Big 'Rig Canoes

PAUL HANSEN | BEACH & BAY PRESS

Competitors in the Maui Jim Outrigger Challenge take the paddle to the battle Saturday, April 26, at Bahia Point. Each outrigger canoe has five paddlers, with a minimum of two women per team, and a steerperson. More than 80 teams participated in the event.

At a cost of $40,000, the decorative crosswalk installed in 2000 (left) at the intersection of Cass Street and Garnet Avenue has been destroyed and eroded over the past 8 years due to runoff from overwatering. A spokesman for the city said there are plans to remove part of the asphalt at the intersection and repave by the end of July so it will drain properly. The repairs will cost between $15,000 and $20,000.

Beautification project wiped out by overwatering

By SEBASTIAN RUIZ | BEACH & BAY PRESS

Daily over-irrigation of nearby residential lawns causes an untold amount of damage to Pacific Beach streets. And damage to the intersection at Garnet Avenue and Cass Street could cost the city possibly hundreds of thousands of dollars to repair well before a street's approximate 20-year life span is up.

Take a stroll down Garnet Avenue and have a look for yourself.

Nearly every morning a pool of water collects at the intersection where passing cars and buses slosh through the water causing extensive erosion to a once-decorative brick crosswalk, which was laid in 2000. The yellow sea stars and other marine life silhouetted against the blue colored asphalt are so eroded they're barely noticeable.

The city has plans to fix part of the intersection by late July to prevent the puddles, according to city officials.

The $40,000 beautification project sprouted from local community members' desire to brighten-up their neighborhood. The streetscape plan included other projects such planting trees along the street meant to give Pacific Beach a fresh look.

Now, almost eight years later, all that's left of the project are some faded splashes of the yellow sea stars on eroded, rocky asphalt.

Large delivery trucks stunted the growth of the trees along the sidewalk, whacking the branches as they drove passed, Benjamin Nicholls, executive director of Discover Pacific Beach said.

"It was a good program," Nicholls said, "it just wasn't thought through well enough."

The Pacific Beach Business Improvement Association, now called Discover Pacific Beach, started the master plan beautification in the late 1990s with a series of community meetings and an extensive design process that lasted a few years.

Nicholls, who was not part of the group at the time, said the organization has since looked at redoing the intersection about four years ago, but added that it would have probably been a waste of

Valdez pitches a perfect game in 13-0 win over Clairemont

By PAUL DOUGLAS | BEACH & BAY PRESS

Mission Bay senior Francisco Valdez stepped up to the pre-season rankings as one of the top pitchers in the county Wednesday, April 23, when he threw a perfect game while the Bucs defeated Clairemont High 13-0.

The win pushed the Buccaneers to the top of the Western League with a 5-1 team record.

"It was my goal this year to throw (a perfect game)," Valdez said. "When I looked at the scoreboard in the 5th inning, I began to bear-down — I felt we could make it happen."

A perfect game (in a high school 7-inning game) is 21 up and 21 down; no hits, no walks, no hit batters.

In Mission Bay High's 54-year history of premier baseball success, no player has pitched a perfect game, until now.

"By the fourth inning I looked at the other coaches and we knew he was rolling along nicely," said head coach Greg Farrar. "Francisco is a bulldog — he is a competitor, he wants the ball. He was in control and got the job done."

In addition to his command of the plate, Valdez has been able to rely on his pick-off moves to control games this season.

Man pleads guilty to threatening seal activist

By NEAL PUTNAM | BEACH & BAY PRESS

A La Jolla man pleaded guilty April 17 to threatening a seal activist who videotaped divers at Children's Pool. The threat occurred in an explicit e-mail to a volunteer of the Animal Protection and Rescue League, which monitors contact between people and harbor seals at the tourist attraction.

Kent Douglas Trego, 54, could face a maximum term of 10 years in federal prison, but such a long sentence is unlikely, said his attorney, Mark Adams. The federal guideline range for such a crime is between 10 and 16 months, but the U.S. Attorney's Office is expected to recommend five months in custody plus additional time in a halfway house on probation, Adams said on Friday, April 18.

Following the guilty plea, Adams asked U.S. District Court Magistrate Louisa Porter to release Trego on bail, but she denied his request. Porter earlier ordered Trego to remain in the Metropolitan Correctional Center without bail in light of death threats that were e-mailed to the unnamed activist.

