Principal puckers for porker

Ocean Beach Elementary School principal Marco Drapeau hogged the spotlight before school last month when he kissed a pig in front of students and staff. On Jan. 31, the school held a jogathon wherein the students were told that if they raised more than $14,500 (last year's amount), Drapeau would kiss a pig. The students were inspired and raised more than $16,500. The money will help fund the school's arts program.

The 15th annual Point Loma Garden Walk will take place 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 23 in the Plumosa Park area of Point Loma.

This year's walk will feature 11 gardens and should take about three to four hours to complete.

Girl Scouts name two Point Lomans as Cool Women

Point Loma's Vice Admiral Nora Tyson and Debra Turner were among luminaries honored during Girl Scouts San Diego's Cool Women of 2016 celebration. The recent awards luncheon and ceremony took place at Coasterra restaurant.

Joye Blount of Point Loma (a Cool Woman of 2013) and Girl Scouts San Diego board member Julia Brown (a 2005 Cool Woman) co-chaired the 16th annual event.

Retired Rear Admiral Ronne Froman introduced Tyson, a Girl Scout alumna. Last summer, Tyson became the first female fleet commander in U.S. Naval history. She oversees 58,000 sailors and civilians and 50 million square miles of the Pacific Ocean. The Memphis native earned her wings as a naval flight officer and served at NAS Patuxent River in Maryland and Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma.

She led the USS George H.W. Bush Strike Group on its maiden deployment. When the law changed to allow women on naval combat missions, Tyson became navigator of the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise. Her illustrious career includes two Persian Gulf deployments and leading the Navy's disaster relief efforts after Hurricane Katrina.

Author and philanthropist Jeanne Jones of the Cool Women Class of 2012 accepted the award on behalf of Turner, who was unable to attend. A former Girl Scout, Turner serves on The Old Globe and La Jolla Music Society boards of directors, and chaired the 2015 American Heart Association's Go Red for Women luncheon. She is a member of the KPBS Hall of Fame.

The wide-ranging philanthropy of Turner and her life partner, Conrad Prebys, has benefited every sector, from the arts and scientific research to healthcare and public television. They provided key funding for the hit PBS drama, "Downton Abbey."

Ocean Beach resident to receive honor from USD

Vincent Kasperick, who created AimLoan.com, an Internet-based mortgage company, will be honored by the University of San Diego on April 30. Kasperick, who received his bachelor's degree in accounting from the University of San Diego School of Business in 1984, will receive the Author E. Hughes Award for Career Achievement.

In 1998, Kasperick founded AimLoan, with the goal of using technology to deliver transparency, savings and convenience to its customers. Over the past 18 years, AimLoan has expanded throughout the country and is regularly ranked one of the top five direct-to-consumer independent mortgage companies in the nation.

He strongly believes in the idea of social and corporate responsibility, and his firm has conducted 52 community service campaigns, raising more than $1.5 million for worthy nonprofits. In 2010, AimLoan founded the San Diego Blues Festival, an annual hunger-awareness event benefiting the San Diego Food Bank.

Kasperick served on the board of Father Joe's Villages for many years and was named interim CEO when Father Joe Carroll retired in 2011. Kasperick also serves on the advisory board of USD's Burnham-Moores Center for Real Estate.

"Vincent has been a changemaker in the digital economy and exemplifies the business school's commitment to innovation and public service," said University of San Diego School of Business Dean Jaime Alonso Gómez. "We are very proud to honor him."

Baby product firm offers $1M for orca ocean refuge

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

Some feel SeaWorld's recent announcement that the world-renowned marine park will cease its orca shows and stop breeding the marine mammals didn't go far enough.

Like Steven Dunn, CEO of Munchkin Inc., a Van Nuys firm developing products for babies and children, who's offered $1 million to fund an orca ocean sanctuary.

Of SeaWorld's recent about-face, Dunn said, "It's a move in the right direction," while adding, "Everyone who's really focused on ending captivity believes that it's too little in the sense that it doesn't included belugas (another captive whale species)."

On top of their proposed sanctuary funding, Munchkin recently launched their #OrcasLiveInOceans initiative. After 10 years of making a toy orca whale within their bath toy set, the company's put their principles before profit in removing the orca from their top-selling Sea Squirt Bath Toy Collection.

They've even made a video titled "Because a Bathtub Isn't Big Enough for an Orca" to dramatize its decision.

In a move to rebuild its brand and focus attention on its conservation efforts, Orlando-based SeaWorld announced in March that it will phase out its traditional Shamu show in San Diego, opting for a show more about orcas' behaviors in the wild. The traditional shows will stop in 2016, and the following year, SeaWorld will open an exhibit designed to take place in a natural setting.

decades-old business model as "broken," Dunn said that Munchkin is "committed to leaving the planet with a brighter future for our children and the next generation, and part of that is (upholding) animal rights and treating animals with respect. I think orcas and whales, in particular, should not be held in captivity."

Dunn offered a suggestion for how the public could be educated in the future about orcas without having them on captive exhibit.

"The model we should be using is virtual reality (computer simulation)," he said. "There are a lot better ways of experiencing – or educating – young people, in a fun and entertaining way."

Discussing his orca sanctuary proposal, Dunn said, "It would be a natural inlet, a bay or a cove, that would be 20 football fields large and 80 feet deep and be netted off to keep the orcas in."

