Rose of Sharon takes the Cup

In 1930, the schooners Rose of Sharon, Dauntless and Curlew were among 42 yachts that finished the 660-mile Bermuda Race from New London to Bermuda and lay at anchor at the Royal Bermuda Yacht Club.

Eighty-seven years later, these same three schooners crossed the finish line along with 10 others in the 29th running of America's Schooner Cup in San Diego Bay on Saturday, April 1. With a fresh breeze and bright sunshine, Rose of Sharon captured the cup, nosing out second-place finisher Curlew by a mere 48 seconds on corrected time.

Each of these yachts have not only survived, but thrived. It is a testament to the loving care and dedication of their owners.

Among our three oldest surviving schooners, owners Byron Chamberlain, Bob Harrison and Paul Plotts have continuously campaigned Rose of Sharon, Curlew, and Dauntless, respectively, and coincidentally, for a combined total of 87 years.

Plotts founded the Schooner Cup with the Kona Kai International Yacht Club and has raced in all but four since. They've participated in races in such destinations as San Francisco, New York, Puerto Vallarta and Hawaii.

Jerry Newton completed a five-month refit of Maid of Kent with two days to spare — just in time to enter his 25th Schooner Cup. But dedication to their beautiful boats is not what keeps them coming back.

"It's not who wins, it's the fun of seeing old friends and the warm welcome we always receive from the members of Silver Gate Yacht Club, our hosts," Plotts said.

Jury deliberations resumed April 12 in the murder trial of Thomas Burke, a pharmacist who is accused of killing his roommate's boyfriend at Burke's front door in Ocean Beach.

The eight-woman, four-man jury got the case Tuesday, April 11 at 3:47 p.m. after hearing hours of closing arguments and instructions from San Diego Superior Court Judge Melinda Lasater.

Burke, 32, testified Friday he shot Jess Matthew Robles, 34, of Pacific Beach, in self-defense after

Thomas Burke

Robles sent him text messages that Burke said were threatening to him.

Verdict options as suggested by Deputy District Attorney Kyle Sutterley are first and second-degree murder.

Shelter Island boat ramp upgrades to begin soon

Boaters urged to use other facilities

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

The Port of San Diego has completed the bidding process for the Shelter Island Boat Launch Facility Improvement Project, with construction expected soon concluding in March 2018.

One of the busiest boat launch ramps in California, with an estimated 50,000 launches annually, the approximately $9.5 million improvement project was designed with extensive public outreach.

It has received funding from the California Department of Boating and Waterways and the Wildlife Conservation Board.

The bidding process for the project is complete and a contract award is imminent. Pending contract approval, construction is expected to begin in late April or early May and conclude in March 2018.

Constructed in the mid-1950s with a single-lane concrete launch ramp, Shelter Island boat launch's last major improvement was completed in the mid-1970s when the existing 10-lane boat launching ramp was constructed. The facility is used by recreational boaters from the general public, including small yachts, inboard and out-board motorboats, private fishing boats, fishing tournament boats and amphibious tour buses.

"This project recognizes that the boat launch needs to be enlarged, made more safe and more navigable and maneuverable making it easier for boats to move around within the basin once they're in the water," said Brianne Page, marketing and public relations representative for the Port District.

"It will increase the length of the boarding floats. We'll be installing a public walking platform with viewing areas. We'll also be installing more signage and better lighting, as well as bringing the restrooms up to current ADA standards."

Due to safety concerns and to allow construction to occur, the Shelter Island facility will be closed to the public during most of construction.

One lane will remain open during the peak summer months, but ramp users should expect delays if launching from the SIBL during the summer months. They are urged to utilize several alternate launch facilities throughout the area.

Page noted, "We encourage the boating public to find an alternative boat launch facility in the area."

Regarding the boat launch's construction, Page noted, "We're (Port) doing everything possible to minimize the impacts on the surrounding community."

Le Rondelet: Point Loma's early high rise, celebrates 50 years this month

By KAREN SCANLON | THE BEACON

All the while Ocean Beach Fishing Pier was being raised over the Pacific, pier contractor Leonard Teyssier was conceiving his notion of building a luxury high rise on the site of an old tuna cannery in Point Loma.

Before dredging spoils were dumped on the unlovely shoal that became Shelter Island, "Boats came up 10 feet to our building line," remembers 89-year-old Teyssier. "Fish were off-loaded into the cannery, which was an old rusty sheet metal building. When my friends heard I was building down there, they advised me to stay away from that nasty, smelly cannery."

But Teyssier's luxury Le Rondelet apartment complex was ideal with bay views, and its 5-minute proximity to the airport and downtown San Diego.

"When we started planning the building, it became more and more obvious that everyone should share in the view and round was the obvious answer," Teyssier remembers.

"Before we started construction, we set up scaffolds in a straight line 60 feet up, then went to each level and took photos of the views you'd have when the building was finished."

Family friend Lynn Gildred, wife of Fox Theatre owner, Philip Gildred, offered the name Le Rondelet after studying in France.

During construction the building began to resemble the first-century

Italian Coliseum, an oval amphitheatre in the center of Rome. Point Loma neighbors of the project playfully attached a large sign made of dry wall scraps to the lower balcony, which read, "Coliseum Score Board." Below these letters, in Roman numerals, a line of scores, finally, "Lions II. Christians O." Nearby, another sign was hung with an image of a lion.

