of the cliffs caused by surface runoff during heavy rain.

Aguirre founded the group Save Sunset Cliffs, a grassroots group of Ocean Beach and neighboring residents who want to preserve the park and its historic surf-community culture.

Aguirre said is also planning to run for governor of California.

Aguirre has been pushing the city to install a storm drain along Cordova Street to prevent some of the rainwater runoff from undermining sections of the boulevard and cliffs.

He said ongoing improvements will change the historic surfing culture of Ocean Beach and Sunset Cliffs Natural Park into a tourist trap.

“We need to preserve the boulevard and ... cliffs and keep the city from turning it into another Mission Trails,” Aguirre said during the meeting.

A handful of Save Sunset Cliffs members attended Monday's meeting.

The Sunset Cliffs Natural Park Recreation Council has about 32 voting members who act as the official advisory committee to the city of San Diego.

The Sunset Cliffs Natural Park Recreation Council voted in 2008 to limit the number of voting members to 35 at the direction of the San Diego Park and Recreation Department's director.

The council meets on the first Monday of the month at the Cabrillo Recreation Center, 3051 Cañon St. at 6:45 p.m.

The group meets next on July 6.

MEA officials said May 29 that Italiano allegedly reimbursed the union for $13,000. But Lepine said the former general manager owes much more.

“We're hopeful that having her removed will get some money back into the coffers,” Lepine said. “[Union members] pay a substantial amount in dues.”

In the May 29 letter to members, MEA officials said they referred the matter to the district attorney's office for “its determination as to whether any crime was committed...” Harris said he asked San Diego District Attorney Bonnie Dumanis' office to perform a complete audit of the current MEA board.

“We've received the request to investigate [the MEA] and we're reviewing it,” said Steve Walker, deputy communications director for Dumanis.

Meanwhile, lifeguards continued planning for an election to determine if a majority of San Diego lifeguards want to leave the MEA to join the 911 teamsters, Harris said.

“We're currently working with labor relations and the MEA to come up with the rules of the vote,” Harris said. “Once we get that set up, we're hoping to come up with a vote sometime in late July.”

Water: Problems and solutions for San Diego

Dr. MIGNON SCHERER

— Editor's note: The following is a formal resolution presented by Scherer to the San Diego City Council recently. The council did not vote on the proposed resolution:

WHEREAS: History tells us that the 20th century was an aberration as far as rainfall in the San Diego region because it produced much greater rainfall than in previous centuries, thus the San Diego region is not a semi-desert but a desert.

WHEREAS: Desert conditions were not important in previous centuries because the population was small and sustainable, but now the numbers of people moving into the San Diego region is about four times as many as the numbers born here every year.

WHEREAS: Rapid global warming due to industrialization has caused huge losses of rainfall, loss of most of our imported water (which has accounted for 90 percent of our water from the Colorado River), loss of snowpack runoff from the mountains and loss of most of the Sacramento/Delta water because of the endangered Delta smelt and the huge probability of the destruction the Delta levies in the aftermath of an almost-certain earthquake in the San Francisco area in the next 20 years.

WHEREAS: The diminishing water supply to feed the cities has caused Sacramento to drastically curtail water supplies to farmers, which endangers our food supply and our economy and unemployment rate as the costs of food rise when food must be imported.

WHEREAS: Climate scientists tell us that changes in rainfall patterns will bring drought to four areas of the world: 1.) Parts of Australia (as witness the recent dust storms, extremely high temperatures and raging out-of-control fires), 2.) Southern Europe, 3.) Northern Africa, and 4.) the American Southwest.

WHEREAS: Climate scientists report that even if by some miracle the nations of the world could bring carbon dioxide levels back to those of the pre-industrial era, it would take 1,000 years or longer for the climate changes already triggered to be reversed and carbon dioxide trends are still increasing.

WHEREAS: The city of San Diego has declared a Drought Response Level 2, requiring San Diegans to conserve more water starting June 2009. Many San Diegans have expressed resistance to shouldering the burden of water rationing and higher costs while new development projects continue to get approval and our present city attorney ignores this.

WHEREAS: Many underground aquifers in San Diego County are infiltrated with brackish water and desalinization is extremely costly and very detrimental to the air and to marine life. Poseidon has stated publicly that should they be required by the water agencies to offset their entire carbon footprint, then the technology would be cost-prohibitive.

WHEREAS: San Diego is currently importing more water from the Metropolitan Water District (MWD) than it has legal rights to (the San Diego County Water Authority uses about 22 percent of MWD's water supply, even though it is only entitled to 15 percent).