The incident reflects the ongoing controversy at Children's Pool between seal activists and others who say the beach should be used for children and not seals. People have walked on the beach and appear to be taunting the activists as well as the seals.

Sentencing is set for July 7. The activist videotaped Trego with two scuba divers who appeared to be disturbing the seals on Sept. 22, 2007. Misdemeanor charges were later filed against the divers, and the activist was considered a federal witness. Trego pleaded guilty to threatening a federal witness. Two other counts of transmitting threats in interstate commerce will be dismissed.

Trego remained on the beach when the two divers went into the water, which caused approximately 18 of the 50 harbor seals to rush into the water, according to the U.S. Attorney's Office. The activist also videotaped the license plate of the vehicle in which the divers arrived. Trego and the activist exchanged words, and the activist reported it to federal law enforcement agents of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Trego used a public computer at the Riford Library in La Jolla on Jan. 12 to send a threatening message to the activist. Calling himself "Biker Bobbie," Trego sent the death threat and created an e-mail account called death-tosealwatch@yahoo.com.

The threat claimed the divers had friends in motorcycle clubs and told the activist she "will be dealt with very harshly, if not killed."

The threat continued, "She has brought this on herself."

No physical harm ever occurred to the activist, who reported the threat to authorities. Trego was indicted by a federal grand jury on March 4 and was arrested March 7.

Adams said his client has no criminal history. Trego, who is unemployed, spent a lot of time at Children's Pool, something the magistrate said she considered when she denied bail for him. Porter said she did not want him to return to the beach and interact with the activist or others he may have threatened.

The Children's Pool was originally created in the 1930s as a shallow wading area for children, when philanthropist Ellen Browning Scripps paid for construction of the seawall.

There are health warning signs that say the beach and water has high fecal contamination by the seals, which are protected by federal law.

City agrees to put logo on toy fire trucks, helicopters

The San Diego City Council approved a licensing agreement April 22 with the toy company Mattel, Inc. in which the city's logo will be used on toy helicopters, fire trucks and other fire apparatus.

The city won't receive any money from Mattel, however, in this agreement. City staff members told the City Council the long-time toy company has similar agreements with other cities in their line of Matchbox toys, which have been manufactured for 55 years.

Councilwoman Donna Frye asked what does the city receive in return for the agreement. "Bragging rights," publicity for the fire department and possible recruitment efforts, said a staffer.

If the city demanded any money for the agreement, Mattel would move on to another city, said a staffer.

Wouldn't Mattel want to throw in any free toys for poor children, Frye asked. City staff said the city would receive 12 free Mattel toys with the city's logo and permission to distribute the dozen toys to whomever they wanted.

Councilwoman Jim Madaffer

Ask The Lawyer

Question:

I am the Successor Trustee of my parents' estate. My father died a few years ago and my mother just passed away. I know there are many things to do, but I'm not even sure where to start. Can you help me?

Answer:

I am sorry about the loss of your parents. It is difficult to lose loved ones and then have to turn around and tackle the formidable task of being a Successor Trustee. It is difficult whether or not the estate is large. There are many steps in the process of distributing the estate and determining what needs to be done. The first step is to inventory and make a list of all the assets. The state and federal government require several forms to be submitted by you, as Successor Trustee. Trustees have legal responsibilities and rights. It is crucial that you know these responsibilities because you can be held legally liable for errors. I can assist you in limiting your liability. When I assist my clients in this sort of matter, I walk them through the process step-by-step, so it does not feel so overwhelming. I am familiar with the procedure of Probate and Trust Administrations, as I have been practicing this type of law for over twenty-five years. I can help you determine what you need for your parents' estate. Please call my office so I may help you feel more at ease with your duties as Successor Trustee. Email me for a list of your duties. ## OBITUARY

Edward J. Litrenta, 62, SeaWorld VP of marketing

Though recognized as a top marketing official in the attractions industry, Edward J. Litrenta, 62, was respected just as much for his personal attributes of integrity, kindness, sense of humor and character as he was for his professional skills.

He started his career in Florida as a member of the marketing team that opened Walt Disney World.