Dunn likened his orca sanctuary proposal to "taking elephants from the zoo who've been standing on stools and retiring them to a 100-acre park, where they could roam free and not be restricted to a 20-foot by 20-foot enclosure."

Concerning the prospects for success of his envisioned orca sanctuary, Dunn said, "It's going to happen."

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Motivation and passion sews success

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

Hers is an all-American success story.

And it belongs to Mexican immigrant Maria del Mar Hinojosa, who, with an assist from San Diego Continuing Education, the adult education division of the San Diego Community College District, successfully changed careers and started two businesses in Point Loma's Liberty Station.

Hinojosa completed the free short-term job training program for Sewn Products Business at San Diego Continuing Education's West City Campus in Point Loma. Now, a little more than a year later, she's creating elaborately designed skirts and shawls at her newly opened flamenco store in Liberty Station. That complements her flamenco instruction business, which she started online with her own website. She now teaches flamenco out of rented studio space, also at Liberty Station.

An architect in her native land for seven years, Hinojosa married an American and moved to San Diego a couple of years ago from Monterrey, Mexico. But there was a problem.

"I didn't have a license to work in the United States, and I really didn't want to go to college again," she said, adding, "I've also been a flamenco dancer, mostly as a hobby, since I was age 12."

Hinojosa put her creative thinking cap on and began exploring ways to achieve both her aspirations: sewing her own dance garments while teaching flamenco dance.

She was ultimately able to do both, enrolling at Continuing Education's West City Campus to learn how to sew. Within a year, Hinojosa had earned a certificate in sewn product business. In January, she opened The Pure Flamenco Store, a Liberty Station shop offering mantones, mantoncillos, flecos, skirts, and more that were stitched together by Hinojosa.

"When we moved here, we didn't know anyone," Hinojosa said. "I launched my own website in June 2014 promoting my flamenco classes, which I started teaching in September in studio space I rent by the hour at Liberty Station."

But she really wanted to make her own flamenco clothing as well, and, after completing her sewing instruction, that became a reality too.

Even Hinojosa's community college sewing instructor, Shirley Pierson, was impressed by her ingenuity.

"In the classroom I saw a woman who possessed motivation and a passionate curiosity in her endeavors," Pierson said. "She not only followed directions and learned, but she explored beyond the required to accomplish her goals. She did this all in a balanced way, as I know she had a full schedule of commitments in her life. She rocked the classroom."

Hinojosa's happy at just how well things have worked out.

"I'm doing my classes and creating my own patterns and making my own skirts, which I've started selling to my students," she said, adding, her continuing education class also taught her invaluable business skills.

She's even added shoes to her business mix, importing them from Spain.

OB Pier 50th Anniversary Art Show looking for submissions

OCEAN BEACH PIER EVENTS

Several other events will be held as part of the pier's 50th anniversary in OB, including:

- Saturday, April 30 - OB Pier Classic Surf Contest with AWOL & Hodad's;
- Saturday, June 25 - Ocean Beach Street Fair and Chili Cook-Off;
- Thursday, June 30 - Opening Reception for Pier Art Show at Teeter;
- Saturday, July 2 - OB Pier Anniversary Walk and Celebration;
- Monday, July 4 - Annual Fireworks Off the OB Pier;
- Thursday, July 21 - Beacon Special Section About the OB Pier.

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

There's still time for artists to enter submissions to qualify for the Ocean Beach Pier 50th Anniversary Art Show.

Deadline for art submissions is 5 p.m. Friday, May 6. Applicants can send their high-quality digital entries to obpiercalltoartists@gmail.com. Submissions should include applicant contact information. To have questions answered, or for more information, call (619) 224-4906.

"We're looking for artwork that is depicting, or inspired by or generally about, the OB Pier," said Isabel Clark, programs director for Ocean Beach MainStreet Association (OBMA), the beach community's Business Improvement District.

Clark said Teeter gallery/boutique at 5032 Niagara Ave. in Ocean Beach is partnering with OBMA to host a juried art show to review art contest entries.

"This art exhibit will celebrate OB Pier's 50th anniversary, which is July 2," said Clark. Submittals can be in any medium.

"We would love to see everything from photos and paintings to sculptures, ceramic and fiber art – anything, literally," Clark said.

Submitted artwork can be interpretive or in any artistic style. But in order to qualify for the contest, it must have some direct relationship to the pier.

Clark said pier artworks selected for the exhibit will be shown at Teeter from Thursday, June 30 through Sunday, July 31. She added there will be an opportunity for artists to sell their work during the monthlong exhibit.

Speaking of the significance of the art contest, Clark said, "It's your chance to be part of a really special exhibit: a community celebration of our iconic pier. We have a lot of talented artists in this area, and I think we'll get some really interesting entries."

The Ocean Beach Municipal Pier is one of the most visited landmarks in San Diego County. It was officially christened and introduced on July 2, 1966. More than 7,000 of San Diego's then 600,000 residents showed up to celebrate the opening, including then Mayor Frank Curran and Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, who had the honor of cutting the ribbon.

Hearing set for former manager at SD SeaWorld

By NEAL PUTNAM | THE BEACON

A detention hearing is set for Thursday, April 14 for a former manager at SeaWorld charged with stealing $750,000 from the company through embezzlement.

