Colorful makeover planned for Pacific Beach Rec Center

SURFBOARD DONATIONS NEEDED FOR MAJOR ART PROJECT IN PB

By DAVE SCHWAB

The surf is going to hit the turf soon in Pacific Beach. As in a community-driven surfboard garden mosaic mural being created to invigorate the look and appeal of Pacific Beach Rec Center at 1405 Diamond St.

“We’re calling it the Pacific Beach Community Surf Garden,” said Brian Curry, owner of Fitness West, who has been spearheading the public art project.

Now is the time to do the community mural project, and the Rec Center is the proper place, said Curry.

‘Our Rec Center, which has been used for 65 years, needs some love. It’s been a huge part of the fabric of PB’

CATHIE JOLLEY, PAST PRESIDENT OF PB TOWN COUNCIL

“Next door to the Rec Center is PB Middle School, which is completely being rehabilitated, and there’s a YMCA being developed nearby on the corner of Ingraham and Felspar,” he pointed out. “You drive by the Rec Center and it’s really in need of repair. It just shouldn’t be left behind.”

“We tend to pick a project a year, and this is an extraordinarily important project,” Marcella Bothwell, president of Pacific Beach Town Council, told the group on May 19. “It’s not just temporary. It’s going to be a permanent part of the Pacific Art Collection for the entire City. This is our project. And we’re going to be fundraising all year for it. This is all of us as a community putting together a mural on a public building.”

“This really is a community-based process,” agreed Cathie Jolley, past PBTC president who presented to the group on the mural project. “Our Rec Center, which has been used for 65 years, needs some love. It’s been a huge part of the fabric of PB.”

Muralist Rob Tobin has agreed to do the high-profile community artwork.

“They approached me, someone on the PBTC was familiar with my work: That’s how it got started,” said Tobin. “We weren’t sure what we wanted to do in the beginning. Then I came up with the idea of the surfboard re-purposing. I like to use old materials, give new life to stuff. I also do a lot of mosaics. I thought, if we put those two together, it would be a good way to involve the community.”

There are numerous advantages to using mosaics to embellish the surfboards, which will be used to create several “flowers,” with mosaic surfboards forming the petals.

“It’s going to be a lot of sparkle,” enthused Tobin adding, “Mosaics last a long time. They look beautiful. The community can help put tiles down. It’s very participatory.”

Local groups want to sweep out gas powered leaf blowers

By DAVE SCHWAB

The transition from gas to electric power to lessen greenhouse gas emissions continues as environmental and other civic groups are joining to consider forming a coalition advocating a gas-powered leaf blower ban.

“Gas-powered leaf blowers create high levels of formaldehyde, benzene, fine particulate matter, and smog-forming chemicals that are known to cause cancer and are harmful to the environment,” said La Jolla resident Patty Kushner of the League of Women Voters, which is backing the ban.

“We are working on forming a coalition with several local environmental groups – SD350, The Sierra Club, Ban Leaf Blowers San Diego, and others – in support of the ban consisting of approximately 35,000 people.”

An organizational Zoom meeting was held on May 7 attended by 14 supporters of banning gas-powered leaf blowers. They are advocating devising a new City ordinance with a possible buy-in or trade-in policy requiring leaf blower users to convert from gas to electrical power.

A similar anti-gas-powered leaf blower ordinance, passed by the City of Coronado, has been in effect since Jan. 1.

“In a grassroots way, we started looking last summer at the gas leaf blowers and knew we had a problem,” said coalition advocate Marjorie Ness. “So we’re looking to move forward with a gas leaf blower ban, or perhaps look at a statewide ban.”

One leaf blower group, Ban Leaf Blowers San Diego, has collected more than 1,400 signatures in a petition online. Some League of Women Voters of San Diego members are also advocating instituting buy-back or rebate programs to encourage commercial gas-powered blower users to switch to electric power.

The May 7 Zoom guest speaker was Brian Elliott, policy advisor for District 1 Councilmember Joe LaCava representing La Jolla, who gave a presentation and answered questions.

“I do want to spend some time talking about the idea of a coalition, and where to go from here,” said Elliott. “We’ve been appreciative of how this group has come together. It is really promising, from the council’s perspective, the ideas that you are developing.”