Ed died on April 25 of complications arising from his almost five-year courageous battle with pancreatic cancer. "He just didn't want to leave his wife Robin, and two children, Sam, 11, and Marin, 9," said his oldest brother Peter. "At the end of a long conversation late last year bragging about the academic and athletic accomplishments of Sam and Marin, and almost as an afterthought, Ed mentioned his induction into the Florida Tourism Hall of Fame. He was a humble person who always managed to deflect praise."

Ed was Anheuser-Busch's corporate vice president for marketing alliances and synergy, joining the company in 1990 as vice president of marketing at SeaWorld Orlando.

Ed served as the vice president of marketing for SeaWorld San Diego from 2000 to 2007. He was responsible for the planning, coordination and implementation of all marketing programs for SeaWorld San Diego, which includes advertising, sales, promotions, public relations and new product development.

"Ed had a great insight, an intuition, about consumers and their behavior," said Andy Fichthorn, executive vice president and general manager of SeaWorld San Diego. "His ability to make connections with people made him not only a great marketer and leader of people but also a trusted colleague and friend to many at SeaWorld and throughout the tourism industry."

Before joining SeaWorld Orlando in 1990, Ed was director of tourism for the state of Florida under then Secretary of Commerce Jeb Bush.

His extensive marketing and tourism background also includes serving as director of United States marketing for Expo '86 in Vancouver, British Columbia; director of professional staffing for the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics.

Ed has served as chairman of the National Council of State Travel Directors International Committee, vice chairman of Travel South USA, vice chair of the State of Florida Commission on Tourism. He has also been a board member of the Florida Special Olympics.

He was selected as an "Outstanding Alumni" from the University of Wisconsin, Whitewater and received his bachelor's of arts degree in liberal arts. Ed graduated from Horlick High School in Racine, Wisconsin.

Ed is survived by his wife, Robin and children Sam and Marin; son Mark from a previous marriage; and two brothers, Peter of Coronado and David of Racine, Wis. A memorial service is scheduled for 10 a.m. Monday, May 5 at SeaWorld San Diego. In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations to the Hirschberg Foundation for Pancreatic Cancer Research in his name. Private family services are yet to be scheduled.

"The kids are raising money to help cancer research for children's cancer," DeVicariis said. "The big push is for nontoxic medication. [The money] will go toward a group that awards grants to groups researching nontoxic drugs so they'll be less sick and lead a more normal life."

LETTERS TO
THE EDITORLet's bring back the original MBHS pirate

We represent a rapidly growing group of Mission Bay High alumni, students, parents and teachers committed to the betterment of Mission Bay High School (MBHS) in all facets of education and athletics. We wish you to consider our opinion with respect to the new logo of the Mission Bay High Buccaneer logo.

We view this potentially secretive logo remake as an affront to all current and former Mission Bay High students. It is reflective of a reactionary society that our teachers and mentors at MBHS taught us to beware of.

The questions we must ask are: Who initiated the logo re-treatment? Who approved it? When did the discussion and decision within the MBHS student body or staff take place? Why wasn't the MBHS alumni or for that matter, the Pacific Beach community consulted? If not, why?

At the very least, this new depiction of our mascot somehow insinuates that our old pirate logo was out of touch, too violent, insensitive or not keeping with the changing times of our culture. Is this true?

At the very least, the old logo/mascot also insinuates that in some way, the logo was offensive or created an air of "bad will" among high schools. Since when is a pirate established in a benign way to combat the oppressive nature of its well-heeled athletic rivals deemed, "inappropriate"? Could someone from MBHS please provide us an official explanation?

Please explain to the Pacific Beach community, what was precisely wrong with the traditional logo? After all, he is a "pirate."

While we can all agree on the fact that a kinder, gentler environment in schools should be considered, where is there room for a sense of tradition, perspective, common sense and, humor? After all, do you hear any outcry to eliminate the "Dead Man Tell No Tales" loop at Disney's Pirates of the Caribbean?

You may wish to call our group a collection of disconnected dinosaurs — relics of the past not keeping pace with the changing culture. But for many of our alumni and supporters where traditions die hard and respect for institutions still remain, this is just another example of the seemingly elitist attitude of administrators and gatekeepers that have no sense of community or common-sense tradition. But, we could be wrong.

We call upon all MBHS alumni, staff and students to reconsider the wholesale dismantling of a tradition that dates back since the founding of Mission Bay High and urge all of you to bring back the proud tradition of the original MBHS pirate mascot — the Mission Bay High Buccaneer.

