Annual marshmallow war stirs up controversy

Residents and lifeguards survey the sidewalks near the Ocean Beach Pier following the long-running marshmallow war that occurs after every Fourth of July fireworks display. Some locals, saddled with sticky shoes and the cost of cleanup, said they have had enough. Photo by Jim Grant | The Beacon

Residents, merchants tiring of the costly, sticky tradition

Tempers are flaring over Ocean Beach's escalating marshmallow war and the costly cleanup associated with it.

The annual Ocean Beach Marshmallow Fight — a beach tradition that follows the Fourth of July community fireworks show from the OB Pier — has seemingly turned from frivolous fun to tasteless controversy in the eyes of some.

What began in 1985 as a small, inter-family affair between the Grosch and Zounes families, who hosted rival Fourth of July holiday parties, has morphed over time into a large-scale, frenzied event leaving the community to clean up the gooey mess.

Fun is fun, but some merchants and residents are beginning to wonder whether it's time for the party to be over.

"What started out as a friendly thing with OB kids has just gotten out of hand," said longtime Ocean Beach resident Bill Joyce, chef/owner of Surfside Cuisine Catering. "I really was upset about it this year. It was so much more than expected. Just massive amounts of marshmallows and the boardwalk literally caked."

The time — and expense — of cleaning marshmallows from the Fourth of July mess are mushrooming, said critics.

"We're attempting to deal with it as best we can," said Denny Knox, executive director of the OB MainStreet Association, which has nothing to do with organizing the event. "We've spent $3,000 [so far this year]. Once it (mess) was small, on the sand and could be raked up pretty easily. Now it's really gotten too big."

Oversize-vehicle law rolls toward reality citywide

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

After first deadlocking 4-4 on a new oversize-vehicle ordinance pilot program targeting just coastal areas, the City Council then voted 6-2 on July 8 to implement a more costly citywide plan.

Councilmembers Sherri Lightner of District 1 and David Alvarez of District 8 opposed the final measure. Councilwoman Marti Emerald of District 9 was absent.

Some councilmembers said they were concerned that a citywide oversize-vehicle pilot program might be too costly and unwieldy to manage. But council president Todd Gloria, speaking for the majority, expressed fear that implementing a coastal-only pilot program would be unfair and push the problem of illegally parked oversize vehicles elsewhere.

Several RV owners argued that a punitive ordinance would be excessive, warning it could force low-income people, with no other alternative but to live in their vehicles, into homelessness.

As originally proposed, the oversize-vehicle ordinance pilot program would only have been introduced in the coastal areas of Lightner in District 1 and that of District 2 City Councilman Kevin

Got issues with your utility bill? Help is a phone call away

By TONY De GARATE | THE BEACON

If you open your water and sewer bill and it looks too high, David Akin is the one to call. He's served more than 12 years in customer support for the city's Public Utilities Department, including the last two years in his capacity as consumer advocate.

It's a job he takes very seriously, Akin told members of the Ocean Beach Town Council during the group's regular monthly meeting June 26.

Anyone with a billing dispute or problem with service should expect to be treated the same as a lawyer's client, said Akin, whose resume also includes eight years as an attorney and stints in customer service for Southern California Edison and Houston Lighting and Power.

"I will do everything I can to get a 'yes' for you," Akin said.

He said there are four reasons for an expected spike in local utility bills: misreading a meter, leaks, theft of service and higher consumption.

Most of time, people with suddenly higher bills just use too much water, Akin said. Kids home for the summer, refilling a swimming pool, new landscaping or overwatering are likely causes, he said.

A running toilet is the most common leak problem.

"Put some dye tablets in the tank and check in a half-hour or so. If the dye makes it to the bowl, you have a leak," Akin said.

Customers who discover and fix a leaky pipe can ask for an adjustment on their bill, he said.

The other reasons are less common but worth checking. You can verify the meter reading stated on your bill by checking it yourself. The meter is usually located

Robb Field visitors take osprey family under their wings with vigilant watch

By JORGE VALCARCEL
SPECIAL TO THE BEACON

There are a lot of proud parents at Robb Field these days, and they are not just soccer moms. The ospreys that nest there have raised a beautiful brood of three fledglings and a small group of regular admirers has gradually begun to consider themselves part of the family.

Ospreys, also known as seahawks, are very large raptors that feed almost entirely on fish. Their wingspan can grow to over 70 inches. They are unique among hawks and eagles in that they have an outer toe that they use for grabbing on to fish. The osprey loves to hunt in the shallow waters of the San Diego River. You've probably seen them

Residents chime in on wish list for OB's future

By TONY DE GARATE | THE BEACON

Kathy Blavatt of the Ocean Beach Historical Society wants better protection for historic trees like the beautiful Monterrey cypress near Cable Street and several Torrey pines on Saratoga Avenue.

Bicycle activist Nicole Burgess wants infrastructure that emphasizes safety and making things easier for people to get around on bike and on foot.

Resident Vince Adame wants to clear up confusion about regulations that govern special events around the Ocean Beach Pier and to make sure setup crews aren't allowed to make too much noise when people are trying to sleep.

Those were a few of the wishes expressed July 3 when the Ocean Beach Planning Board (OBPB) voted 7-0 to authorize the release of a draft plan designed to guide growth and address quality-of-life issues in OB over the next 20

Eleven years in the making, the document, known officially as the Ocean Beach Community Plan and Local Coastal Program, contains specific recommendations for such weighty topics as land use, transportation, urban design, public utilities and historic preservation. The 166-page plan also assesses public-facility needs like schools, libraries and parks; and fire, police and lifeguard stations.

The plan and accompanying environmental impact report will be available on the city's website and in hard-copy form at the Ocean Beach Branch Library by July 26, the official release date. However, it can already be viewed at the OBPB's website, oceanbeachplanning.org.