Leonard notes, "I remember later when I was in Rome, resenting that the Romans had copied my design!"

Two architects and a draftsman worked with Teyssier for three years designing the building. "I didn't want any feature that I wouldn't be happy to live with. This was our gauge, and I knew what I wanted."

For economy and longevity, precast concrete was used instead of wood. "When we poured wall panels, and inserted rebar, we laid the panels on the floor then stood them up. In another six or eight years, this became the way of doing things. Bigger equipment being manufactured meant you could pick up bigger pieces of walls." A few hundred balcony posts and rails were also precast.

White concrete was sandblasted to give it a finished, colorful appearance. "The building is 50 years old now," Teyssier says, "and it has not been necessary to repaint or refinish these natural colors. The building looks recently constructed."

Teyssier designed the complex with open walkway balconies so it

The finished product (left), April 1967: 174,000 square feet of luxury apartments for Point Loma, or four acres of floor area. Playful Point Loma neighbors watching the circular Le Rondelet rise likened it to the Coliseum in Rome. They attached a homemade scoreboard to the first floor balcony that read, 'Coliseum Score Board.' In Roman numerals the final score: 'Lions II. Christians O.' Below the scoreboard, a large drawing of a lion.

didn't need corridors, air-conditioning, lighting, or carpeting. Outside walkways would be easy to maintain. To avoid people seeing inside another's space as they walked by, designers placed windows five feet high along the walkway.

The six-story Le Rondelet on Anchorage Street stands at 60-feet tall.

According to The San Diego Union, April 16, 1967: "The building, of reinforced concrete, swings in a half circle around a central recreation complex with swimming pool, terrace, two sauna baths, recreation room, and hobby shop. It contains 77 luxury apartments, ranging from single bedroom, single bath units of 1,000 square feet to deluxe penthouses of 2,100 square feet, with three bedrooms and three baths, which will rent for $1,200 a month. The lowest price on the rent schedule is $400 a month."

"We designed 16 different floor plans," Teyssier chuckles, "and we charged a different price for every unit. When you're trying to fill a new building you have to compromise the rent a little to get it started, but then everybody else wants the same price."

Standing in the center courtyard is a 63-year old tree that has grown taller than the six-story building. Teyssier had seen it along the route of a future freeway in Riverside and asked to have it. He sent a backhoe and trailer, and crane operator Joe to collect it. It was too big to go under the freeway, and limbs were broken. "Leonard, I'm not unloading that tree until you look at it. Miserable looking thing," said Joe.

"I told Joe to take it off the trailer, put it in a hole. We ordered heating cables from Chicago to wrap around the roots of the tree because we knew it grew well in Hawaii at 80 degree temps," Leonard says.

Teyssier exchanged the complex in 1972 to Lincoln Property's Peter Bren and Joe Landau in trades for 17 other properties in California, Texas, and Arizona. Teyssier shakes his head. "I was on the phone in a simultaneous exchange to satisfy

House construction at Ebers and Greene at a standstill

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

'The 2269 Ebers St. project is a total disaster ... and is not making progress.'

JOHN AMBERT
OCEAN BEACH COMMUNITY PLANNING BOARD CHAIR

What's up with the controversial housing development at 2269 Ebers St. in Ocean Beach?

More people are wondering that as they drive by the skeletal structure at the corner of Ebers and Greene streets, which some believe is oversized and out of character with the surrounding community.

The structure hasn't been worked on in months, and its exposed wood appears to be deteriorating.

Ocean Beach Community Planning Board chair architect John Ambert said he knows some of what's going on with the stalled development.

"The contractor for the project had his contractor's license suspended for failing to comply with an arbitration award," said Ambert, who added, "The loan/mortgage for the project appears to have gone into default, and currently is in pre-foreclosure."

Ambert's understanding is the project "could be sold as a short sale, sent to cash auction, or the owner can file for bankruptcy. I do not know which of these options will happen — or what the next steps are in this process."

Councilmember Lorie Zapf's office in District 2, which includes the Peninsula, said the project had been on hold but should have resumed.

"There was a stop work order put on it," said Zapf aide Ryan Purdy, adding, "Our understanding is the developer came up with a plan to get things back in order, and the final project was going to not be above 30 feet and not block anybody's views." "The stop-work order should have been lifted once they (city) reached an agreement with the developers and the project was green lighted," Purdy said. "It's mysterious it's not being worked on."

"The 2269 Ebers St. project is a total disaster ... and is not making progress," concluded Ambert. "There are multiple issues with the project."

Ambert however disputed the contention that the status of the project's permitting was clear.

"A stop work order was never issued for the project by the city of San Diego, only an inspections corrections notice with specific elements to correct, back in October of last year," he said.

Ambert said he was told by the city's planning department that "the project has submitted for a construction change, and is being redesigned to enclose the two buildings together and make them to look more like one building."

Noting "we do not really know what is happening with this project," Ambert said the OB Planning Board "is very disappointed by the city's review process. This project skirted around the rules to avoid the Coastal Development Permit as an 'addition.' They submitted as a ministerial, 'over-the-counter process 1.'"