Student golfers are on a roll this season

Some remarkable things have happened during the past three years with the Mission Bay High School Golf Team. Although overmatched by every opponent while playing in the Western League — known in the golf community as one of the toughest and made up of perennial state champions/finalists and CIF champions, St. Augustine and Cathedral Catholic, along with former state champions and CIF champions La Jolla, plus the talented Scripps Ranch squad and the always well coached University City team, Mission Bay has improved it's play every year.

The MBHS team member's improvement over the past 3 years has been significant and remarkable: (Par on most courses is 36).

Other outstanding MBHS golf team efforts established during the 2008 season included:

- Five individuals qualifying for the historic high school City Tournament at Balboa Golf Club April 23, 24.
- An all-time low team score of 192 versus Sweetwater recorded at the Bonita Golf club on April 7.
- Other low match scores of 204 (twice) versus Point Loma and Patrick Henry, 210 versus Mira Mesa, 211 versus University City, and 217 (twice) versus Cathedral and Saints.
- A MBHS record individual low score of 32 set by Michael Hammond on April 7.
- Mike's other low scores throughout the season were 35, 36 and 39 (3 times).
- Lee Houck's efforts of 37 (twice), and a 39.
- Gus Guiffre's consistent shot making accounted for a 37 and 39 (5 times).
- All of the aforementioned accomplishments were punctuated by Daniel Pitt's rare hole in one on Admiral Baker's south course 16th 155 yard par 3 hole, April 9.

On behalf of myself, and my team, I would like to give thanks to all of you who contributed to the funding of our MBHS golf team this year. Whether you were a community golfer who bought a ticket from one of our players to attend the Buick Invitational, or you gave a donation like loyal benefactors Robert and Elsie Harutunian, or if you played in one of the golf tournaments hosted by Good Time Charlies and Bully's East, know that our MBHS golf program would cease to exist without your generosity.

As an unfunded sport through the San Diego City Schools, we must raise enough money to keep the program alive. We have managed to do that with your help. Hopefully, you will continue to support the MBHS golf team with the knowledge that through your thoughtful consideration many young men will continue to have the opportunity to learn to play the game of golf.

The staggering drunks are now what's missing

Well folks, I think we discovered a major clue! There it was sitting right under our noses. It seems Larry Leon went to the beach and discovered all his friends were missing! ("Ban changed some of the best things about the beach," Beach & Bay Press, April 24.) Maybe they were the ones causing the problems year after year? After all, when I go down to the beach every weekend this spring, after a long work week I might add, I don't see or hear all those loud, obnoxious, annoying drunks.

There I am, in my shorts, toes sinking in the sand and I'm in a little paradise every day this year. People watching is now much more fun too. I see young and old working on their tans, playing Frisbee and parents with kids playing together.

One of the best things? I only occasionally see a drunk staggering around (maybe also look-

Realistic Artwork...The burbling stream added a charming touch as I admired the seascapes. Little Italy's ArtWalk participants were not amused, however, as a water main break up in Balboa Park caused gushing water along the gutters. Most artists remained — as long as their paintings stayed dry.

Across Cedar Street, I spotted "Pacific Beach Art Group" and the name, Dot Renshaw. Unfortunately, their area was washed out, so I missed them. I've known Dot Renshaw for years. Actually, so do you — or at least you've seen her lively artwork on PB Urgent Care's windows on Fanuel at Garnet.

PB's Picturesque History...I began to think of how much Dot's constantly changing window art adds to PB. Colorful wall murals are another PB specialty. Most well-known is the historic mural on Cass at Garnet of that corner 80 years ago. Painted by PB resident Kathleen King for PB's Centennial in 1987, it's still a handsome addition to the neighborhood.

Across the street at The River, a giant John Lennon stares down over Garnet, while a scene rises on the Dunaway building. A beach scene, complete with lifeguard stand, adorns the side of United Cerebral Palsy Thrift Shop on Garnet near Haines; sea life frolics on Caliber Collision on Garnet and Balboa and on Jim Moore's real estate office on Balboa and Grand.

Three businesses announce themselves: large carousel animals at Carousel Cleaners, Cass and Beryl; United Studio of Self-Defense's flying fighter at 1749 Garnet and French Gourmet's stylized food on Turquoise Street.