The plan has a long way to go before ultimate adoption early next year by the California Coastal Commission. It must still be reviewed by various City Council committees before it comes to the full council in November, said senior city planner Maxx Stalheim, the plan's author. OBPB chairman Tom Gawronski said it's likely he will schedule a town hall-style meeting next month, possibly under the joint banner with the Ocean Beach Town Council.

But many Obeceans who have examined the plan are already eager to share their thoughts, as evidenced by the recent OBPB meeting.

Frank Gormlie, former OBPB chairman and editor of obrag.org, said all the good intentions expressed in the plan could be for naught if they aren't supported by funding and proper enforcement.

"There's lots of great, flowery language. That's what planners like to do," Gormlie said. "When that language is connected to common sense [and] money sources, it's great."

How to Sell High: Avoid these Three Mistakes When Selling Your Point Loma or Ocean Beach Home This Summer

Point Loma/Ocean Beach - When you decide to sell your home, setting your asking price is one of the most important decisions you will ever make. Depending on how a buyer is made aware of your home, price is often the first thing he or she sees, and many homes are discarded by prospective buyers as not being in the appropriate price range before they're even given a chance of showing.

Your asking price is often your home's "first impression", and if you want to realize the most money you can for your home, it's imperative that you make a good first impression.

This is not as easy as it sounds, and pricing strategy should not be taken lightly. Pricing too high can be as costly to a homeseller as pricing too low. Taking a look at what homes in your neighborhood have sold for is only a small part of the process, and on it's own is not nearly enough to help you make the best decision. A recent study, which compiles 10 years of industry research, has resulted in a new special report entitled "Homesellers: How to Get the Price You Want (and Need)". This report will help you understand pricing strategy from three different angles. When taken together, this information will help you price your home to not only sell, but sell for the price you want.

Local nonprofit helps feed city's hungry with quality fish

By ETHAN ORENSTEIN | THE BEACON

A local ocean enthusiast has found a sustainable way to use his passion for sportfishing to help feed the region's hungry.

In 2010, Todd Bluechel founded and funded Fish. Food. Feel Good. (F3G) to collect unwanted excess fish from sportfishing fleets and donate it to charities that feed people in need. Since its inception, F3G has donated more than 150,000 free meals to seven charities, including Father Joe's Village of San Diego, the San Diego Food Bank and Meals-on-Wheels.

The idea came to Bluechel in 2008 after watching Robert Redford's film "Lions for Lambs."

"What I took from the movie was everybody needs to do something for the greater good, outside of their own little world to help others," Bluechel said.

He didn't want to simply donate money or old clothes, so he decided to start something that wasn't being done before.

Growing up around boats and San Diego's sport fishing industry, Bluechel knew San Diego has one of the best fishing fleets in the country. He also knew there were hungry people who needed help. Since sportfishing fleets account for less than 1 percent of the total catch, F3G is able to help feed people without contributing to the problem of overfishing.

"I wanted to create a transparent, very legal way to collect the fish from the sportfishermen and give it to those who need it," he said.

Since each person is allowed to keep 20 fish per day, Bluechel said there is often unwanted catch. Individual fishermen have donated unwanted fish to charities in the past, but F3G eliminates the obstacles by allowing fishermen to donate their fish at the processing facilities on the docks. Once the fish are donated, F3G takes care of the rest.

"I've often found the simpler you make something, the more likely people are to use it," Bluechel said. "I've not met one fisherman who isn't ecstatic about the process and the program because it's a great thing to catch a fish and be able to serve it as a meal, let alone be able to give that meal to someone who needs it."

Bluechel eventually hopes to replicate F3G across the nation with the goal of providing 1 million free meals annually.

After three years of feeding those in need, Bluechel said he credits much of the organization's success to the fishermen themselves.

"Without them, I couldn't do it. Without their generosity, I couldn't do it," Bluechel said.

In August, F3G will host a one-and-a-half-day fishing trip to raise money for the organization locally and to help fund its expansion.

To donate and learn more about F3G, visit www.f3g.org.

Council split, but reaffirms support of managed competition idea

By MANNY LOPEZ | THE BEACON

The City Council passed a resolution on June 25, reaffirming its support for the 2006 voter-approved managed-competition program, and urged Mayor Bob Filner to fully implement it.

Managed competition is a concept whereby groups of government workers can bid against private firms to provide specific city services.

Authored by District 2 City Councilman Kevin Faulconer, the June 25 resolution came in response to uncertainty caused by Filner's reluctance to move forward on managed competitions in solid-waste collections, capital-improvement program delivery, Transportation Engineering Division operations, storm-water operations and the Public Utilities customer-care center.

"The mayor has wanted to put a program on ice that voters overwhelmingly approved," Faulconer said. "To date, we have saved over $12 million dollars without reducing services to San Diegans and we should not stop this very important reform."

"I will continue to urge very strongly that we move forward with this," he said. "Millions of dollars are at stake and every dollar we save is a dollar that we can invest in public safety, our streets, parks and libraries."

Faulconer said that of the five competitions completed so far, all have been won by the classified service. They include printing, fleet maintenance, landfill operations, street and sidewalk maintenance and street sweeping.

Francisco Estrada, the mayor's council representative, said the results of an ongoing study started in early spring to look at the potential impact of managed competition should be completed on schedule late in July.

Estrada said the study will give a concrete picture of what has been saved and also give ideas on improvements to the managed competition guide already adopted by the city in 2010. He said millions in savings has already been derived by other means, like converting service workers to a four-day, 10-hour work week.

"Nobody is more committed to saving taxpayer dollars than Mayor Filner," Estrada said. "He believes that managed competition could be one of those tools that, especially if it's streamlined and improved, could save us millions of dollars. But it's not the only tool."

Councilwoman Marti Emerald, who cast one of the two dissenting votes, dismissed the resolution as "ceremonial" and questioned savings assumptions of $9.8 million in the 2014 budget as a result of managed competition. Emerald charged the actual savings figure reported is inaccurate and that current service levels have traditionally been set far too low.