"Thus, the OB Planning Board did not get the opportunity to review the project," Ambert continued. "It was only when the community raised hell about what appears to be two units being built in a single-family zone, and the developer posted the renderings on Facebook, that we found out about it."

The housing project's developer, Nelco Properties, previously said, "Nelco Properties is a strong supporter of the Ocean Beach community and its residents. With this project we are working to beautify the community and bring increased home values to the surrounding neighborhood."

"The project conforms to all required municipal codes, city development regulations, and has obtained all required permits; it has been approved by city and county agencies.

"We take our duty as responsible developers seriously. We have complied with all regulation necessary to construct this project. To ensure compliance, we have enlisted independent licensed land surveyors to survey the property. They have certified that the height of this structure is within the allowable 30-foot height limit. All components of this project have been stamped, approved and signed-off on by the city of San Diego to move forward with this project."

Nelco, and the architects involved in the project, could not be reached by the Peninsula Beacon for further comment.

Point Loma Artist Wins Prestigious Award

Jean Silva, an artist and resident of Point Loma won Best Miniature in the highly competitive April Member's exhibit, Seeds of Inspiration, at The San Diego Watercolor Society. Her painting titled "In the Garden" was given the honor by award-winning juror Helen Shafer Garcia. According to Garcia, "This piece demonstrates exceptional spontaneity, gesture and stance. It is inviting but not overpowering. Its linear quality balances the use of color and enriches the figure."

After retiring from a 30-year career as a graphics artist with the Federal Government, Silva is enjoying being a mixed media artist, experimenting with new materials and techniques. "Nature is very important to me since so much of my inspiration and energy comes from it. I try to spend as much time as I can painting in Idyllwild, an artists' community located in the San Jacinto mountains and also at Lake Almanor, a mountain retreat in northern California. My style is representational, painting landscapes and the figure. After taking an exciting mixed media collage workshop from the Southern artist Carrie Burns Brown, I now am discovering the excitement of new combinations of materials, continuing with nature themes but gravitating also to the abstract and non-representational. I am active with the San Diego Watercolor Society, the Point Loma Artists Association and several artists' critique groups.

The exhibit will continue at the San Diego Watercolor Society's gallery through Saturday, April 29th. The gallery is located in the ARTS DISTRICT Liberty Station at 2825 Dewey Road, Bldg #202 and is open Wednesday through Sunday, 10 am to 4 pm. The exhibit is free to the public. ## Point Loma senior earns SD Scholar-Leader-Athlete award

By SCOTT HOPKINS | THE BEACON

A member of last season's Point Loma Pointer football team and its head coach each were honored by a national organization at its recent 45th annual banquet.

Patrick Rutledge, who terrorized opposing quarterbacks from his defensive end position, received a prestigious San Diego Scholar-Leader-Athlete award from the local Walter J. Zable chapter of the National Football Foundation.

Only 27 students from more than 100 high schools in the region were selected for this honor. Point Loma has had a player selected in 38 of the 45 years.

Standing 6-foot 3-inches tall and weighing 190 pounds, Rutledge lettered for three seasons on varsity while starting on offense and defense two of three years.

During his senior season, he recorded 18 quarterback sacks and was named to the All-Western League First Team defense. On offense, he caught 21 passes and scored two touchdowns.

Rutledge also starred in the classroom, compiling a 3.83 GPA and earning a spot on the Principal's Honor Roll all four years.

He also has volunteered at a local church for eight years and participated in internships at the San Diego Zoo.

After graduation, Rutledge plans to enlist in the Army and later attend SDSU to major in zoology.

Pointer head coach Mike Hastings was also honored at the event as the local Meritorious Coach of the Year.

Hastings will begin his 20th season as Pointer head coach in 2017 after he was named to succeed longtime legend Bennie Edens in 1997. He values seeing his players become great husbands, fathers and community leaders.

During his head coaching career, Hastings has compiled a record of 135-84-2.

Pointers baseball begins in Eastern League

By SCOTT HOPKINS | THE BEACON

The Point Loma baseball team finds itself with effective pitching while continuing to struggle at the plate as it prepares for play in a new league.

The team's pitchers have compiled a 1.36 ERA (earned run average) through 14 games while hitters are producing 7.2 hits and 3.8 runs per game leading to wins over weaker hitting teams and losses against teams who make frequent contact with the ball.

With early-season tournaments and non-league games nearly complete, the Pointers' record stands at 8-5-1, better than all members of the Eastern League except Serra (8-4).

In CIF rankings, the Dogs currently stand fourth among 20 Div. II teams.

The new Eastern League lineup has the Pointers joining Serra, Patrick Henry, San Diego, Mira Mesa, Coronado and University City high schools to form the new circuit. The Pointers will bid farewell to former Western League foes including La Jolla, Madison and Cathedral.

The league schedule calls for the Pointers to play each team twice, once at home, once away. Because of work on the Mira Mesa field, the teams played twice at David Wells Field last week with the Pointers winning both games to take an early first-place lead.

"We have a great chance to win this league," said head coach David Wells. "As long as we're doing our job out there and our pitching keeps us in the game we have a chance. We can't take anybody for granted."