Sebastian Jobin remains in the Metropolitan Correctional Center without bail, and a federal judge will decide at the hearing whether to keep him there through the trial. Jobin pleaded not guilty on April 4 following his March 12 arrest in Dallas.

Jobin, 47, is charged with wire fraud, but more charges could be added, as he is accused of creating more than 100 fake invoices from a fictitious company he created – a company whose only business was with SeaWorld San Diego. He could face tax charges for not reporting the income he is alleged to have received in the scheme.

The fraudulent invoices came from his computer at SeaWorld, and they listed deliveries of merchandise such as "sea creature rings" and "purple shiny ornaments." No merchandise was ever delivered, and no packing slips were ever found.

SeaWorld executives suspended Jobin on Jan. 22, 2015.

OB Pier sexual battery case suspended

By NEAL PUTNAM | THE BEACON

Criminal proceedings were suspended for a man accused of sexual battery at the Ocean Beach Pier after his attorney said she doubted his mental competency.

Paul Dorian Malcolm, 26, will undergo a psychiatric evaluation on May 10 in jail, and the doctor will prepare a report for a mental competency hearing set for May 25.

A television outlet aired an interview with a 26-year-old woman who described how Malcolm removed her bathing suit bottom after she rejected his advances on Feb. 10.

San Diego police arrested Malcolm that day. He has pleaded not guilty to sexual battery and resisting arrest, both misdemeanor offenses. He remains in jail without bail.

San Diego Superior Court Judge Lisa Rodriguez suspended the criminal case proceedings, as required when an attorney says a client may not be mentally competent for trial. If Malcolm is found mentally incompetent, he will be sent to a state mental hospital for treatment.

San Diego Coastkeeper announced April 12 that Tracie Barham, an 18-year veteran of nonprofit leadership, will be its new executive director. Barham will lead the water watchdog's efforts to achieve goals in its 2015 to 2018 strategic plan, which include lowering San Diego County household water use by 25 percent and training 300 new volunteer scientists to monitor the health of the region's watersheds.

Travis Pritchard, who served as interim executive director, returns to his role as program director.

"Tracie's career is centered on strategic leadership and organizational development in areas of social and environmental issues," said Elizabeth Taylor, president of San Diego Coastkeeper's board of directors.

"We know the organization's positive impact on San Diego County's water challenges will expand even further under her leadership."

Barham comes to San Diego Coastkeeper from her position as director of development for the San Diego Botanic Garden.

As the chief development officer, Barham significantly increased overall operating and capital income to fund the launch of several expansion projects.

As a graduate of the Fieldstone

Emerging Leaders program, Barham worked closely with the San Diego Botanic Garden board of directors, CEO and other senior leadership team members to raise the philanthropic support needed while contributing to the strategy and operations of these projects.

Previous to the Botanic Garden, Barham served as the chief development officer at United Through Reading, where she also substantially increased the annual operating budget.

New Arts District branding; more openings coming for Liberty Station

Liberty Station will have a new look, feel and marketing to go along with lots of recent developments — and others in the pipeline.

The NTC Foundation has announced that NTC at Liberty Station will now be called Arts District Liberty Station, with a new logo and branding.

"This name change reaffirms our commitment to establish the vibrancy and value of the arts to the entire Liberty Station neighborhood and San Diego," said foundation Executive Director Alan Ziter.

"When the first two newly renovated historic Navy buildings opened in 2006, there was not much here for consumers to experience," noted Ziter, adding the NTC at Liberty Station name was developed in recognition of community awareness for the venue's history as a former naval training center.

"Now, Liberty Station has grown up around us into a landmark new neighborhood, with the arts front and center," Ziter said. He added, "The growth at the former naval base's burgeoning hub for arts and culture, and all that is happening in Liberty Station, made it increasingly confusing to use the terms NTC and Liberty Station. This marketing collaboration now presents one recognizable identity, one website, one Liberty Station to the community."

New branding includes a new website at libertystation.com/artsdistrict, a new logo and new social media platforms.

The new Arts District logo has a fresh, contemporary look while still respecting the district's storied Navy history.

"By putting the arts front and center in our destination's name, we can further raise the visibility of Arts District Liberty Station and encourage attendance by visitors and residents alike," added Ziter. "The new brand and website clearly articulate our role as the jewel of Liberty Station and a premiere arts destination for San Diego."

Following are some recent developments at the former NTC and others in the works:

• Liberty Public Market (open) San Diego's premiere artisan market housing 30-plus locally focused, specialty purveyors within a 22,000-square-foot indoor-outdoor historic 1920s-era warehouse-style building.

• Fireside by The Patio (open)

Transforms Liberty Station's original firehouse at NTC into a neighborhood-centric gathering place with indoor/outdoor seating, fire pits, wood-fired grills and family-style fresh fare.

• Buona Forchetta (May/June)

One of San Diego's most beloved authentic Italian pizzerias is on the way.

• Moniker General (May)

Modular retail store, furniture gallery, beer taproom and coffee bar showcasing a locally curated selection of high-quality products and handmade goods.

• The LOT (May)

A dining, drinking and cinematic experience unlike any other, featuring a multi-auditorium, luxury cinema; dedicated restaurant; well-appointed bar and café — a complete lifestyle experience under one roof.

• Breakfast Republic (June)

Will be Liberty Station's top spot to enjoy the most important meal of the day with plenty of pancakes and egg-based creations.