"If approved, it should reflect the actual savings achieved," Emerald said. "This is not a criticism of managed competition. If it helps to come together and come up with ways to save money and be more efficient, that's great. Let's be accurate in these resolutions going forward."

Councilwoman Myrtle Cole, who cast the other dissenting vote, said Filner and his staff should be given the opportunity to restructure as previous mayors have.

"I believe that employees should first be given the opportunity to propose efficiencies in cost savings," Cole said. "I also believe that we should let this city become more efficient first, prior to threatening the jobs of our work force. As everyone stated, managed competition was intended to be one of many tools, not the only one."

The vote was 6-2, with all four Republicans on the council — Faulconer, Mark Kersey, Scott Sherman and Lorie Zapf — voting in favor of the resolution. They were joined by Democrats Todd Gloria and Sherri Lightner. Councilman David Alvarez was absent.

Old Dixon Estate leveled by city crews

The former Dixon Estate at Sunset Cliffs has finally been leveled. Neighbors have complained for years that the property was being used for parties by gangs and drug users.

A recent blaze in the lower "house" apparently lit a flame under the city to remove all the buildings except for some of the foundation for fear of cliff erosion.

Samuel Portillo, a resident engineer with the city and on-site manager, said crews will also be removing non-native plants like bamboo and eucalyptus trees to give police a better view of the area. Portillo said the city will be planting native plants and erect chains and warning posts to secure the area closest to the cliffs.

Sometimes referred to by locals as the "Habitat for the Homeless" or the "Abandoned Mansion," the property was named after the Dixon family, which founded the Unfinished Furniture stores. The home was located on the south side on the lightposts on your way to and from work. Ospreys can spot their prey from more than 120 feet into the air. They hover and zero in, then dive into the water and hook the fish with their talons. In fact, ospreys are the only fishermen that I have ever seen actually catching anything in the San Diego River.

They nest in any tall structures, from trees to telephone poles. The ospreys are migratory birds that are found throughout the globe, but our Southern California ospreys don't migrate.

Seahawks nest, like other birds, in the springtime and by summer, if they are lucky, they have anywhere from one to four chicks. Most birds mate for life, and ospreys are no different. Both parents raise the young. The eggs incubate for five weeks and the babies take about 8-10 more weeks to learn to fly.

At Robb Field, human eyes are aloft, hoping to see the young bird's first flight. The baby ospreys will flap their wings in the nest to practice and build strength. Once ready, they will take their first, usually a short, flight. From there, it is off to the river, learning to fish with mom and dad. After that, the young birds are on their own.

The largest young osprey is learning to hover above the nest for a few seconds at a time. He will be a full-fledged fledgling soon.

Inside the Robb Field Fitness Center, the manager has a picture of the newborn ospreys from when they were first sighted in early April. He displays it with loving pride. He has been watching the young parents closely and said he feels a close connection with the family.

The ospreys have their fans, but life can be rough for a bird living in a civilized world. They suffered huge population declines because of pesticides in the early part of the 20th century, but have made a remarkable comeback since then. In part, their ability to co-exist and thrive next to and in large human population centers has caused them new problems.

Three years ago an osprey couple were senselessly killed with a blowgun on the Sunset Cliffs Boulevard Bridge. Ospreys are protected by the Federal Migratory Bird Act of 1918, and this cruelty is not taken lightly by U.S. Fish and Wildlife officials or the bird lovers who flock to admire these beautiful creatures along the San Diego River.

Two years ago, someone destroyed an osprey nest in Robb Field, killing the young birds that were in it. Now, park management and birdwatchers keep a close eye out for suspicious activity, with a near-constant vigil around the nesting sights to ward off those who might perform these malicious acts.

Last year, there was one chick hatched, but it did not make it to the fledgling stage. It is easy to see why this year these three very large baby birds are so special to observers.

Looking high up to the nest and watching the young birds being fed by their mother and father, it is hard to imagine how someone could think of hurting these majestic creatures. Those who have watched them grow since the chicks hatched seem to consider themselves to be a part of this aviary family. In a few weeks, the young ones will have learned to fend for themselves and will head off to make families of their own.

The birdwatchers of Robb Field might be left with a heavy case of empty-nest syndrome, but with the proper community support and awareness, the ospreys will return again next year, and the year after that — a model for how wildlife can co-exist in urban areas.

Surfrider removes 2,372 lbs. of trash during ‘Morning After Mess’ cleanup campaign

More than 450 volunteers spread out across four popular beaches July 5 during the post-Fourth of July “Morning After Mess” cleanup series coordinated by the Surfrider Foundation’s San Diego County chapter. By midday, organizers said volunteers had scooped up 2,372 pounds of trash and 195 pounds of recyclable waste that otherwise would have been washed into the sea.

The cleanup efforts, a collaboration of San Diego Coastkeeper and I Love a Clean San Diego, covered areas around the Ocean Beach Pier, Belmont Park in Mission Beach, Crystal Pier in Pacific Beach and the South Harbor Jetty in Oceanside. Sites were chosen because of the high concentration of beachgoers and notorious reputations for post-Fourth of July trash. This year’s event was sponsored by radio station 102.1FM KPRI and healthy snack company Clif Bar.

Surfrider chapter coordinator Haley Jain Haggerstone said she was pleased with the turnout and the amount of litter collected.

“It’s no wonder so many people choose to celebrate Independence Day on our beaches here in San Diego,” she said. “But more visitors means more trash, which threatens our oceans, waves and beaches. We want to remind everyone to stay classy, not trashy, and help keep our beaches clean ... It’s kind of a big deal.”

Few holidays generate more trash on San Diego County beaches than the Fourth of July. This year’s “Morning After Mess” event recovered 764 plastic bags, 1,163 pieces of styrofoam and 12,685 cigarette butts.

Through campaigns like Rise Above Plastics and Hold Onto Your Butt, Surfrider uses education, outreach and advocacy to cut down on single-use plastics and cigarette butts before they reach beaches.

For more information on Surfrider Foundation San Diego County Chapter, visit surfridersd.org, email haley@surfridersd.org, or call (619) 929-5350.