Additional artistic efforts include cleverly imbedded hubcaps at Typhoon Saloon, Garnet and Dawes. A different art form enhances PB's entryway on Grand Avenue, as tawny, rippling stipa grass and bright geraniums replace the once-forlorn asphalt and bare-dirt entrance. Thank Discover PB for that winner.

Try it yourself...Wouldn't it be fun to celebrate PB's more whimsical side with a different kind of arts festival? A lively one, with active mural-painting and demonstrations of wood-working, jewelry-making and tile-painting for all ages.

Says Jerry Hall, chair of PB Town Council's Safe and Beautiful committee, "Once we pick up the trash and get rid of graffiti, it's time to launch an art project. I grew up in Ann Arbor, Michigan, with its huge Art Fair, where everything was hand-made and unique." Contact Jerry with ideas at jhall@enjoyPB.com.

Meanwhile, an oceanfront panorama's underway on PB Middle School's auditorium. (And a huge blank wall awaits at Staples, across the street.)

ing for their missing friends?).

Now, I'm no detective but, if the beaches are so serene, with people up and down the coast seeming to have such a great time; and Mr. Leon noticing that all his friends are missing...hmmmmm. Nah, I must be watching too much CSI. This is too easy.

Funny, another thing I consistently don't hear from Mr. Leon, a vocal trial opponent, is any suggestion as to what metrics he proposes we use to measure results of this trial. I'm not against using any fair measurement. To me, part of this question is one of those "I'll know it when I see it..." issues, as was the case with Supreme Court Justice Stewart back in 1964. Imagine that, a Supreme Court Justice using subjective analysis to determine Federal law?

Me? When I weigh the results I'm going to include one objective metric: Am I happy Mr. Leon's friends are missing?

PERFECT

"It has helped my ERA (1.85) a lot to work on my pick-off moves," Valdez said.

"His pick-off move is huge," Farrar said. "His command and ability to hold the runners close helps the whole team's confidence."

The defense also helped keep the perfect game on track according to Farrar.

"A lot of guys had a big day," he said. "Jesse Moore switched from third base to short stop with Brian Sagun. Moore made a big do-or-die play at one point to keep the hitless streak alive."

The offense did their part too, generating 13 runs on 15 hits against the Chieftains.

"The offense was going off," Farrar added. "Evan Taylor went 3-4 with a two-run homer and 5 RBI."

The Bucs improved to 16-8 (5-1) at the mid-point in Western League play.

Farrar is in his second year as head baseball coach after 9 years as assistant to Dennis Pugh, who has been at Mission Bay since 1973. Farrar consulted with Pugh and asked if there had been any other perfect games.

"Only once when I threw batting practice a few years ago," Pugh said.

Pugh remains the athletic director at Mission Bay High while he heads the baseball program at CSU San Marcos.

The Bucs will host Point Loma Friday, May 2, at 3 p.m. Then Mission Bay will host Coronado May 7.

PROJECT

time and resources.

He said that if it was the cross walk was redone it would erode back to the current condition in just a few years unless it was fixed to drain properly.

Fertilizers and animal waste add to the problems caused from the watering the green lawns dotted along Felspar Avenue and north of Garnet Avenue, he said. The runoff from the lawns feeds the weeds that seem to grow from nowhere.

"I tried to plant plants in the tree wells and they won't grow, but we can get these weeds in the gutter that grow three feet high," Nicholls said.

The rest of the runoff naturally flows directly to the ocean.

So who's ultimately paying for the damage caused by overwatering?

BENJAMIN NICHOLLS
DISCOVER PB

Well, everybody, according to city officials.

At a cost of up to $600,000 a mile to resurface a street, next year's proposed budget plans to resurface, or overlay, about 80 miles of street, according to city officials. District 2, which includes, will see about 28 miles of newly overlaid streets next year.

The cheaper, thinner-coated, slurry-seal costs about $100,000 a mile. The city has plans to slurry seal about 133 miles of streets city-wide, next year as well, said David Jarrell, deputy chief of Public Works for the mayor's office.

Whether a street gets slurry-sealed or scraped and overlaid depends on the condition of the pavement. If it's real bad it gets overlaid, he said.

But as for the problem intersection at Garnet Avenue and Cass Street, Jarrell said the city plans to remove part of the street and repave it so it drains properly. That project is calculated separately and may cost about $15,000 to $20,000, he said.