WHEREAS: Property-tax revenues are less than the costs and continuing costs of new developments, e.g. roads, public transit, schools, fire and police stations, libraries, etc. Growth is costly and growth for growth's sake is the definition of cancer. When Quarry Falls is completed it will add nearly $2.8 million per year in additional revenue to the city. However, there will be over $100 million in unpaid infrastructure costs. Additionally, it and other large developments are in outright violation of state law.

WHEREAS: Construction workers can be put to work at green jobs, e.g. solar installation, rapid transit, etc. Suppose that blacksmiths had prevented the automobile from being built because it would put them out of business. Change is of the essence of life — even rocks change over time. The economic argument is manipulative and false.

WHEREAS: We need a national water policy and we don't have one! San Diego could set an example and pave the way because lack of water is the greatest threat to our planet. All other issues pale in comparison. There are no emergency rooms for sick planets!

THEREFORE: We propose that there will be no new water hookups as long as rationing endures in order that San Diegans are not forced to conserve water only to see it poured down the seemingly endless hole dug by new development. And in the name of public safety and welfare, exemptions should be made for hospitals, police and fire stations, etc.

— *Minon Scherer has been a resident of San Diego for 53 years. She is the former chair of the Lesser San Diego, former chair of the Sierra Club's Slow Growth Committee, worked to enact the 1972 San Diego coastal 30-foot height limit initiative and the 1972 California Coastal Commission ordinance, also serving a 5-year term on the Peninsula Community Planning Board and presently a member of a proposed Peninsula Town Council. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

City should contract out meter reading

On a Tuesday I looked out a front window and saw a city worker going down the street reading water meters. The next day, I looked out a back window and saw a San Diego Gas & Electric worker reading my gas and electric meters.

As he left, he passed by my water meter on the way to my neighbor's house.

If the city of San Diego, wants to save money, then contracting out the reading of water meters to SDG&E is a good place to start. We should be able to cut the cost of water-meter reading by 50 percent or more.

Cliffside-bench debate should be reasoned

My husband and I are writing to protest the unethical/illegal removal of our benches along Sunset Cliffs. It is unconscionable how this decision was made without any consultation or input from those most affected, i.e., the people who live and walk each day along this beautiful place and the Sunset Cliffs Natural Park Recreation Council.

Many letters of protest have been sent to date so we will not belabor those again. However, we would like to emphasize how much this act/decision was so like what has happened in our country today in federal, state and local issues. We have forgotten to be responsible in a democratic way!

We all keep saying — over and over — transparency is necessary for our own acts, for those in every level of government and that the voices of local folk be heard with important issues. Look how easy it is for people in government, no matter what level, to just make decisions that greatly affect others in painful short and long-term ways.

When many of the protest letters were sent — all of them mentioned the spiritual beauty of this area but it has been more than that. My husband was a physician in the U.S. Army for 26 years — we both worked and taught in medicine over the years in many cultures.

We came to San Diego in 1985 because we thought it represented the best of American ways and respect for all, including people and the environment.

When Sept. 11, 2001, occurred, hundreds of people met each evening on the cliffs with candles lit for those who died. For weeks, it was a way in which to grieve as a community and as Americans. Many could not stand and were able to sit down and join the prayers.

Jake died recently at the age of 90 years but I still include him in all of important areas of my life.

He would be editing this letter with me.

Let us all DO THE RIGHT THING! Let us discuss, evaluate and then proceed to make right what has been done wrong! If we all work together, we can rebuild solid benches (that won't fall apart) and bring back our walking community to Sunset Cliffs.

Speak to the people who go there everyday — those who haven't even been there, keep your counsel until all the facts are explored.

Gonzalez catches fire with 22 HRs

By MARTIN JONES WESTLIN | THE BEACON

Padres first baseman Adrian Gonzalez continues to swing a hot bat, leading the major league in homers with 22.

A San Diego Padre leads the major leagues in home runs so far this year, with 22 as of June 3. First baseman Adrian Gonzalez is sort of the Ernie Banks of his generation, at least for the moment; Banks, the great Cubs slugger, couldn't buy a pennant in the 1950s amid his teammates' streaky hitting and defense (just like ours). The difference is that Gonzalez is on pace to hit 69 dingers this year. The best Banks could do was 47.

There is a lot to celebrate in 2009 so far, despite the Dads' current two-game losing streak (as of June 3) and its unsung .500 win-loss mark. The club had lost 19 of 23 after squandering a 9-3 start and was headed for baseball ignominy.