Knox said the gooey, yucky marshmallow aftermath, which used to get cleaned up in a matter of hours, is now taking weeks or even months to eradicate.

There are other problems associated with it, too.

“It’s gumming up a lot of things — our cleaning equipment — costing dollars we could be spending on some truly nice things for the community, rather than cleaning up marshmallow goo,” Knox said.

Knox said she has gotten about 250 e-mails the past several days from businesses and residents complaining about the marshmallow mess and asking, “What are you going to do about it?”

Haley Haggerstone, chapter coordinator for the nonprofit Surfrider Foundation, whose mission is to protect the oceanfront, spent July 5 with others at Ocean Beach trying to clean up after the Independence Day festivities.

Haggerstone said volunteer crews picked up 1,800 pounds of trash on July 5, “95 percent of which was probably marshmallows.”

“I’ve seen it evolve. It’s grown,” said Haggerstone, an Ocean Beach resident.

What to do about the annual tradition is problematic.

“How do you stop it?” asked Haggerstone. “I’ve heard a lot of talk about shutting this down. But how do you shut down an unorganized thing that’s been going on for 25 years?”

There could be at least one clear-cut solution though.

“If you contribute to it, you should be part of the cleanup effort the next morning,” Haggerstone said.

Joyce said the marshmallow madness has reached the point where it’s become a community blight.

“It’s just disgusting,” he said. “I think the majority of the locals don’t want it after this year after seeing what it did to our community. There’s still thousands and thousands of them (marshmallows) in the sand.”

Joyce offered another possible solution to address the mess: have people who are cited for Fourth of July weekend offenses help in the cleanup to teach them a lesson about social responsibility.

“We’re looking for a solution,” said Knox.

She added the next step in counteracting the marshmallow mess could be contacting the Ocean Beach Town Council and having the issue put on its next agenda, or to hold a special town hall meeting on the subject.

Meanwhile, a Facebook page titled

Despite the annual nature of the marshmallow fight tradition, some locals are saying enough is enough, as shown in this Facebook link.

To save money, the city offers a free residential conservation survey every three years, in which workers will measure volume from your sprinklers to check if you're overwatering, help check for leaks and offer low-flow shower heads. Most bills decline 10 percent after the survey, Akin said.

Other OB Town Council news

• Noah Tafolla, best known for his "Wonderland" documentary series on KPBS public television, has turned his sights on the OB entryway design project. He's developed a video to entice groups to donate toward the estimated $10,000 cost to replace the weather-worn, termite-infested sign at the north end of Sunset Cliffs Boulevard, said Jim Musgrove, who heads the OBTC Community Enhancement Committee.

• The Point Loma/Hervey Branch Library, located at 3701 Voltaire St., isn't just a place to check out cool titles. It's also a place to cool off. It's the only spot in the Peninsula designated in the county's Cool Zones program, a network of more than 115 air-conditioned buildings where the public is invited to come in and escape the summer heat. The program began June 20 and lasts until Oct. 15, said Sterling McHale, a representative for county Supervisor Ron Roberts. The Pacific Beach Branch Library also displays a Polar Bear Cool Zone logo to affirm its status in the program, but McHale said he didn't know why the Ocean Beach library was not included.

• Town Council members said they were open to a request from officers at Fire Station 15, 4711 Voltaire St., to refurbish the kitchen at the 64-year-old building, which is a "disaster," said Capt. Byron Wenger. Council president Dave Martin said help may also be on the way for another item on the wish list: exercise bars at Saratoga Park, where the firefighters have morning workouts.

• In other fire department news, Wenger introduced the new paramedic Josh Miramontes, and announced the station was getting a new fire engine. Winger said he hoped to get permission to adorn the truck with the OB logo.

• The hot topic at the Ocean Beach Community Development Corporation continues to be development of a new veterans' memorial plaza north of the Abbot Street lifeguard station, said Steve Grosch, who heads a committee leading the effort. The OBCDC, which meets the second Thursday of every month at 7 p.m. at the Point Loma Masonic Lodge on Sunset Cliffs Boulevard, recently added two new board members — Jane Gawronski and Nicole Burgess.

• State Sen. Marty Block has written a letter of support and is trying to identify state funds for the veterans' memorial plaza project in Ocean Beach, said Block aide Roberto Alcantar.

• Outreach at last month's 34th annual Ocean Beach Street Fair & Chili Cook-Off Festival paid off in terms of recruitment. Some 21 fairgoers signed up at the OBTC booth, said Marin Green, membership chair.

• When the city began closing the one-year-old public beach restroom April 15 at the foot of Brighton Avenue from midnight to 6:30 a.m., it was supposed to be a 30-day trial period. But nearly three months later, there's still no decision on whether to adopt the cut permanently, said John Ly, aide to District 2 City Councilman Kevin Faulconer. Some Town Council members want the restrooms closed at night, but the city's Park and Recreation Department favors 24-hour availability, according to Ly. "Until a final decision is made, the status quo is to close them at night," Ly said.

lages" planning are great concepts in theory, but risky if misapplied, he said.

"If it's not tied to mass transit and historic preservation, it can be disastrous," Gormlie said.

Onerous business regulations were on the mind of Denny Knox, executive director of the Ocean Beach MainStreet Association. She called for the removal of Commercial Activity Recommendation 8.2.3, which calls for restrictions on businesses that abut a residential neighborhood.

"If you have a business license or own a restaurant or bar, you already have the strong arm of the law coming down on you," Knox said.

Citizens who want to offer amendments, reword specific proposals or make other comments may do so by email. Giovanni Ingolia, who co-chairs the board's Plan Update Committee, encouraged residents and merchants to send feedback to gingolia@hotmail.com.