"That work is going to be done by the end of July [2008]. So, sometime within the next 90 days," Jarrell said.

The streets become so worn for two reasons, he said. Either they weren't maintained properly over the years, or they simply out last their useful service life, which is about 17 to 20 years, he said.

Keeping an eye on urban runoff also helps prevent extra damage to streets.

Although a city ordinance targeting overwatering exists, the city relies mainly on public education campaigns to aid prevention rather than handing out citations, Jarrell said.

"We do it through education, because somebody is spending money on water that's really only spraying into the street and not doing any good," he said.

The City Council approved a plan in January aimed at curtailing urban runoff and storm drain pollution, according to the city's website. Part of the public education section of the plan urges seemingly obvious activities like picking up after pets and using a broom instead of a water to clean driveways and sidewalks, which saves money and resources.

Visit www.sandiego.gov/thinkblue for tips on runoff prevention.

Playtime at Claytime

Claytime Ceramics Camps offer a good balance of indoor and outdoor activities. Children begin their day with a walk by the tidepools (one block away from the studio), followed by warmup exercises at the studio.

On Mondays and Wednesdays we work on ceramic painting projects in which children learn ceramic painting techniques (color blending and use of puffy paints). On Tuesdays and Thursdays the kids work on mosaic projects. Children create their own patterns, learn to apply adhesive and grout their own pieces. On Fridays we include fabric painting or sketching or jewelry making. And the week ends with an ice cream party in which the kids get to use the ice cream bowls they painted on Monday. All supplies are included.

2008 Red Bull races are up in the air

By JOHNNY McDONALD | BEACH & BAY PRESS

One victory does not a title season make, but acrobatic pilot Paul Bonhomme's dominating performance in March at Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates, is a great start.

The British Airways 747 pilot is setting his sights on the Red Bull Air Races, which he won last year, over San Diego Bay on Saturday and Sunday, May 3 and 4, at 1 p.m. He'll face a multitaled 11 other pilots, including 2007 champion Mike Mangold of the United States.

It would appear Bonhomme set a standard last year, but he missed topping Mangold for the title by a fraction of a second. Each had finished with 47 points, so officials had to go to the clocks to determine the titleholder.

As for Bonhomme's Abu Dhabi performance, he won by 6 and 7 seconds in the semifinal and title run-off against Austria's Hannes Arch.

Bonhomme revealed that he made some secretive adjustments to his plane over the winter. He declined to reveal details, but he said his team put "a lot of thought and effort" into getting the setup right for each track.

Others in the field include Americans Kirby Chamblis (2006 champ) and Michael Goulian; Britons Steve Jones and Nigel Lamb; Nicolas Ivanoff of France; Alejandro Maclean of Spain; newcomer Glen Dell of South Africa; Peter Besenyei of Hungary and Serge Rakhmann of Russia.

The action will take place between Embarcadero Park and Coronado Island. Last year, an estimated 50,000 watched the

DON BALCH | BEACH & BAY PRESS

A pilot threads the needle between two inflatable pylons during last year's Red Bull Air Races along the San Diego waterfront.

Each race will be broadcast on Sunday evenings on Fox Sports Network starting in July.

Inflatable pylons, or air gates, define the course, a creative and complex feat of engineering by Austrian designer Martin Jehart and the team at Bellutti, an Innsbruck-based firm. The company uses a spinnaker rip-stop nylon, an extremely lightweight and flexible material normally used to make sails for boats.

Preceding the air races May 3 at 10:30 a.m. is the Sea & Air Parade, the kickoff event for Fleet Week San Diego, with six Navy warships passing in view on San Diego Bay.

The parade is one of 20 yearly programs mounted in tribute to the military. They include a Baseball Classic, scheduled this year for Aug. 25, the Star-Spangled Salute Sept. 20, the Coronado Speed Festival Sept. 27 and 28 and the Miramar Air Show Oct. 3 through 5.

Event officials said the parade warships include one cruiser, a frigate, two destroyers and two amphibious ships. Additionally, two Tall Ships, the Californian and the HMS Surprise, will engage in a mock gun battle.

The ships will sail from Point Loma through the bay, with the show's center between the USS Midway and Seaport Village.