A ten-game win skein (which would have been 12 but for a 6-5 defeat) and at least one brilliant marketing move (the acquisition of the very good center fielder Tony Gwynn Jr.) righted the ship. And if the NL West-leading Dodgers weren't pitching so well, who knows what might have been in store as the Padres prepare to close out the first third of the season in the next few days.

But amid all those numbers, one stat — Gonzalez's home run percentage versus his fly-ball outs — stands out far and away. No less than 35 percent of his fly balls make it to the stands within the field of play. When you consider the untold variables involved — the velocity and trajectory of the ball; the ball's curved surface, which must be struck by another curved surface; the type and selection of pitch; the pitcher's disposition toward the left or right hand (Gonzalez is a left-handed batter) — the odds of a ball reaching the stands 22 times a season, let alone its first two months, look that much less likely, on an exponential scale.

Should Gonzalez get his 69 home runs, he'll have achieved the nearly impossible, on a par with the perfect game. Only 15 pitchers, after all, have accomplished that amazing feat. Sixty-plus home runs have been hit in just eight seasons, and those by only five players.

"I've calmed down since Friday," said senior pitcher Andrew Bovich. "Emotions were running high a few days ago but we had a good run this year with a bitter-sweet ending."

Bovich improved tremendously this season after going 6-4 in 2008. He went 13-1 overall this season with a 1.70 ERA — easily the ace of PLNU's pitching staff.

"I played in the summer league at Carolina last year and faced some great hitters from Georgia and North Carolina," Bovich said. "So when I came back, I was more prepared to face the college hitters."

PLNU began the College World Series with a 10-0 victory over Embry-Riddle University (Fla), followed it with an 8-3 win over Oklahoma City, then grabbed a slim 2-1 win over Lubbock Christian.

The Sea Lions then defeated Lee University 8-6 and were poised to win the school's first national title with Bovich, their undefeated ace on the mound, until Lubbock Christian crashed the party with a 5-1 win over Point Loma. Bovich pitched well enough to go 14-0 but the offense failed to come through that day.

This year represented the program's fourth overall College World Series appearance. The first two appearances were under legendary PLNU head coach and former Athletic Director Carroll B. Land in 1993 and 1994. The Sea Lions returned 10 years later under Schaefer. They finished third in 1993 and 2004.

The Sea Lions earned numerous awards this season. Bovich and senior outfielder Kurt Steinhauer were named Honorable Mention All-NAIA. Steinhauer hit .379 this season with 19 home runs, 52 RBI and earned a Rawlins Gold Glove award for his defensive efforts. Steinhauer also earned the NAIA Charlie Hustle Award for best effort.

The team was honored as the NAIA Buffalo Funds Five-Star Champion of Character award. The team that wins the award exhibits five core character values: respect, responsibility, integrity, servant leadership and sportsmanship.

"The character award is something I was very proud of," Schaefer said. "There were a lot of good teams in the tournament and for us to win it meant a lot to me."

Bovich will graduate this fall but said he will remember his years at PLNU fondly.

"Overall, I loved it," Bovich said. "I bounced around different colleges for two or three years before I came here. When I came here I was accepted by the school and education-wise it is a fine school. It was great experience."

Now that the younger players have tasted success and almost experienced the feeling of being national champions, Schaefer said he is optimistic about his team's chances next year.

"I expect us to be just as talented next year as we were this year," Schaefer said. "This year, the chemistry with those 26 guys was incredible. Next year, it's a matter of how they gel as a team."

PLA makes it a banner month for Peninsula musicians, teachers

By BART MENDOZA | THE BEACON

People in most fields of employment infrequently get the recognition they deserve, but when it comes to musicians — and music teachers in particular — this is especially true. This week, the Point Loma Association (PLA) is taking steps to correct this with a new banner program highlighting local performers and educators.

Following nominations from the public, a series of 48 banners — featuring the images of 32 musicians and music educators from the Peninsula area — will go up along Rosecrans Boulevard in the Point Loma Village. Sponsored by the PLA, the banners tie in to the annual San Diego County Fair that opens June 12. This year's fair features a theme of "Music Mania."

The idea to honor musicians was generated by the county fair board, but it was the PLA which decided to include music educators.

"We were so pleased that there were so many nominations in that arena," said Pat Baker, former chair of the PLA's Summer Concert Series and part of the nominating committee. "There are lots of wonderful people who teach in our schools and it's great to be able to give them some recognition."