Other OBPB news

• Expect libraries and recreation centers in Ocean Beach and throughout the city to see a reduction in hours in response to an unexpected $20 million budget shortfall, said John Ly, aide to District 2 City Councilman Kevin Faulconer. A projected surplus for fiscal 2014, which began this month, flipped to deficit status, resulting from a recent vote by the San Diego City Employees' Retirement System Board on how to calculate the annual pension payment, Ly said. "We don't know yet how we're going to cover the whole amount," he said.

• Even though Mayor Bob Filner returned $100,000 to the developer of the Sunroad project in Kearny Mesa, there are other allocated funds in the city budget dedicated to a proposed Ocean Beach veteran's memorial, Ly said. Filner had included more than $70,000 for the project in his May budget revision, and that's not affected by the Sunroad situation, he said. Because more than $70,000 had also been earmarked in the $100,000 returned to the developer, the similarity in the amounts had caused confusion, and Ly said he's been on the receiving end of phone calls from concerned citizens recently.

• Board vacancies exist in districts 1 and 3, Gawronski announced. To be considered for appointment, citizens must live, own property in or run a business in the Ocean Beach planning area and must gather at least 35 signatures in the district in which they wish to serve. More information is available at oceanbeachplanning.org.

Faulconer.

Faulconer's staff estimated that a coastal oversize-vehicle pilot program would cost $14,000 for signage, personnel and other up-front costs, versus $44,000 for a citywide program. Staff estimated another $20,000 would be spent for public outreach on the new pilot program.

"Rarely does everything work right the first time. And with a city as large as this, costs will be larger and it will be more complicated implementing a citywide pilot," said Faulconer, who had proposed restricting the pilot program to the coast, and whose staff has labored for years hammering out the particulars of a workable oversize-vehicle ordinance. Under the pilot program, parking RVs and oversize vehicles like motor homes, vans and trucks with trailers would be prohibited between 2 and 5 a.m. without a permit.

The program allows RV owners to apply for a free annual permit to allow them to park on the street at their residence for up to 72 hours at a time four times a month. Residents can also apply for a similar 72-hour permit for guests up to six times a year.

While bowing to the will of the City Council majority, Faulconer cautioned, "We need to implement an ordinance that works."

Conceding that oversize, illegally parked vehicles are a citywide problem, Faulconer added, "They take up valuable parking space in front of businesses and residences, blocking views, limiting access to driveways and are a major impediment to pedestrians and bicyclists."

Gloria noted constituents in his downtown San Diego district didn't feel safe walking where oversize vehicles are parked. Gloria also asked that the city's Real Estate Assets Division look into finding places where RV owners could move to should they end up being displaced by the new oversize-vehicle ordinance.

Other councilmembers also weighed in on the pilot program.

"I'd ask that staff report a year after this ordinance is in place to see how we have done on the enforcement, and how happy the public is with the result," said Lightner.

Councilman David Alvarez also stressed the need for citywide cohesion.

"We need to do this for the entire city, not just for one section of the city," said Alvarez. "If these are the rules we're going to live by in the city, then let's keep the rules the same for everybody."

District 7 Councilman Scott Sherman had his own take.

"Being an RV owner, I'm kind of torn on this issue," he said. "How do we take care of the problem without punishing those of us who live by the rules?"

The new citywide pilot program for oversize vehicles will come back to the City Council in a couple of weeks for a second reading before it takes effect.

Elderly bank robbery suspect: 'It's my hobby'

A 78-year-old man charged with robbing the Comerica Bank at 3361 Rosecrans St. claims he held up the bank because he was a homeless veteran and didn't like living on the street.

Dale Eugene Jenkins admitted to authorities that he robbed the bank and claimed to a KGTV reporter that he had robbed others. Jenkins has only been charged with the May 13 holdup, which netted him $80. The money was recovered, according to court records.

Jenkins was dressed in a suit and tie with a dark fedora-style hat and was arrested several blocks away while toting a rolling suitcase on the sidewalk.

"I rob banks. It's my hobby," he told the television reporter before he was placed in a patrol car.

When he was arraigned, Jenkins attempted to plead guilty, saying he did it because he was homeless. But a not guilty plea was entered on his behalf in U.S. District Court. He will next appear in court on July 29 for a motion hearing.

Jenkins also confessed to the robbery during an interview with the FBI, and initialed bank surveillance photographs presented to him, records say. Jenkins remains in custody on $50,000 bail.

Crime Stoppers offers reward to ID burglar

San Diego County Crime Stoppers are teaming with investigators from the San Diego Police Department's Western Division to ask for the public's help in identifying and locating an unknown suspect wanted in connection with two commercial burglaries in Point Loma on July 3 or July 4.

A $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the suspected burglar's identity.

Detectives said sometime between Monday evening on July 3 and early Tuesday morning on July 4, the suspect burglarized two stores at 1255 Rosecrans St. The two businesses were identified as World Famous Smoothies and Alice Alfreda Clothing boutique.

Police said the suspect gained entry into the smoothie business first, although there were no signs of forced entry, and then broke through an adjoining wall into the boutique business.

The suspect reportedly made off with 15 blenders from the smoothie shop and a brown Gucci handbag from the boutique.

An image of the suspect was captured by a surveillance camera and can be viewed at youtube.com/watch?v=Bv_ZYxJOhRI&feature=youtu.be.

Anyone with information is urged to call Det. Tom Jacques at (619) 692-4833 or the Crime Stoppers anonymous tip line at (888) 580-8477. Anonymous email and text messages can be sent in via www.sdcrimestoppers.com

Point Loma Souplantation rolls out remodel, new menu items

Souplantation unveiled remodels and menu alterations at two locations recently, including the eatery at 3960 W Point Loma Blvd.

The Point Loma site, in addition to one in Rancho Bernardo, held grand re-openings in June.

Company officials said both locations will now showcase a farmers-market-style remodel, where "upon entering, guests will be reawakened by the bright sights, crisp sounds and delicious tastes of freshness."

The revamped interior of Souplantation will include a new salad bar, hardwood floors, chalkboard menus, modern glasses and dishware, and upbeat music.