• Dirty Birds (summer)

Caters to the gourmand sports fan, offering an impressive selection of chicken wings served with more than 30 varieties of housemade sauces plus an extensive lineup of craft beer on tap.

• Nekter (summer)

As part of a broader effort to enhance The Quarter district, Nekter's new Liberty Station location will bring the rapidly expanding juice bar brand into central San Diego. Known for their approachable menu, the shop will serve customizable juice cleanses and cold-pressed grab 'n' go bottled drinks. Nekter will serve a selection of made-to-order juice blends and acai bowls.

ENJOY THE BEAUTY OF OLD TOWN

Mention Old Town San Diego and most folks will start talking about Mexican food whether it's the restaurant their family has been going to for generations or a new discovery they've made recently. And rightly so. If there is a capital of Mexican cuisine in San Diego, it's definitely Old Town.

Increasingly, though, people are discovering what locals have known for years. Old Town is also the place to go for shopping and Fiesta de Reyes is the place to hit up if you're in the market for a unique gift or specialty item you just can't find anywhere else.

Fiesta de Reyes is home to 19 unique specialty shops featuring authentic, historically themed, one-of-a-kind items that are perfect for gifts or for yourself. From hot sauces to silver jewelry, from olive oil to toys, from unique garden items to original artwork, books to wine to jerky all of the specialty shops of Fiesta de Reyes are locally owned and independently operated.

Of course, if you really want authentic Mexican food with your shopping, Fiesta de Reyes also features three fantastic restaurants that celebrate San Diego's rise from a Mexican village to a thriving culinary and commercial mecca. Add to that, the nightly entertainment and Fiesta de Reyes is not just a shopping center, it's a vibrant shopping and dining experience.

For more on the shopping, dining and entertainment at Fiesta de Reyes, go to fiestadereyes.com or just visit in the northeast corner of Old Town San Diego State Historic Park. 2754 Calhoun Street, San Diego, CA 92110.

Pointers baseball building to the playoffs

By SCOTT HOPKINS | THE BEACON

Point Loma High's baseball team has posted an 8-5 record going into its Western League season opener yesterday (April 13) at Madison.

The Warhawks (9-3 in league, 19-12 overall) are defending league champions, while the Pointers (7-5, 18-14) finished third in 2015 behind La Jolla.

Under first-year head coach David Wells, the Pointers made a thrilling playoff run last year that included two nail-biting wins to eliminate El Capitan before surrendering to eventual Div. II champion San Ysidro.

This year's team is hitting at a solid .316 pace, while the pitching staff's earned run average sits at 2.78.

Last month, Wells and his current squad won the championship at the Pirate Classic tournament, hosted by Oceanside, winning a tense final game against Great Oak (Temecula) 6-5 in eight innings.

In that game, juniors Aidan Yackly, Frank Rogozienski and Mathew Amberg each collected two hits to pace an 11-hit Pointer attack that included a triple by senior Spencer Gedestad.

Runs batted in were credited to Yackly, Gedestad, Amberg, freshman Anthony Hall and seniors Seth Urbon and Brady Young.

Junior Dan Berry was the winning pitcher as Wells used six different arms during the game. Pointer pitchers had control issues, walking 10 batters while striking out eight.

Looking ahead to the playoffs, the Pointers begin the league season tied with Francis Parker for the third-best current record among 19 CIF Div. II schools, falling behind only Santana and Mira Mesa.

The biggest offensive explosion for the Pointers came in a 19-0 blitz of Mt. Miguel in which the team pounded 18 hits led by Gedestad, who collected five hits in six at-bats, including a double, while scoring four runs.

He was joined by junior teammate

Nolan Chianello and Rogozienski, who each drove in three runs. Junior Santiago Gomez, sophomore Jack Early and Young each knocked in a pair to go with sophomore Mitchell Sardo and Yackly, who each had one.

In the season's first 13 games, Hall leads all hitters with a .441 batting average, followed by Chianello (.417), Gedestad (.405) and Urbon (.383).

Leading the team in doubles are Urbon and Rogozienski (4), senior Philip Huber and Gedestad (3) and Young (2). Urbon, Huber and Gedestad each have one triple while Young and Urbon have each slugged a home run.

On the base paths, Amberg's six stolen bases lead the team.

Among pitchers, senior Trevor Allen's two wins top the staff. Last year's ace, University of Oregon-bound senior Cole van den Helder, is sporting a stingy 1.72 earned run average and holding opposing hitters to a frustrating .147 batting average.

The Pointers play their home games at beautiful David Wells Field, where a new scoreboard has been installed this season. The field is located on the campus of Dana Middle School, 1775 Chatsworth Blvd., with the entrance on Macaulay Street. Admission to all regular season games is free.

Point Loma Cluster Choral Concert set for April 28

ni.org/PLHSChoirDonate2.htm.

Just three years ago, the halls of area middle and high schools were silent after all previous choral music programs became dormant.

Today, choir classes are not only back but have achieved elective status at Dana and Correia middle schools along with Point Loma High School.

Teacher Ina Soliz, who began Correia's group several years ago, now splits time to oversee the choirs there and at PLHS. Lauragrace Havens is the choirmaster at Dana.

The voices of all three schools will unite for the third annual Point Loma Cluster Choral Concert on April 28 at Correia Middle School, 4302 Valeta St. The entertainment begins at 6:30 p.m.

Each school's choral group will perform separately and the program will conclude with a grand finale featuring 90 youthful voices from the three schools.