Among the musicians being recognized are jazz bassist Bob Magnusson, boogie-woogie pianist Sue Palmer, Go Man Go leader Glen Fisher and The Grams' frontman Chuck Schiele, as well as educators like Melissa Simmons, who is director of music at Point Loma High School, Alicia McMillan, music teacher at Loma Portal Elementary and Dell Schroeder, founder of the Band at the Beach music camp. The banners will be up through mid-July. Because of the amount of banners needed for the area, a few people will have multiple postings.

Musician Glen Fisher, who also leads a youth music movement called First Friday Music Club, is among the honorees of a banner program recognizing local musicians and music educators.

Honorees will be allowed to keep their banners. At six feet in height, a large indoor space will be required for proper display afterward. Schiele is considering gifting his to his mother, while Schroeder hopes to collectively use a few at her beach camp in early August.

"Several of the 'banner folks' will work with me at the event," Schroeder said. "If I can talk them into sharing their banners, and I can hang them at the school, they will add a nice touch to the week."

Meanwhile, Fisher said he might be willing to alter his lifestyle to accommodate the oversize displays.

"I'm kinda hoping they'll fit on my Chevy, at least until I get a castle to display them in," Fisher joked.

Schroeder said the nomination came as a total surprise to her.

"I feel privileged to be 'rubbing elbows' with the likes of the rest of those nominees," Schroeder said. "Music is the only language that cuts across all boundaries and that is why I do what I do, and why I teach advocacy for the fine arts."

For Schiele, the accolade is "humbling and flattering. I am beside myself with honor," Schiele said. "But mainly, I'm very happy that someone noticed the collective talent and hard-working ethic of musicians around here."

Palmer concurs.

"It's an honor to be presented on Rosecrans Boulevard with other Point Loma musicians," Palmer said. "I grew up in Ocean Beach, in the Sunset Cliffs area, and it's one of the most beautiful places in the world."

Fisher considers the nod from the PLA and area residents to be inspiring.

"When you believe in something, and you work hard at it for a long time, trying to change things and bring awareness to people, you encounter many obstacles and little glory," Fisher said.

"To get this type of recognition and to realize that my community believes in what I'm doing, well, it's just what the doctor ordered.

You know, kinda like a really good golf shot? It just makes you wanna play some more," he said.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT TO GET UNIQUE LOOK AT U. S. NAVAL ACADEMY WHILE ATTENDING FAST-PACED SUMMER SEMINAR

ANNAPOLIS, MD—The Naval Academy invited a select group of approximately 2,250 young men and women from around the nation and world to attend the Naval Academy Summer Seminar this summer. Summer Seminar is a fast-paced, six-day experience for high achievers who have completed their junior year in high school and are considering applying for admission to the Academy after graduation.

Justin Peabody (son of Virginia Weber), a student at Bishop's High School in La Jolla, will participate in the U.S. Naval Academy Summer Seminar program.

Summer Seminar will teach prospective applicants about life at the Naval Academy, where academics, athletics, and professional training play equally important roles in developing our nation's leaders. Each student will attend a six-day session and experience a part of Academy life. They will live in Bancroft Hall (the dormitory in which all Academy midshipmen live), eat in the dining hall, participate in academic and leadership workshops and experience a variety of other activities on the campus. They will have an opportunity to see first-hand what the Academy has to offer through its exceptional academic, athletic, extracurricular activities and leadership training programs.

The Summer Seminar will have an academic focus. Each student will attend eight 90-minute workshops, covering subjects from Information Technology, Naval Architecture and Mechanical Engineering, to Oceanography, Mathematics, History and Meteorology. They will also participate in Seamanship and Navigation classes and will take an actual cruise aboard a Yard Patrol (YP) Craft to apply what they will learn in class. Naval Academy students (Midshipmen) run Summer Seminar with oversight by active duty Navy and Marine Corps officers.

Founded in 1845, the Naval Academy is a highly competitive four-year undergraduate institution that prepares young men and women morally, mentally and physically to be Navy or Marine Corps officers. Upon graduation, Naval Academy Midshipmen receive a Bachelor of Science degree in one of 22 majors and a commission as ensigns in the U. S. Rhapsody on the Point trumpets school music programs, supporters

By PATRICIA M. WALSH | THE BEACON

The music of great American composer Aaron Copland and contemporary musician Frank Ticheli generated by the Point Loma High School (PLHS) band during the second annual Rhapsody on the Point on May 29 sounded the depth and breadth of a music program that continues its crescendo in Peninsula-area schools.