A selection of new items has been added to the existing menu, which already consists of locally sourced and made-from-scratch salads, soups and baked goods. Some of the new products include freshly grilled cage-free chicken skewers, Niman Ranch steak skewers, decadent desserts. Local craft beer and wine will be coming soon.

Souplantation/Sweet Tomatoes was founded in 1978 in San Diego and operates 126 build-your-own-meal restaurants across the western, southern and eastern portions of the U.S.

Tom Ham's Lighthouse reopens after major design, menu overhaul

New, yet iconic. This is the theme of the revamped Tom Ham's Lighthouse, a San Diego institution for more than 40 years on the tip of Harbor Island.

The $3.5 million renovation, designed by the late architect Graham Downes, includes new interior design, new menus, a bayfront bar and one of the best views in San Diego.

"My father, Tom Ham, built Tom Ham's Lighthouse in 1971. This was his dream, to build a restaurant that highlighted the history of San Diego," said co-owner Susie Baumann.

"I think he would be pleased with the outcome of this remodel," she said. "The genius of our architect Graham Downes was that he could see what an older building could be."

The Baumann family said it worked closely with Downes and his team to ensure that every interior finish was updated to complement the classic early California design of the building. An outdoor dining deck was added to the second floor and features infinity glass, providing unobstructed views of the San Diego Bay and the city skyline.

As guests enter Tom Ham's Lighthouse, they will see a unique keg room, which sets the tone of the restaurant. A bayside wedding site was added, and artist Christopher Puzio created the wedding arch with 2,000 individual aluminum rings, which soon will become an icon on the bay. The new design also moved the upstairs bar to face the bay.

The new upstairs bar features 32 beers on tap, including "Beacon No. 9" brewed by Ballast Point in honor of Tom Ham's Lighthouse Beacon No. 9, a working Coast Guard lighthouse.

The majority of the beers will be from established local breweries, like Karl Strauss, Ballast Point, Stone Brewery, Green Flash, Port Brewing, the Lost Abbey and Manzanita.

Also featured are craft cocktails like Saucy Sally with light rum, Chambord and lemon verbena and Wickie's Salvation with Maker's Mark, ginger liquor, blackberries and rosemary syrup. An extensive wine list will be offered by the bottle and glass.

Susie, her husband Larry, and sons Grant, Tommy and Andy own and manage Tom Ham's Lighthouse and the Bali Hai Restaurant.

For more information, visit www.tomhamslighthouse.com, or follow them on Facebook and like them on Twitter.

— Staff and contribution

By BIANCA KOCH | THE BEACON

"We cater to locals, locals, locals," said Mark Jwala, owner of the newly opened Smokers smoke shop on Santa Monica Avenue.

With its open doors and big windows, Jwala and his wife, Gina, said they try to create a welcoming atmosphere as they tend the shop seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. The local couple had been searching for a convenient spot away from the tourist-filled main drag, opting instead to attract mostly local clientele.

"I figured that opening my store here on Santa Monica Avenue makes it more convenient for local customers to get in and out easy, hassle free," Jwala said. "I'd like to welcome all the locals in this town to my shop."

With a lower monthly rent than a store on Newport Avenue would have cost them, Jwala said he believes he will be able to guarantee customers excellent price breaks.

"I'm hoping to sell cigarettes and tobacco at the lowest prices, keeping my merchandise affordable for every income," he said. "I'd like to satisfy every person who comes to my store."

Jwala is urging customers to request brands he may not carry that they would like to have stocked.

"Not only will I do my best to provide the requested item as quickly as possible, but I will also try to meet or beat the lowest price advertised in town," Jwala said.

The unique smoke shop will offer it all: cigars, cigarette and tobacco products (available by the pound), smoking devices, utensils and pipes of all sorts.

Smokers displays many different types of glass-pipes — both hand-blown creations and general imports — starting as low as $ 1.99 and up.

"However, we also carry an array of exotic tobacco pipes and hookahs that are pricier, yet, still affordable," Jwala said. He said his plan for the near future is to offer a variety of at least 700 styles of tobacco pipes Smokers is located at 4812 Santa Monica Ave. For more information, call (619) 542-9169.

Are You Planning For Long-Term Care?

The Associated Press – NORC Center for Public Affairs Research recently released the findings of a national poll on long-term care. The poll interviewed Americans who were 40 years or older on their perceptions, attitudes and ideas about aging and long-term care.

What was found was this:

Most Americans underestimated the cost of nursing home care and overestimated what Medicare pays. Almost one-third of the people interviewed don't want to think about getting older.

Sixty-five percent of Americans are not putting money aside to help them pay for possible long-term care needs.

Sixty-eight percent of Americans interviewed think their family will take care of them when the need arises.

Even though Americans are concerned about aging, almost sixty percent have taken no steps of talking to their family about long-term care.

A majority of Americans, regardless of political preferences, would support solutions from the government to finance long-term care. Seventy-five percent favor tax incentives to encourage saving for long-term care expenses and fifty-one percent would like a government administered plan.

This poll has come at a time when the federal Commission on Long-Term Care is exploring policy options for making sure all Americans will be able to age with dignity and independence. For more information on health care needs and help with long-term care, call a RN Care Manager from Innovative Healthcare Consultants at 760.731.1334 or visit our website at innovativehc.com.

The family friendly events take place at Point Loma Park with a "junior stage," featuring area youngsters kicking things off at 5:30 p.m. and the main stage music from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

This year's featured performers will be Rolling Stones tribute band Jumping Jack Flash on July 12, Johnny Cash re-creators Cash'd Out on July 19, Back to the Garden with a Woodstock 1969 set on July 26, 1980s revivalists Left4Dead on Aug. 2 and zydeco favorites The Bayou Brothers, with guest pianist Sue Palmer on Aug. 9.

Concertgoers can order dinner from one of the catering sponsors with a different eatery each concert, including Gabardine on July 12, Miguel's Cocina on July 19, Hodad's on July 26, Barons Marketplace on Aug. 2 and Stump's Family Marketplace on Aug. 9.