Because the choir programs are unfunded, financial support remains a priority. A raffle and bake sale will be held to generate a sustaining budget.

Also, community members wishing to donate to the choral music movement can do so at plhsalum-

The choir revival began several years ago when community activist Kerri De Rosier noticed the absence of vocal music in area schools and made it a priority to see it return. She is thrilled to once again hear the joyful voices of local students.

"These programs exist because kids love to sing," de Rosier said, "and because community members, teachers and parents are making it happen."

In the early days of its revival, De Rosier and friend Pamila Whitney conducted the Point Loma High choir as an after-school club. But De Rosier knew the programs at area schools would not grow unless they were offered as elective courses to all students during the school day.

Also, de Rosier realized the importance of offering choir at early grades as students selected paths they wished to follow through high school.

De Rosier credits area principals with giving elective status to vocal music.

"I am thankful to Scott Irwin (Dana), Jonathan McDade (Correia) and Hans Becker (PLHS) for giving choir a chance," she said.

Ask The Trust & Estate Attorney

SM

Question:

I do not have any children and I own only my home, why should I do any estate planning?

Answer:

The major reason for any one to write a will, trust or do your estate planning is to provide a plan for their family to use at your death. Having this plan spares your relatives the guessing and worry and about what you wanted to happen to your property and your body. The pain of losing a family member is made worse by the fact that they do not know what the deceased wanted if there is no plan. If you want your money and assets to go to a person or charity of your choice, then you must have some plan in writing. It simply gives you control at your death.

Having a Living Revocable Trust will save your heirs time and lots of money by avoiding Probate Court. Assets over $150,000 and real estate will be distributed by a probate judge if there is no trust.

Another reason to do some planning is to avoid any medical intervention that you do not want. An Advanced Directive to Physician's states how you feel about life sustaining treatment and donation of organs. This document will give your agent the power to tell the doctors not to plug you into machines if you have no chance to have a normal life.

Now I have a question for you - Do you know what is in your safety deposit box?

OB Historical Society presentation on scandals

On Thursday, April 21 at 7 p.m. at Point Loma United Methodist Church, 1984 Sunset Cliffs Blvd., OBHS presents "The Carlson & Higgins O.B. Scandals" by Bruce Semelsberger. In 1887, Billy Carlson and Frank Higgins (credited as the founders of OB) renamed Mussel Beds to Ocean Beach.

Following that, they were linked to numerous scandals, such as land deals, an OB hotel and trains. Later, Carlson became San Diego's youngest mayor, while Higgins became a tragic figure. Suggested OBHS program donation is $5, but any donation is appreciated.

Semelsberger is the archivist for the Pacific Southwest Railway Museum. He built an archival collection and gives lectures on the railroad and also about local history. He has been a prominent feature speaker at The Congress of History of San Diego and Imperial Counties annual conferences.

San Diego Beach Winery Hosts Barbera Fest

Gianni Buonomo Vintners Celebrates Launch of Second Label

Gianni Buonomo Vintners Winery and Tasting Room is releasing the much anticipated 2013 Amador County Barbera and Zinfandel at their inaugural Barbera Fest on Saturday, April 30. This casual, picnic-style event is open to the public from 1PM to 5PM and takes place at the brand-new winery just steps from the Pacific in the heart of Ocean Beach. The showcased Barbera and Zinfandel were sourced from the renowned Oakmont Vineyard in the Shenandoah Valley of Amador County. Immediately after harvest the grapes were brought to San Diego to vinify and age in French oak barrels. These wines are being released under the winery's new second label, Gianni California.

And who is Gianni California? "It's probably important first to know who Gianni Buonomo is," explained Winemaker and Managing Partner Keith Rolle. "Gianni Buonomo is the consummate gentleman...always elegant, always well groomed, always well mannered. Buonomo means good man in Italian." And Gianni California? Rolle laughs, "You can think of him as the California beach version of Gianni Buonomo."

Nimitz Marine Facility reopening after upgrades

Scripps Institution of Oceanogra-

phy at the UCSD on April 15 will unveil the reopening of its Nimitz Marine Facility in Point Loma, the home of Scripps Ship Operations and Marine Technical Support. More than five years in the works, the revitalized facility includes $20.9 million worth of improvements, including a new pier, new wharf, improved berthing, upgraded utilities, and environmental protection systems.

"The Nimitz Marine Facility is now well positioned to serve as America's finest oceanographic support center for the next half-century and beyond," said Bruce Appelgate, head of Scripps Ship Operations and Marine Technical Support.

The Nimitz Marine Facility on San Diego Bay has served as the home port and operations base for the Scripps academic research fleet for more than 50 years. It is home to research vessels Roger Revelle and Robert Gordon Sproul and research platform FLIP. The facility serves as a coordination center for research operations around the world's oceans as part of Scripps/UCSD's ongoing effort to understand and protect the planet.

Later this year the facility will welcome the arrival of R/V Sally Ride, America's newest research vessel, named for the former UCSD professor and the first American woman in space.

Stay creative and always be Young At Art

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

Thanks to Kim Howell, students in Ocean Beach are not only young at heart but young at art.

Which, not coincidentally, is the title of Howell's nonprofit business – Young At Art Children's Creative Center, which she runs out of her home at 1821 Cable St.