In the first Marauder game, the "visiting" Pointers pushed across a run in the seventh inning to send the game into extra innings. They scored three runs in the eighth on three hits and a Mira Mesa error. Junior A. J. Shrader pitched the eighth to pick up a save in the 5-2 win.

In their true home game, the Pointers survived a shaky start by junior starter Mitchell Sardo who then settled down to throw a complete game shutout. He needed only 68 pitches for the win.

Offensively, the Dogs put together a few hits in the fifth inning, which, coupled with several Marauder miscues in the field, led to all five runs in a 5-0 win.

The PLHS hitting futility can be seen in the stat line of senior out-

Baserunner Santiago Gomez crosses the plate with the Pointers' first run during a 5-0 win over Mira Mesa in the teams' Eastern League opening series. The Pointers won both games over the Marauders. PHOTO BY SCOTT HOPKINS fielder Frank Rogozienski who has a league second-best .400 batting average, third-best slugging percentage (.555) and leads the league with 12 runs scored. But Rogozienski's hits are coming with few teammates on base as his 12 hits, including three doubles and two triples have only generated two RBI's, tied with 13 others for 37th place in the league.

"We've been playing this game a long time and it's very seldom you see a team with all cylinders working," said Wells. "It's usually one or the other, and now the pitchers are working, and while the hitting's okay, it's nothing to write home about."

Notable pitchers include senior Andrew Johnson with a 2-1 record and 1.38 ERA. He has walked only two batters and struck out 21 over 25.1 innings. He has thrown two complete game shutouts.

Sardo has a 3-1 record, 1.20 ERA, eight walks and 24 strikeouts through 23.1 innings. Opponents are hitting .176 against him and he has two complete-game shutouts.

Senior Santiago Gomez has a 1.71 ERA covering 16.1 innings with opponents hitting .188.

Senior reliever Dan Berry has a 0.00 ERA over 6.2 innings with opponents batting .150.

Junior Austin Correia got the start in a game against La Jolla and threw 5.2 innings, giving up three runs and getting credit for the Pointers' 7-4 win. He has held opponents to a .171 batting average in five appearances.

Junior Roman Paniagua has a 0.88 ERA and a win in eight innings of relief pitching. Opponents are hitting .161 against him.

Shrader has two saves and an ERA of 0.00 in three appearances with opponents batting .133.

And sophomore Anthony Hall has shown his talents as well.

"We're very deep in pitching right now," Wells said. "We've got kids who know the game, and when the confidence comes around at the plate, I'm not worried about anything."

At the plate, junior Justin DaLuz trails Rogozienski by just 38 points with a .362 batting average. His 17 hits include four doubles and four RBI. He has struck out twice in 50 at-bats. No other regular starter is hitting above .282.

"It's all about whether their confidence level is high," Wells summarized. "If these kids believe in themselves, there's nothing they can't do."

Extra bases

The team is finishing play in the fourth largest prep baseball tournament in the U.S., the Lions Tournament. Now in its 62nd year, the event draws 136 teams from throughout California. The Pointers are in Div. 6A and share a bracket with Rocklin (Calif.), Otay Ranch and La Jolla. To see more, go to lions-baseball.org.

To schedule all of these games, a total of 95 local fields are used including David Wells Field.

Red Bull Air Race returns to SD

After eight years away, the Red Bull Air Race World Championship will return to fly over San Diego Bay April 15-16.

Nicolas Ivanoff won the last race in the skies above San Diego and he'll be back to defend this month. Ivanoff beat Paul Bonhomme by more than a second in 2009, and this year he will be fighting 13 other Master Class pilots to try and win.

"I've got great memories of San Diego, and we have been good in America, so it should be a close race," Ivanoff said.

The pilots of the Red Bull Air Race have been doing their homework on the San Diego track and the variables such as the weather. Race director Steve Jones, who raced in 2007 and 2008 and has a wealth of experience in what can happen in San Diego, said the race this year will be about weather conditions.

"The weather can be a variable on the Pacific Coast," said Jones. "There is the marine layer, which is a bank of fog that rolls in off the coast and can cover the track. In the past, it's rolled close to the track but never covered it, so we'll be hoping that's as close as it gets."

One advantage the race committee has is that it is able to get a lot of forecasts and information about the weather. This is thanks to the two major airports and the U.S. Naval Air Base that are in close proximity

RED BULL AIR RACE

Where: Embarcadero Marina Park on San Diego Bay behind the convention center.

When: Qualifying will take place on Saturday. Racing will take place on Sunday. Doors will open at 11:30 a.m. both days.

Info: www.redbullairrace.com.

to the track. Also Jones' fellow race director, Jim DiMatteo, lives in San Diego and knows the area well.

"Due to the track's location, wind will definitely feature in this race," Jones said. "As we're close to the ocean, it's unlikely that it will be still. But if the wind is coming in from the coast it should still be smooth in the track. If the wind is coming off the shore, it will be turbulent because of the buildings, making it similar to Abu Dhabi."

The track in San Diego is a 15 gate course over two laps. It has a tight 180-degree turn at one end and a vertical turning maneuver at the other. It looks to be a fast and simple track, but that's what makes it exciting.

"Although it looks simple, it means the pilots will have to fly it absolutely perfectly if they are to win. One small mistake will see them out of the running," said Jones.