Under the direction of James Sepulvado, associate director of music at PLHS, and music teacher Melissa Simmons, the evening of music was performed by the school's 67-member concert band, a smaller symphonic winds section and for the first time "in a long, long time," said Simmons, a separate string orchestra. The orchestra was made up of 16 students. Thirteen of the evening's performers were members of the District Honor Orchestra or honor band and 16 of the students will be graduating June 15 with the class of 2009.

The event was held at Point Loma Nazarene University's Crill Hall.

The concert and fundraiser also honored Dell Schroeder, a local musician, teacher and founder of Band at the Beach, whose lifelong dedication to music was instrumental in the resurgence of the music program in Point Loma's schools after the passage of Proposition 13 in 1978, all but eliminated the music programs.

PLHS Principal Bobbie Samilson presented a proclamation from the San Diego City Council that night, declaring May 29 Dell Schroeder Day in San Diego. As Samilson did, Schroeder had in her pockets two souvenirs — a newspaper clipping from the Sept. 6, 1992 Union-Tribune titled "Strike out the band - Elementary schools lose instrumental instruction" illustrated by instruments in a trash, and a rusty double-headed faucet from car washes she participated in over the years to raise money for local music programs.

"Dell gives the gift of melody, harmony and rhythm" to students, said Shawn Loescher, a former PLHS drum major, who gave a tribute to Schroeder during the event. This summer, for the 21st year, Schroeder will teach Band at the Beach and summer music camp from Aug. 3-7 at Correia Junior High School.

Louise Lucas, who served as mistress of ceremonies for the event, thanked the audience of mostly band members' parents and boosters for their support.

"The audience is just as important as the band," Lucas said, because "without which there would not be a concert."

Keynote speaker and guest soloist was trumpeter John Wilds, an accomplished musician and teacher who is currently the principal trumpet of the San Diego Chamber Orchestra and the San Diego Opera. Wilds touted the PLHS band as "first class" because the students were "focused, devoted and willing to put in the extra time," which, he said, "speaks highly of the community."

Wilds said the band's accomplishments were significant and went beyond the application of digital technology for garage bands and transcended history with "students bringing 19th century work into the 21st century."

Plans are under way to convert a vacant 2,500-square-foot building at PLHS into a state-of-the-art music center.

The building will provide a facility to accommodate the PLHS choir, concert and marching bands, and the all-city honor band, according to members of the PLHS Foundation.

The center will "also enable the development of a symphony orchestra, and provide capabilities for the recording and production of digital music for students and community members," reads the foundation's website.

The center is being made possible by a partnership between the PLHS Foundation, PLHS and the San Diego Unified School District.

The ZLAC Rowing Club Camp

Introduces girls to the fun involved in the sport of rowing, whether their interest is in increasing basic fitness or progressing to competitive rowing as a member of the ZLAC Juniors crew team. No rowing experience or equipment is required. The girls develop a passion for rowing; enjoy the camaraderie of the sport, and love being able to train on the beautiful waters of Mission Bay.

ZLAC has produced three Olympic champions, as well as U.S. national team participants; and top universities in the U.S have recruited ZLAC Juniors crew team members. ZLAC boasts a newly built boathouse containing a wide variety of boats and state-of-the-art training equipment and ergometers, as well as a beach-front clubhouse. ZLAC is an acronym for the names of the women who founded the club in San Diego in 1892, making it the oldest women's rowing club in the world.

Finding a Balanced Camp: Technology and the Outdoors

One concern of parents sending children to computer-based camps is how active the experience will be. Will the whole day be spent in front of the computer? How can I balance my child's interest in technology with my desire for them to have a physically active camp experience? One option is to sign up separately for computer-based camps and for sports camps. The costs, however, can add up quickly. An alternative is to consider programs that balance the two areas with very unique experiences. Students looking to combine an interest in filmmaking with an interest in skateboarding can participate in a weeklong camp called Skateboarding and Filmmaking with the Digital Media Academy (DMA). Teens visit three skate parks and receive instruction from experts while also capturing the action on film. In a state of the art classroom studio, students learn to edit and integrate special effects to create a skateboarding video. This camp will be offered at UCSD. DMA also offers a Surfing and Filmmaking camp at UCSD. Students improve surfing skills and create a video.

For more information on these camps, including dates, and on other DMA camps for kids and teens, please visit digitalmediaacademy.org or call 866-656-3342.