At her studio, Howell and her art teachers help children experience the joy of creativity and increased self-esteem by transforming day-to-day challenges with paints, brushes and clay.

"I have a pottery wheel and a kiln area and a classroom that has a big 'fantasy' mural wall, and that changes all the time, from one theme to another, from jungle to ocean to outer space, as kids color it," said Howell.

Howell, who started her business about seven years ago, talked about its origin.

"I'm a professional artist and raised four kids, and we had a lot of art around us, and I was doing mural painting," she said. "And it was always children who would stop and stare and tell me, 'I wish I had a place to paint; they won't let me have it at my house.'"

That made Howell realize that "Kids need a place to go and that there are much better alternatives than video games."

Of art, and why she specializes in teaching it to children, Howell said, "It changes your life – inspires you, helps you get creative and solve problems."

Young at Art students are used to multitasking.

"We do a lot of different kinds of mediums," said Howell, noting that during any given art class, some students will be shaping clay on the pottery wheel while others are sculpting and even more are painting a canvas with pastels or watercolors.

"We try to give them the opportunity to try lots of mediums and help them hone their skills," Howell said, adding, "They never want to leave – and they can't wait to get back."

WANT TO HELP?

Young At Art will hold its annual fundraising event 6 to 8 p.m. Saturday, April 30 at Masonic Lodge at 1711 Sunset Cliffs Blvd.

Admission is $10 for adults, $5 for children.

For more information, visit youngatartsandiego.org.

Students at Young at Art range from 4 to 17 years of age. Howell said the age limit used to be 14 but that she ultimately made an exception for returning "alumni" who've wanted to intern as student art teachers in the summer.

"Young at Art has given me the opportunity to create stunning pieces of art and learn the importance of art in my life and so much more," said student Elena Kazmier. "Kim Howell and the wonderful staff of Young at Art are admirable women that I look up to and love."

"Four years ago, I walked in only expecting to learn how to hold a brush and create beautiful art. The women of Young at Art have helped me become a better person, friend and artist," Kazmier said.

Howell said her nonprofit business offers a scholarship program benefiting kids from needy families who otherwise wouldn't have the opportunity to attend her art school.

"We do fundraising and we give scholarship awards to kids," she said.

Eat your way through Point Loma and Shelter Island at annual tasting event

San Diego food lovers and visitors will sample fresh seafood, decadent desserts and a variety of ethnic cuisine from an array of restaurants, cafes and bakeries at the 27th annual Taste of Point Loma on April 20 from 5:30 to 9 p.m., hosted by the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce. "We are excited to celebrate and bring awareness to the rich Portuguese cultural heritage in Point Loma. United Portuguese S.E.S. Inc. will provide attendees with a glimpse into their traditional cuisine, customs and activities," said Matt Kalla, president of the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce.

Participating restaurants include United Portuguese S.E.S. Inc., Bali Hai, The Elegant Truffle, The Wine Pub, Seaside Pho & Grill, Brigantine Seafood & Oyster Bar, EAT at The Pearl, Miguel's Cocina, Quarterdeck Restaurant & Bar, Vessel Restaurant

'Revenge Girls of the West' to transform OB Masonic Lodge into the Old West

A local performance troupe will take over Ocean Beach's Masonic Lodge with an original dinner-theater presentation of a rollicking Old West tale of women seeking their revenge and the men who must pay for their foul deeds.

Featuring live music, sexy dancers, a full dinner and a few surprises, the play's cast and crew have an Ocean Beach flavor.

"It's mostly Ocean Beach people," said Sooty Hetrick, producer and co-writer of "Revenge Girls of the West." "I got a lot of people from Hodad's because there's a lot of talent in Hodad's."

The performances at 7 p.m. on April 23 and 24 will be the third time Shetrick Entertainment has produced "immersive" theater at the Masonic, where the wall separating actors and audience is removed.

"They are immersed in the show because it's happening all around them," said Hetrick, who currently works at Sapporo sushi restaurant on Newport Avenue. "It's more like an experience than just a play. It's not a cheesy guess-whodunit story—it's like you're there having a good time and it's actually happening around you."

The first two immersive shows were based on the cult-classic film "From Dusk 'Till Dawn," but "Revenge Girls of the West" was written by Hetrick and Tomas Novarro, with music written by Jonny Wagon.

Dinner is included in the ticket price and a cash bar will be selling alcohol. "Revenge Girls of the West" features R-rated language and sexy dancers, so nobody under 21 will be admitted.

The show will be a benefit for Breast Cancer Angels, which provides assistance to breast cancer patients and their families. The charity is not involved in scientific research; instead it helps with the day-to-day needs of patients like buying food, paying for gas or rent, clothing and many other essentials.

Tickets, priced at $97.50 each, are available at www.shetrick.com and include an option for "in the thick of it" seats, which will be close to the stage and in the middle of the action. People sitting in the thick of it are encouraged to dress in Old West attire and be ready for an in-your-face experience.

"They could have girls dancing in their laps or on their tables," Hetrick said. "You never know what's going months of treatments, his wife Mandy is pregnant, and the calculated time is May 15. After all the difficulties, they are now enjoying the pregnancy.

"There are a lot of women who have difficulties with pregnancy," Scott says of Mandy, "but she says all the time that she loves being pregnant. It has been a fun experience."

"We try to appreciate every single day and be in the moment," Mandy says. "This is really happening, and we don't want to skip over any of it."