Once the pilots have flown through the Start Gate they have to navigate the chicane and then they head to the 180-degree turn, which has Gate 3 at the halfway point of the turn, so the pilots have to get their wings level before carrying on. "There's a lot of time that can be won or lost in this turn, depending on the line the pilots take," said Jones.

At the end of the turn is Gate 4, where they will have to level their wings again before heading to the single pylon at Gate 5. "This could cause problems. The pilots will want to fly super close to Gate 5 to set themselves up for Gate 6. If they fly too close, there's a chance they'll pick up a penalty," Jones explained.

As the pilots go through Gate 6 they will have to line up their raceplane for the vertical turning maneuver at Gate 7. Due to the safety line, this is a judged gate, meaning the pilots have to have their raceplane vertical before they can make the turn towards Gate 8.

If they don't have the raceplane vertical before they turn they could pick up a one-second penalty for "incorrect vertical turning maneuver." After the vertical turning maneuver, it's on to the Start/Finish Gate for the second lap.

"The pilot who flies the vertical turning maneuver perfectly will have the best chance of winning. There are a lot of opportunities for penalties in the San Diego track, but it's a great venue and we're in for a really good race," Jones said.

MTS debuts new app for buying tickets

On March 30, the Metropolitan Transit System (MTS) and the North County Transit District (NCTD) rolled out a new app called Compass Cloud, which can be used with both transit systems. Compass Cloud is free to download on any smartphone and allows riders to purchase tickets much easier.

You can purchase daily or monthly tickets for the MTS Rapid, MTS bus, MTS Trolley, NCTD Coaster, Sprinter, and Breeze; prices for tickets purchased via Compass Cloud will remain the same as physical tickets.

A convenient feature of the app is the option to buy tickets anytime, anywhere. Moreover, you can purchase multiple tickets at once and digitally store them, with the ability to easily bring them up on your screen later.

It also allows you to use multiple tickets at once, so riders with families or friends can all hop on at once with a quick show of your phone screen. This greatly reduces the time it takes for passengers to load up the bus and dispels the worries of missing a bus because you are still trying to buy a ticket.

Another inherent feature of this app is security. MTS and NCTD have been criticized for security flaws on the physical Compass Cards, which do not meet payment card industry standards, leaving riders vulnerable to credit card fraud. Compass Cards will not be gone with the rollout of Compass Cloud, but riders now have the option to use a safer alternative.

Currently, the app is lacking some key features; only day passes and monthly passes for adults are available. However, this is only the first of several phases of releases. More features and improvements are in store, such as the ability to buy one-way tickets and discounted fares.

According to MTS, a survey showed that 85 percent of riders have smartphone devices and two-thirds of them would use a mobile ticketing option. Hundreds have already installed Compass Cloud since the rollout and the app is expected to be widely successful.

San Diego CA – April 11, 2017 – In a state where Chardonnay, Cabernet and Zinfandel are kings, the nearly extinct Charbono is taking center stage in San Diego at Gianni Buonomo Vintners in the coastal community of Ocean Beach. With fewer than 70 total acres planted to this rarity, Charbono is truly a cult wine.

Once a darling of the Napa Valley, Charbono was the go-to wine at the venerable Inglenook from the 1940s through the 1960s. Inglenook produced Charbono from the late 1800s until the vineyard and estate were sold in 1998 to Francis Ford Coppola. In Napa, Cabernet means cash and consequently Charbono was jettisoned. Today, only about 17 wineries, all in California, do small productions of Charbono. Gianni Buonomo Vintners in San Diego is one of them.

San Diego winemaker Keith Rolle stumbled upon these elusive grapes back in 2014 when trying to source Barbera in El Dorado County. “I must have called 20 wineries looking for Barbera. I finally connected with Doug Liesz who told me he didn’t have any Barbera, but he did have some Charbono. I flew to up to Sacramento the next day, rented a car, drove to Placerville and signed a grape contract with Doug.”

The 2014 Gianni Buonomo Charbono is a delight. Deep ruby in color, it delivers a bold, rustic and dusty essence of ripe black cherry with a delicate sweetness of lightly toasted oak. An enduring, silky-soft finish pleases everyone who loves a great glass of well-made red. "It's like nothing I've ever tasted," exclaimed San Diego ophthalmologist and wine fanatic, Chris Gualtieri. "Once you taste it, you won't want to drink anything else. It's that amazing!"

Gianni Buonomo Vintners is San Diego's only fully-functioning beach winery. Just steps from the Pacific surf in the heart of Ocean Beach, Gianni Buonomo sources super-premium grapes from both El Dorado County CA and Washington state. Grapes are brought the to beach to vinify, barrel age, blend, bottle and serve in a line-up of truly exceptional wines.

Service and selection at Mark's Guitar Exchange

It's referred to by its owner as "an adult toy store."

And Mark Augustin, owner of Mark's Guitar Exchange at 3233 Midway Drive since 1985, has no shortage of "playthings."

In fact, there are 400 guitars hanging from the music store's rafters. That's not counting his stock.

"We're the largest independent guitar store in the county," said Augustin. "We're the last man standing. The last ones left."