Show officials encourage spectators to view the parade from Harbor Island for the best view. Eventgoers can also see the action in Coronado from the Ferry Landing, SDG&E Park and Centennial Park. Parking is limited.

Even with 22 innings, Pads still couldn't pull off the win

By ANTHONY GENTILE | BEACH & BAY PRESS

Fans attending the San Diego Padres' April 17 contest against the Colorado Rockies at Petco Park got free baseball — for 13 innings. The Padres lost 2-1 to the Rockies in the 22-inning affair that ended at 1:21 a.m. the next morning.

"If they came to see baseball," said Petco Park general manager Richard Andersen, "they got their money's worth that night."

The game was the longest in Major League Baseball since 1993 — also a 22-inning affair in which the Minnesota Twins beat the Cleveland Indians 5-4 — and marked the most innings in a game in Padres history. While this uncharted territory yielded a rare and exciting experience for fans, it also created unique challenges for various facets of normal game-day operations.

By the end of the game, only hundreds of the original 25,984 in attendance remained. Most had moved to the lower seating bowl of the ballpark.

"It was 1 a.m., and there's people chanting, and I'm sure they've got work or school the next morning," said Padres radio announcer Ted Leitner. "But they entertained me — the fans entertained me rather than the other way around, because I thought they were the ones that made it a show more so than the game."

Those fans sprinkled across the park after midnight created a festive atmosphere. Padres director of entertainment and production Erik Meyer said the in-game entertainment fed off this.

"The people that are there that are left are so into the game and so into the crowd shots that they end up being some of our best crowd shots," Meyer said, "because they're having so much fun dancing to the music we're playing, or even being quite loud."

One of the most memorable moments of the game was the 21st-inning stretch, the contest's third rendition of "Take Me Out to the Ballgame."

The announcer on the public address system tagged the final version, which followed stretches in the seventh and 14th innings, as ultra-rare.

"The 21st-inning stretch was definitely needed, because fans weren't getting out of their seats and stretching their legs for the purpose of cheering for either team," said Gen Salter, 21, who attended the game with co-workers.

Although alcohol sales stopped after the seventh inning, three concessions stands in the ballpark remained open for the entire game. This meant those left in the stands did not go hungry or without caffeine.

Some new bodies filled the left field upper reserved seats in the later innings — the maintenance crew. The staff sat in their bright yellow uniforms waiting for the game to end, although their shifts had already started.

"That was a night where people that were here and on the clock got paid to wait," Andersen said, "until it was time to do what they were supposed to do.”

Andersen said the complete cleaning process usually takes four hours. Including a minimum half-hour wait to clear the building, this means the crew did not clock out until around 6 a.m. Friday morning.
Fans that stayed for the entire game were still able use mass transit to get home on Friday morning. MTS media and communications specialist Luis Gonzalez said Blue Line services ran every 15 minutes until 1:54 a.m., orange line services ran regularly until 2:01 a.m. and the last special event line train from downtown to Santee left at 1:46 a.m. Each of those final departure times was two hours later than those on a regular evening.
As for the game itself, the Padres and Rockies remained scoreless through the first 13 innings. In the bottom of the 13th, the Friars lost what appeared to be their best chance to break the scoreless tie.
Left fielder Paul McAnulty led off with a double but was thrown out trying to advance to third base. Leitner said that out was the play he remembers most from the game.
Although he alternated with Andy Masur on XX Sports Radio’s broadcast, Leitner called 15 innings of the game, the most he had done since at 20-inning game in 1980. Despite that, Leitner’s voice was intact.
“It wasn’t sore,” he said. “It was just raspy from talking so much.”
In the top of the 14th, the scoreless tie was broken as Padres reliever Kevin Cameron issued a bases-loaded walk that scored Rockies centerfielder Willy Taveras. In the bottom half of the inning, the Padres responded in the form of an RBI single from catcher Josh Bard. Bard’s single tied the game 1-1 – and it meant more baseball.
Rockies shortstop Troy Tulowitzki finally helped the visitors break through, hitting a two-out RBI double in the top of the 22nd. Padres reliever Glendon Rusch struck out to end the game, 6 hours and 16 minutes after Jake Peavy threw the first pitch.

Twenty-two innings, 658 pitches, 161 at-bats and 30 stranded runners later, the game was over with one pitch. But the memories from this historic affair are something that those involved will not soon forget.