More than 3,000 people are expected at event time, but the whole series is coordinated by a small group of 13 volunteers headed by Meredith Phillips, with Bob Randall as main-stage coordinator. Phillips said organizers try to "keep the music fresh," with a couple of rules to help meet that goal.

"Each year, we have at least two new bands that have never played summer concerts before and you can only play two years in a row" she said. "We prefer cover music or tribute bands. That way, the audience knows the music, they can sing, they know all the words. It just makes the whole thing more fun."

Gigs like these, played in front of thousands, are highly coveted among local musicians. But merely playing covers might not quite cut it for some.

"We're looking at groups with high-entertainment value, with a real 'wow' factor," said Phillips. "That's part of the reason why we try to include two tribute bands each year."

Meanwhile, the second stage gives kids who are living in or going to school in the Point Loma or Ocean Beach area a chance to perform for an appreciative audience.

"We call it the junior stage and that's because the purpose of the summer concerts is to fund music programs at the local school," said junior stage music director Ellen James.

In 2012, the summer concert series' board of directors made a $5000 donation to Point Loma High School's Instrumental Music Program.

"In earlier years, kids would play on the grass in front of the main stage, mainly just for fun," said James. "About three years ago, we decided to make it a bigger part of the whole deal, so we now actually have a stage for them."

This will be James' last year as music director because she is relocating out of state soon.

"I've really enjoyed doing this stuff for the kids," she said. "Under the guidance of Martha Phillips, it's come a long way. There's food and fun, all while helping kids with music education. It's a great event."

Crowds at these concerts can range wildly in age, but it's clear to the musicians taking part that the younger set is increasingly familiar with the vintage tunes.

"It always blows me away to see youngsters rocking out to Jimi [Hendrix], Janis [Joplin] and the Who," said Back to the Garden guitarist Marc Intravaia. "That music is timeless."

Sue Palmer agrees. Sitting in this year with The Bayou Brothers, she's performed at the event with her own band, the Motel Swing Orchestra, several times.

"There's no problem with crowd appreciation for the kind of music I play, which is blues and swing. It's infectious and easy to dance to," she said.

Palmer said Point Loma Park is one of her favorite spots to play.

"I love it because it is in the area I grew up in and lots of my old friends and their families come," said Palmer.

Meanwhile, Phillips acknowledges the hard work and long hours she and the other volunteers put in to see the free event happen, but said she considers the effort well worth it.

Point Loma Park is located at 1049 Catalina Blvd. near Varona Street. Free parking is provided at All Souls' Episcopal Church, located at 1475 Catalina Blvd. Enter the parking lot on Chatsworth Boulevard. A free shuttle runs between All Souls' parking lot and Point Loma Park from 5:30 to 8:45 p.m.

NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT SAN DIEGO INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT – AIRPORT LAND USE COMPATIBILITY PLAN SCH NO. 2013031060 – SDCRAA # EIR-13-01

PROJECT DESCRIPTION AND LOCATION: The San Diego County Regional Airport Authority, acting in its capacity as the Airport Land Use Commission (ALUC) for the County of San Diego, has prepared a Draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR) for the Airport Land Use Compatibility Plan (ALUCP) for San Diego International Airport, located in the City of San Diego.

The basic function of an ALUCP is to promote compatibility between an airport and the future land uses that surround the airport and lie within the airport's designated airport influence area (AIA), to the extent that these areas are not already devoted to incompatible uses. (Pub. Util. Code, §21675, subd. (a)). The AIA is comprised of the areas in which current or future airport-related noise, safety, airspace and/or overflight concerns may affect future land uses or necessitate land use restrictions on those areas. The SDIA AIA includes portions of the cities of San Diego, Coronado, and National City; the County of San Diego; Civic San Diego; the San Diego Unified Port District; and all school, community college and special districts within the AIA.

The proposed SDIA ALUCP would regulate the future development of new residential dwellings, commercial structures, and other noise- or risk-sensitive land uses. The proposed project designates as incompatible the future development of specified uses in certain portions of the AIA, conditionally limits the future development of these uses in other portions, and permits these uses without limitation in yet other portions.

The proposed SDIA ALUCP would be utilized by the ALUC when it reviews proposed land use projects in the AIA. The ALUCP would also assist local agencies in their preparation or amendment of land use plans and ordinances, as state law explicitly requires local agencies to modify their planning documents to be consistent with the ALUCP, or otherwise overrule the ALUC within a specified timeframe. (Pub. Util. Code, §21676).

The Draft EIR determined that the proposed project would result in potential significant and unavoidable impacts to land use and planning and population and housing.

A PUBLIC REVIEW PERIOD, during which the San Diego County Regional Airport Authority will receive comments upon the proposed Draft EIR, commences on July 12, 2013. Comments should be addressed to the San Diego County Regional Airport Authority. The deadline for receiving written comments regarding the adequacy of the Draft EIR is August 26, 2013.

Comments may be submitted by:

Mail to the Authority offices at SDCRAA, P.O. Box 82776, San Diego, CA 92138-2776
(these comments must be postmarked by Monday, August 26, 2013).

E-mail to the Authority offices at alucpcomments@san.org. The Airport Authority will accept comments to this notice via e-mail received by 5:00 p.m. on Monday, August 26, 2013, if the comments: (i) contain less than 2,000 words; and (ii) the e-mail comments do not contain any attachments. Any comments or responses to this notice containing more than 2,000 words, or which are accompanied by any attachments, must be delivered in writing to the address specified above, or they will not be considered as valid responses to this notice.

Delivery to the Authority offices at San Diego International Airport or faxed to (619) 400-2448 by 5:00 p.m. on Monday, August 26, 2013.