Augustin, quite literally, has grown up in the Loma Portal neighborhood of Point Loma. Where his shop is located now was a guitar store back in the '60s. It was also a pizza place before he took it over.

Who is Augustin's competition? "Big boxes," he answered, but added, "No one can compete with us."

"Why? Because of our service, our prices, and our selection," he said.

An old school guy, Augustin prides himself on continuing to do all the little things that have always made small-businesses successful.

Noting "every guitar is different, the weight of the wood, the grain, how straight is the neck, the way the neck is cut," Augustin noted the real key to business success is taking care of the customer right and catering to their specific needs.

"What we do is look at every price point, and find the best value for every customer," he said. "I tell people, 'You want to support Main Street – not Wall Street."

Augustin added his merchandise is all-American.

"All my straps are American made. All of our cables are American made. I try to go back in time with service (delivery)," he said. "We're not self-serve here. We're full-serve."

The guitar shop's marketing consultant, Jeff Lazarini, explained why Mark's is one of a kind.

"This store is unique because we treat people with kindness and patience," he said, adding that rule applies regardless of age or musical style.

"You come in here, I don't care if you're 7 years old, or what genre you play, we're going to treat you as an individual," Lazarini said. "We're not going to say, 'You play bluegrass, or you play metal, we don't like you, go to a music store.'"

Citing just one example, a 7-year-old girl named Abbey came in recently with her mom to buy a guitar.

Later, Lazarini said, another 7-year-old girl came in with her mother and asked, "Are you Abbey's friend."

When the answer was yes, the girl said, "That's why we're here."

Augustin said Mark's carries all three major guitar brands – Fender, Gibson and Martin. The store also has professional techs who handle guitar repairs.

"We are the only Fender premium showcase dealer in the county," he said. "We have more selections than the big stores. We're also the service center for everything that we sell. If they bought it online, they bring it here and we fix it."

A musician himself with albums out who performs at local jazz and blues clubs, Augustin said he's a nerd who likes fixing things.

"I learned how to repair guitars in the mid-'70s," he said. "I would buy them from print want ads, then fix them up and resell them. That's how I started, buying and selling, and it just grew."

Mark's carries everything imaginable for guitars from strings, to pics, to amplifiers, to pedals to all the spare parts anyone would ever need.

Guitars in Mark's range from $70 to $30,000.

You can also learn how to play guitar at Mark's, as local musicians like Charles Burton of the CB3 Blues Band, teaches at the shop.

"That's the neat thing about it, I have my roots here," Augustin concluded.

Mark Augustin, owner of Mark's Guitar Exchange.

IRS rules, telling 17 property owners in three time zones, close! "

Son Paul Teyssier said of the tax-deferred exchange, "It was historic, the biggest title transfer at the time. The title people remembered it for years after."

Originally built as luxury and penthouse apartments for investment property, Le Rondelet stands strong today as privately owned condominiums.

"Equivalent to an isolated family farm..." – Paul Teyssier

"Building Le Rondelet was another burden equivalent to an isolated family farm where everybody in the family had to pull in the crops," says Paul, oldest of Leonard's eight children.

"Dad's prouder of this project than of any other. He designed it. Worked on everything about it. It was an extraordinary finish that took just one year. I remember when they were plastering the walls, Dad taking a golf tee out of his pocket to measure the mix. 'Too much sand, not strong enough,' he insisted."

TRIAL

Defense attorney Gary Gibson argued for acquittal, but the possibility of guilty verdicts of voluntary manslaughter or involuntary manslaughter has been raised.

Every seat was filled in the courtroom with friends and family of Robles on one side and Burke's friends and family on the other.

Jurors also went to the scene Tuesday to personally examine the door and area where Robles was shot in the throat and the chest on June 22, 2016 at 11:09 p.m. at Burke's condominium unit at 4177 Voltaire St.

Sutterley told jurors that Burke had "an obsession for Larae Clark," his roommate and had said he was in love with her. He said they had sex once before she started dating Robles about six weeks before he was shot.

"That obsession led to murder," said Sutterley, adding the motive is "jealousy" as "he wanted to control her dating life."

Sutterley said Burke had "murder on his mind" throughout June and that he acted with malice. "This is not self-defense. This is murder," he said.

Both shots were fatal and Robles died at the scene. Sutterley quoted a text message Burke had written of Robles which said "he wore out his welcome before I ever met him."

Sutterley also cited the testimony of another former girlfriend, Lisa Scarga, who said her relationship ended with Burke in 2015. She said he twice left cupcakes for her after they broke up that she found on her car at the beach and at her door.

Scarga testified she asked Burke to leave her alone in a text message after he went to places where she frequented. The prosecutor said that behavior shows Burke was obsessed with her also.

Gibson said Robles arrived at Burke's door after he sent him threatening text messages and that Robles' blood/alcohol at death was .16, which he said showed he had about eight alcoholic drinks.

Burke was so concerned about the text messages that he locked a lower bedroom's windows and changed the garage door hard, honest work. When asked if he ever doubted he could do the job, he answers, "No, I didn't know any better."

Leonard has earned a reputation of excellence over his long career. (At this, his eyes well up, and a broad smile comes across his face).