Life wasn't as good 14 years ago, when Scott was 23 and found out that he had Stage IV cancer. He knew that something was wrong with his body, but he didn't want to face the facts.

He waited four months before going to the doctor, and the doctor's serious questions scared him off. After two months, he couldn't handle the pain, so he went back.

"They knew right away what it was," Scott says, "and the surgery was the next day. It was emergency, because I waited so long."

Scott says that testicular cancer is curable if you catch it early. When you don't, it can spread, and it's no longer technically testicular cancer; it could be lymphoma or morph into any other type of cancer.

The cancer recurred in 2004, and because this time it was caught early, it only required surgery without the chemotherapy. Now, Scott goes through checkups every year.

"Knock on wood, I'm pretty far out in a remission," he says; "it has been 14 years. Once every year I get blood and once every five years CT scans and X-rays."

Scott and Mandy knew all along that having a baby might not be possible for them, but their doctors and nurses were positive and supporting. They started their journey last May and found out in September that Mandy was pregnant.

"We were really fortunate," Mandy says. "People can go years with the process, and I don't know how it worked so well for us. We're excited and blown away. Everything just feels like we've accomplished a hurdle."

Scott feels that after cancer his attitude has changed. To him, the true meaning is that life is too short. With Mandy, they want to think about the good things in life.

"It's still a balance of work and balance of responsibilities," Scott says, "but I try to balance out fun. I think about cancer and can it return. What good is all the other stuff that you worry about if that happens?"

He notes that men just don't make a doctor's appointment and go to the doctor. To get men to really focus on checking themselves is important.

"Men don't speak about getting a doctor's appointment," he says, "which is funny, because a lot of men are into health, diet and sports. But it's almost like it stops when it's time to go to a doctor."

The couple had an underwater photograph session with photographer Erena Shimoda, who does sessions with cancer survivors. Scott and Mandy wanted to do something different "to honor our pregnancy and our baby."

"Anything that we can do to motivate or inspire other cancer survivors, or even anybody going through cancer, we are always down to do that," Scott says.

Beatles tribute band Help! to play the Harp in OB

By BART MENDOZA | THE BEACON

Without a doubt, there is no band as popular as The Beatles. Almost 60 years since their music first exploded on the nation's radios, the group's music continues to be popular among America's youth and beyond, so it's only natural that there be numerous tribute bands to fill demand. One of the area's most popular, Help!, performs at the Harp in Ocean Beach.

For drummer Russ Noel, the band's Ringo, the chance to play in Help! has been the culmination of a lifelong love of all things musical and, in particular, the Beatles. A native of Long Island, N.Y., Noel was born in 1963, meaning he literally grew up with the Beatles as a soundtrack to his life.

"Obviously, I'm obsessed," he said with a smile. "I will never tire of listening to this music and playing it live." He notes there are two types of bands that cover this music — "portrayals," which means musicians dress and try to look and sound like the real thing, and more standards groups that just concentrate on the music.

"In fact, when playing with the portrayal tributes, I have to be careful to stay in character in a presentational way with the head shaking and goofy grin; otherwise, I can fall too much into the groove and just listening to those wonderful noises from the Hofner, the Gretsch, the Rickenbacker, the 52-year old Ludwigs. It'll never get old. The thrill will never be gone."

As a rule, Help! does songs in chronological order. "People expect that and seem more comfortable with it," Noel commented. "It's been the standard tribute model since Beatlemania back in the mid 1960s.

"Costume changes depend on the venue. Is there a dressing room? We all have the black Chesterfield suits, also referred to as Sullivans and Shea Stadium outfits, which are wool and hotter than hell, custom Sgt. Pepper gear. And for the 'Let It Be' and 'Abbey Road' eras, we all put things together that match what they were wearing then."

He points out there is a bit of a formula to the band's look. "Some Johns," he said, "have the surplus Army jacket. "But as a rule, most tributes have the last set down to a standard: Paul with a vest over T-shirt, George in denim, John in the white 'I'm with Yoko' suit and Ringo either casual, a wool pullover sweater, or his movie-star look, which is a suit and a scarf instead of a tie."

For nightclubs, the band tends to concentrate on the earlier part of the Beatles career.

Pointers Academic Team goes undefeated

Point Loma High's Academic League team completed its regular season undefeated, winning the championship of the city's Central Division and earning entry to the "Final Four" of citywide academia.

The San Diego City Championships were held on April 7 at the San Diego County Office of Education's Instructional Television Studio. There they watched La Jolla

High defeat Madison in a 4 p.m. match.

The Pointers took the stage at 5 p.m., defeating Patrick Henry to move to the finals.

The finals, held immediately after at 6 p.m., saw the Vikings hand the Pointers their first defeat of the season, leaving them as city runners-up in the 2016 Academic League competition.

This marks the first time the team has qualified for the final round. The competition was filmed for future broadcast on the San Diego Education cable channel.

The team's captain is Adrian Burnes. President is Kyle Nichols, and the faculty advisor is James Ballantine.