COPIES OF THE DRAFT EIR ARE AVAILABLE from the Airport Planning Department, San Diego County Regional Airport Authority, with offices located in the Commuter Terminal at San Diego International Airport, 3225 North Harbor Drive, San Diego, CA, during the hours of 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. Copies of the Draft EIR may be downloaded at www.san.org/alucp. A copy of the same may also be requested by contacting Angela Jamison at (619) 400-2464

Ex-official photographer for sports arena opens gallery

By DAVID L. CODDON | THE BEACON

Cleveland has the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Now, thanks to a photographer named Essy Ghavameddini, La Jolla has a Rock and Roll Wall of Fame. The wall is one of several photo-splashed spaces in Essy's Studio, a new gallery opening July 5 along the stretch of Girard Avenue that slopes down to the cove. The official photographer for the San Diego Sports Arena (now known as the Valley View Casino Center) for more than 30 years, Ghavameddini possesses a rich collection of music luminaries he captured live on stage.

The Rock and Roll Wall is a visual who's who: Bruce Springsteen, Mick Jagger, Jerry Garcia, Taylor Swift — OK, she's not rock 'n' roll, but neither is Luciano Pavarotti, who's also on display. Maybe the most emotion-packed photo is one of a wild-eyed Mick Fleetwood pounding the drums. You can almost feel the ringing in your ears.

Among Ghavameddini's favorite subjects is KISS.

"I love to photograph them," he said. "They give you so much love, so much respect. They pose for you one by one."

So it's no surprise that Gene Simmons and company are amply represented at Essy's Studio.

This is not an exclusively concert-photography gallery. Ghavameddini devotes another wall to La Jolla's beaches (particularly Windansea) and sunsets, another to thoroughbreds in full stride at Del Mar, another to the four Super Bowls he's covered and to San Diego sports heroes, including Junior Seau and the San Diego Sockers that from the early 1980s through the early '90s dominated indoor soccer. Shooting high-energy, fast-moving sports — Ghavameddini eschews slow-moving baseball and golf — is another of his passions.

"I'm an action photographer," he said. "You never know what you'll get." Ghavameddini's gallery, a split-level space that includes a photography studio upstairs, is his first such showcase.

"It's time for me to show my work," he said, adding that he will offer images for sale on site. While he will have a couple of assistants, he said, "I'm a one-man show here. I call my place a museum of my 31 years of work."

The color rock 'n' roll photos, which announce their presence the moment you walk into the gallery, are the most compelling and, with apologies to football and sunset devotees, the most fan-friendly. Like the music itself, they exude personality and commitment.

How does Ghavameddini achieve

Essy Ghavameddini was the official photographer of the San Diego Sports Arena for more than 30 years. In recent years, he has focused his fine-art photography on rock stars like Mick Jagger and high-action sports like the horse races at Del Mar. Courtesy photo that? Waiting for the right moment, he said, plus a rapport with the rockers from the shadows.

"I have a conversation with them with my camera," he said. Essy's Studio is located at 8008 Girard

Ave., Suite 190.

Makua fundraiser nets over $121,000 for foster children's cause

Makua, a Point Loma-based women's auxiliary with members from all over San Diego County recently celebrated its 60th anniversary of raising money and awareness for Voices for Children's Court-Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) program.

This year's event, "Makua's Back to the Beach," was a retro-1953 beach luau June 1 at the Kona Kai Resort on Shelter Island. Makua members reported the event raised more than $121,000 for CASA.

The proceeds help provide foster children with a trained CASA who can negotiate San Diego's complex, overburdened child-welfare system to ensure these children are in safe living situations. CASAs listen to and fight for these children, reaching out to teachers, social workers, parents, lawyers, caregivers, judges, and others on behalf of foster children.

ENJOY THE BEAUTY OF OLD TOWN

STAGECOACH DAYS: CELEBRATING THE WILD WEST IN OLD TOWN

Old Town San Diego State Historic Park is celebrating travel and transportation in the era of real horsepower at "Stagecoach Days" from noon to 5 p.m. on eight Saturdays in July and August, kicking off on July 6.

Sponsored by Fiesta de Reyes, the free event features a different theme each Saturday such as: Californio Day, Women of the West, Soldiers and Citizens, TwainFest and Taste of the Past.

Attendees will enjoy afternoons filled with activities that reflect life in early San Diego and celebrate the West on the move. Through vignettes, demonstrations, living history activities, stories and songs, visitors will gain an appreciation for early modes of transportation and daily life.

"This Stagecoach Days will be the best one yet," stated Greg Giacopuzzi. "There is a plethora of added activities for all ages to the event this year so visitors will get a true taste of what Old Town was like in the 1800s."

A special aspect that has been added this year is a passport program featuring collectable book-marks for each of the Stagecoach Days. Anyone attending the event can go in to the Robinson-Rose Visitor's Center with their passport and collect a bookmark to commemorate the day. Special prizes will be awarded to those who can collect them all. The free passport cards can be picked up at any of the state park and Fiesta de Reyes merchants or at the Robinson-Rose Visitor's Center.

The 2013 Stagecoach Days schedule is as follows:

July 6 -- "Games and Amusements" -- In the 1800s, games and amusements were commonly associated with either large celebrations or after-school play days incorporating most of the local townspeople. This day will pay tribute to traditional amusements of the time such as egg races, tug of war and circus performers.

July 13 -- "Californio Day" -- Between 1821 through 1848, the people who lived in Southern California were called "Californios" rather than Mexicans. Those unique "Californio" cultural elements will be presented this Saturday such as gambling, paper flower making and horseback demonstrations.

July 20 -- "Women of the West" -- Women played an important part in the development of the West. Some of the daily activities of these women will be demonstrated on this Saturday. Aspects of this day include a quilt walk, a fashion show and carriage rides.

Old Town San Diego State Historic Park, with the support of the Boosters of Old Town and a donation from Fiesta de Reyes, is proud to offer these free activities for adults and children of all ages. The park is located on San Diego Avenue and Twigg's Street in San Diego, and is conveniently located next to the Old Town Transit Center, with Coaster, Trolley, and MTS bus service. Free parking is available at the CalTrans headquarters, just two blocks from the park at 4050 Taylor St.