Interestingly, as the construction superintendent began digging the footings for Le Rondelet, he discovered a buried diesel tank that had been used by the cannery. It was hauled off, but a problem with water and oil in the hole caused some uproar at the nearby yacht club. "Hang him from the yardarm!" members fussed. But when the commodore heard it was Leonard Teyssier's project, he said, "Forget it, he'll take care of it!"

When asked if he were to teach students of contemporary construction, what would he tell them? His lofty lesson, "Don't sell Le Rondelet!"

Teyssier's $3.5 million complex that sold in 1972 for $6 million, is worth $60 to $80 million today.

Residents of Le Rondelet and special guests celebrated the historic occasion of 50 years strong with champagne, catered buffet, and music on April 8.

Happy anniversary, Teyssier family!

passcode minutes before Robles and Clark showed up.

Robles waited outside in a Lyft car as Burke had banned him from entering the premises. Robles had offered his place where Clark could stay, and she came home to pack some things and get her dog, according to testimony.

Referring to the jury visit to the scene, Gibson said this: "You were in the door frame today. Did any of you stick your hand through the door frame?"

Gibson said Burke perceived that Robles was a fighter. "In his mind, he would lose any fight with Robles," said Gibson.

After Burke shot Robles twice, he panicked, said his attorney. He left the gun on his bed with his wallet, but left with his phone and the gun's magazine. He jumped off his balcony some 15 feet from the ground, and got a sprained ankle, he said.

"He's not Jason Bourne. He's a 32-year-old pharmacist with no record," said Gibson. "A drunk guy came to his door and it cost him his life."

OB Surf Lodge opens the shades in Ocean Beach

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

New owners of OB Surf Lodge (formerly Shades) have let the outside in while introducing a new theme, menu and style.

"The bar is now indoor-outdoor," said Mina Desiderio of the surf-themed restaurant at 5083 Santa Monica Ave., which had a soft reopening March 15 after six months of remodeling.

Desiderio, the owner of Wonderland Ocean Pub upstairs from OB Surf Lodge, along with business partners Brendan Huffman and Hoffman Leung, now operate the reimagined Ocean Beach eatery.

"The whole restaurant opens up now, where before they had just windows," said Desiderio. "So now, on really nice days, we can open up all the windows and let the outdoors in."

Desiderio said extension of the restaurant's outdoor patio, a work in progress delayed by seasonal rains, will increase the restaurant's seating capacity from 140 to 186.

And expect Shades' longstanding tradition of community activism to continue.

"Our relationship with Dave Martin (former Shades owner), and his family, and their legacy, is really important to us," said Desiderio. "We've taken on a lot of their tradtions, helping out in the community, giving back."

Desiderio said one thing Shades was best known for was its canine pet adoptions.

"We're putting on four of those a year," she said. "We're preserving the value of Shades, but we're doing it in a new way with our style."

Expect more than just a shade of the former place to remain in the Surf Lodge. But don't expect business as usual.

"It's quite different," said Desiderio of the beach bistro's fresh ambiance.

Desiderio pointed out the new ownership group "can't replicate something we didn't create. We're a different style of operation, ownership. We do what we know."

Desiderio noted the new and improved Surf Lodge is "brunch-heavy."

And there have been major cuisine updates too.

"We're using a lot of organic, high-quality meats, fresh-squeezing our own orange juice, serving organic coffees, and we have an excellent draft list of craft brews," Desiderio said. "We're also doing kombucha on tap, coffee on nitro, which is really the way to drink coffee."

Desiderio said the menu is moving on from foods that are frozen, processed or pre-made. A case in

"We're baking them fresh daily," said Desiderio, adding the menu will allow guests to sample a wide variety of new items including baked eggs, shrimp and grits, lumped crab, okra, fresh fish and coconut braised pork.

"We're calling our cuisine California comfort," Desiderio added.

The popular restaurant Shades was co-owned and operated previously by Martin and his son-in-law, Jeff Levitt, for more than 13 years. The Martins and Levitts told their employees at the end of April 2016 they had sold the restaurant, which closed after Labor Day. Not one Shades employee left after it was announced the restaurant was sold and staff would be kept on by the new management.

In an interview with the Beacon before Shades closed, Levitt confessed leaving was "real emotional" with customers telling them, 'I took my wife on our first date here,' or 'Whenever our relatives are in town, this is the first place we go.'

"We are excited to celebrate and bring awareness to the rich Por-

Blues powerhouse Casey Hensley a rising star

By BART MENDOZA | THE BEACON

San Diego has a well-established blues community, with many great players, but there are also many up-and-coming young artists emerging, ready to take the blues into the future. At the top of the list is singer Casey Hensley, who performs at a special early show at Winston's on April 16, opening for blues favorite Earl Thomas.

Hensley has been performing since age 5 and recording in studios since she was 9, citing a long list of inspirations that includes Aretha Franklin, Etta James, The Allman Brothers, and Ella Fitzgerald. It's no coincidence that the list of artists is heavily blues influenced.

"I sing blues because it is honest," she said. "There's no B.S. You can feel it. That is what music is all about.

Sure, it needs to sound good, but for me, the feeling always comes first. Especially as a singer, it needs to come from your soul," she continued.

"People can tell if you are being truthful and sincere. That's what the blues is all about. You can't fake it. That's why I love it."