Seniors supplement retirement while helping other seniors

A recent Gallup survey found that 63 percent of workers planned to work part-time when they reached retirement age. Seniors return to work after retiring for financial reasons but others are looking for opportunities to give back. A local company, Seniors Helping Seniors, offers a unique opportunity for retirees to supplement retirement income and help other seniors. The company matches active seniors with seniors who need some assistance to remain independent. The senior caregivers are employed by Seniors Helping Seniors and provide a variety of services including companionship and socialization, rides to doctors, shopping, help around the house and medication reminders. The services often allow a senior to remain in their own home instead of moving to an assisted living setting. If you have a heart for helping fellow seniors, want to earn some extra income and have your own car, call Seniors Helping Seniors. They are hiring and provide free training. Call 800-481-2488 or visit the company website — homecarebyseniors.com - to learn more.

Controversial Point Loma Summit project back in court

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

The battle over a controversial lot split proposed on a Point Loma historic property is far from over, as a grass-roots group is supporting the City Council's decision to appeal a judge's reversal of its previous vote denying the subdivision project.

San Diego City Council voted 6-3 on Feb. 9, 2015 to deny the Point Loma Summit project. The project is a subdivision proposal that calls for splitting the old Joseph Jessop estate at 414 La Crescentia Drive into four lots, including the Tudor-styled home built in 1926 by Joseph and Mabel Jessop.

The 2015 City Council decision affirmed local opposition to the project by the Peninsula Community Planning Board, which had voted 12-0-1 against the Jessop lot split on Aug. 15, 2012.

The Jessop project, however, was previously recommended for approval by the San Diego City Planning Commission on June 19, 2014. Point Loma planners then appealed the Planning Commission's support of the Jessop project to the City Council.

Jessop project opponents, a grass-roots group known as Preserve

Point Loma (PPL), claims numerous problems with the project, including steep narrow access, concerns for fire safety and fears of a potentially unstable hillside. Detractors also allege the project is inconsistent with the Peninsula Community Plan, insisting as well that it deviates from the City Municipal Code.

These issues prompted a groundswell of opposition to the subdivision project by more than 900 residents citywide, including some members of the extended Jessop family.

The City Council voted March 15 in a closed-door session to appeal a Feb. 23 trial court decision by Judge Joel Wohlfeil. In his judicial ruling, Wohlfeil sided with property owner Carolyn Kutzke, who had accused the City Council of unlawfully rejecting the Jessop project over environmental issues she claimed had been previously adequately addressed.

In April of 2015, Kutzke filed a lawsuit against the city for inverse condemnation of her property. Her lawsuit alleges the City Council had overridden environmental documents to appease residents.

According to Kutzke's lawsuit, the City Council's decision had a "negative impact on plaintiffs economically and interfered with distinct investment-backed expectations."

In February, PPL sent a letter to City Council members enumerating its problems with Judge Wohlfeil's recent ruling and warning of the implications "such a ruling would have for the city in other similar cases."

An excerpt from PPL's letter reads, "The trial court in overturning the Council's decision appears to have overstepped its authority. ... Further, the trial court is not permitted to weigh the evidence — that is left solely to the Council. Instead, the court should have only determined that substantial evidence exists to uphold the Council's position. ... Nevertheless, the court failed to meet this exceedingly low threshold notwithstanding the evidence before it."

The next step is for the Jessop case to be brought to the Fourth Appellate Court, a judicial process likely to take between one and two years.

The law firm of Thorsnes Bartolotta McGuire LLP, representing the plaintiffs in the Jessop case, Carolyn Kutzke and Karen Kapp, could not be reached for comment.

For more information about PPL and its views, visit www.preservepointloma.org.

PARROTS

"Even if someone doesn't necessarily consider themselves to be an animal lover, I think everyone is concerned for the (Ocean Beach) community," said Dan Carron, PETA's outreach coordinator, in the wake of the more than five birds killed during the past several weeks in the OB area.

Carron offered this caveat about whoever is responsible for the recent bird slayings.

"People who abuse animals rarely do so only once," he said. "And a lot of them often go on to abuse more animals — and people in some instances. It's a great threat for everybody and should be viewed as a community concern."

Reports on exactly how many birds have been felled varies, though Carron noted, "We keep getting multiple reports, different numbers, but it's absolutely more than a handful now, half a dozen, around there."

Carron added PETA continues to offer a $5,000 reward for information leading to whoever is responsible "being nabbed."

Speculation abounds that the parrot killer(s) are most likely juveniles living in the beach area. But that is uncertain.

"The one thing we know for sure is that whoever is doing this is a coward," Carron said. "It's the act of a bully who's taking out their personal issues and frustrations on defenseless birds, parrots."

Carron pointed out all of the slain birds did not die quickly or painlessly.

"In some cases, they're not dying right away," he said. "Some of the parrots have suffered greatly before they died. One even died after it was taken in and given surgery."

The San Diego Department of Animal Services has said it is actively investigating the ongoing series of OB parrot killings. Anyone with information in the case is urged to call (619) 692-4800.

Renting in San Diego is going to get more expensive — more reason to buy now

By City News Service

Apartment-dwellers in San Diego County can look forward to the highest projected rent increases in Southern California over the next two years, thanks to growing demand and low vacancy rates, according to a report released Tuesday.

The study prepared by Beacon Economics for the Lusk Center for Real Estate said average rents are expected to rise by $155 -- to $1,577 -- over the next two years in San Diego County.

national average, making apartments a more accessible option for many people in search of a place to live.

"At a national level, it is clear that the great apartment bull market that started at the end of the great recession is coming to an end," said Christopher Thornberg, Beacon Economics founding partner. "Local supply constraints combined with solid economic growth implies that