Born in Los Gatos, Hensley arrived in San Diego after a brief stop in Orange County. "My dad had a job opportunity and we moved to San Diego after living in Orange County for a few years," she recalled. "San Diego is by far my favorite place I have lived."

Hensley's choice of music as a career was likely influenced by her family. "I was really fortunate to have music-loving parents," she said. "There was always an amazing album blasting in the house. We don't listen to music quietly in my family," she laughed.

"One of my earliest memories is setting up my stuffed animals as my audience and standing on my bed and singing to them. I have never wanted to do anything else. Music has always

No joke, comedy workshop at Point Loma Playhouse may improve your lifestyle

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

Point Loma Playhouse has resumed hosting an intensive, six-week stand-up comedy workshop and showcase taught by professional comedian Tony Calabrese.

The class will be held Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. in the playhouse theater at 3035 Talbot St. from April 19 to May 24. Class size is limited.

The stand-up comedy workshop can benefit those wishing to improve their humorous speaking, offering all the tools and skills needed for personal improvement.

"It's for all skill levels, beginners to working comics," said banker-turned-comedian Calabrese, who's had students who've "taken it as many as eight times."

A discipline for people looking to improve their communication skills, Calabrese noted the stand-up workshop can benefit any public speakers who want to interject more humor into their presentations. He noted it's especially helpful for salespeople.

Calabrese said it's also important for prospective students to note that none of the humor taught in his class is off-color.

"I really work clean," he said. "Clean is green."

A fan of comedy since childhood,

Info: info@pointlomaplayhouse.com, www.pointlomaplayhouse.com

'The audience votes. If they're not laughing - it's not funny.'

TONY CALABRESE
STAND-UP COMEDIAN

Calabrese was president of Point Loma Community Bank before he had an epiphany and became a stand-up comedian. He pointed out it's easy for a comic to tell whether they're succeeding or not.

"The audience votes," he said. "If they're not laughing - it's not funny."

Calabrese said humor can be taught.

"I can teach anyone to craft a five-minute set that's funny," he said adding, "I can't make 'them' funny. But I can help them craft their jokes. Taking this class will help them to be able to look at anything in life and make it funny."

There's one other thing students will learn in Calabrese's stand-up comedy class.

"My class is about writing, speaking and editing," the comic said. "Stand-up is as much about writing as it is about the spoken word."

If you're interested in perfecting your speaking style by interjecting humor, or polishing your overall presentation, Calabrese said his workshop may be for you.

"It's for people who want to lighten up their presentation and get people people to laugh and pay more attention to you," he said.

Engagement is critical to capturing an audience, no matter what the speaker's purpose, said Calabrese.

"The audience doesn't care about you," he cautioned. "You're nothing to them - until you make them laugh. When you do that, they're connected. By making them laugh you're getting them engaged. This class really helps with that."

If you have a knack for it, there's nothing like being a comic, confessed Calabrese.

"It's quite an adrenaline rush," he said. "Nothing comes close. I'm on stage for 45 minutes to an hour, and when you come off, the feeling you get is on top of the world. It's addictive."

had my heart."

For her band, Hensley has partnered with drummer Evan Yearsley. "I attended a lot of blues jams, because I knew that I wanted to put a blues band together," she said. "I had known Evan for many years because I recorded at his dad's studio and on his mother, Candye Kane's, last record. I started going to his jam and playing with people like Evan and guitarist Laura Chavez."

Chavez soon became a mainstay of Hensley's band, while all the time playing together with Yearsley also led to romance. "After spending so much time together Evan and I fell in love," she said. "We both loved playing music together, so we decided to put all of our effort into making a great band and being a team."

Hensley recently released her debut album, taping an in-studio concert for "Live!" It's a great representation of Hensley's mix of originals and cover tunes.

"People really love when I do Aretha Franklin and Etta James songs, and they also love the originals. There is one song in particular on our new record "Casey Hensley Live" that's called "Don't Want It to Stop" that everyone really seems to love," she said.

This man was seen leaving the park with a cooler of abalone.

Abalone taken from protected tidepools at Cabrillo National Monument

U.S. park rangers at Cabrillo National Monument and special agents with the National Park Service Investigative Services Branch (ISB) seek the public's help after a man was seen leaving the park's tidepools with an abalone.

On Sunday, April 2 at approximately 2:30 p.m., a park visitor took photographs of a man who she saw holding a living abalone and witnessed him putting it into a cooler bag.

The subject is described as a white male, in the age range of late 40s to mid-50s, wearing a wide-brimmed hat, white shorts and white gloves. The photos were taken by a park visitor who was upset by the violation.

Superintendent Andrea Compton is, "very appreciative of the reported violation by the park visitor and encourages visitors to report violations to park staff."

Due to the declining number of species, like abalone, Cabrillo established the Tidepool Protection, Education and Restoration Program in 1996 to provide a refuge area for intertidal flora and fauna to recover.

All wildlife in the park is protected. The removal of animals, shells, rocks and any kind of collecting is against the law.

If you have any information, call the Investigative Services Branch at 888-653-0009, text to 202-379-4561 or call Ranger Bonnie Phillips 619-557-5450 ext. 4586.

Each office is independently owned and operated.