Noting the movement to get rid of gas-powered leaf blowers started out small and has since “snowballed,” Elliott said, “This is the right place to start, and having those discussions with council members is really important. One of the next steps is to incorporate this group, start that dialogue.”

Elliott pointed out it’s also important to look at what other cities in the state and nation have done with ordinances banning gas-powered leaf blowers. But he warned: “It’s not always easy to cut and paste from other jurisdictions and expect that it will work here. There are a lot of impacts we need to consider, what effects a ban would have, and that will go a long way in crafting this (ordinance).”

John Noble, who owns Point Loma-based Coastal Sage Gardening that serves coastal communities, said his employees use gas-powered leaf blowers. He pointed out the devices can be useful.

“If you’re cleaning up underneath patio furniture, the blow is so much more effective than anything else, including a broom,” he said adding, “For those who have long driveways, the blowers really work well on them.”

Leaf blowers have gotten a bad reputation because people don’t use them properly, said Noble.

“People who don’t know how to use them, they use it on high power and that sends everything up in the air, whereas people who know how to use them know how to do it more quietly,” he said.

Noble added he could see the advantages to switching to electrically powered blowers, though he personally hasn’t tried them.

“It would be so much cleaner than the gas-powered ones, and you wouldn’t have to worry about loading them with gas,” he said. “The only issue I can see with using electric-powered leaf blowers is how long they would last with battery power. But I personally feel they would be less polluting. And most of the time, people can use a broom and a rake to get most of the larger stuff. You only need a blower for a little bit to get rid of the smaller stuff.”

Asked if there might be funding available in the City budget to launch an effort to ban gas-powered leaf blowers, Elliott replied: “That’s a hard ask right now. But I think there is an opportunity in looking at public-private partnerships, exploring areas on how you can incentivize the transition from gas to electric.”

Though they stopped short of actually forming a coalition on May 7, gas-powered leaf blower opponents agreed to form two subcommittees, one on funding and grant writing, and the other on educating the public on the environmental dangers such landscaping tools pose.

SCOTT’S PB SPOTLIGHT

I often get met with surprise when people learn that I grew up here in PB since there aren’t too many “locals” anymore. It got me thinking, there’s a lot of interesting people and businesses in our community that people may not know about if they are new to the area. So, each month I will be spotlighting someone within our community that I think has an interesting story to share.

This month’s feature: Taco Surf – Matt Gilmore

I first met Matt when he had just taken over as the new owner and have had many conversations with him since. You will not meet a nicer and more friendly person. His character shines through and he is one of the most humble and honest people I have ever met. He owns his mistakes while giving the accolades to his staff instead of keeping them to himself. He cares about the community and wholeheartedly strives to provide amazing food, service and friendship to the community as well as maintain the roots of the business he took over.

Matt was born in Minnesota but grew up in Rockland, CA, just outside Sacramento. After graduating high school in the mid 80’s, he moved to San Diego and 37 years later he’s still here, living in North PB with his wife and two kids and has been the proud new owner of PB staple, Taco Surf since February 2020.

Having started his restaurant career as a barback at Carlos Murphy’s in UTC, he then became the daytime bartender at Hennessey’s (now Duck Dive) and then eventually worked in management for the PB Bar and Grill, the Bitter End, the Ivy and as the manager of all Hennessey’s from Laguna Beach to San Diego as well as other positions with the Kelly Restaurant Group. In the fall of 2019, at a chance run in with the old owners, Sam and Cindy, whom Matt had known for years, the discussion of him buying Taco Surf started. After a few months of conversations, some nervous and sleepless nights and lots of excitement, Matt officially became the new owner of Taco Surf in February 2020. Taking over the powerhouse go-to spot in PB that Sam and Cindy had built was something he didn’t take lightly. He wanted to carry on the legacy they had built and be as part of and accepted by the community as they were. Then Covid hit. All of that excitement morphed into more nervous and sleepless nights and the wondering of how he was going to make it. When I asked him how he managed to keep afloat, he said he “just kept showing up to work” and that he “listened and leaned on the staff”, some of which have been there for 10-20 years. He’s even carried on Sam’s tradition of hiring kids of long time customers and friends and employs a woman who’s dad he met decades ago when he’d come in to clean Hennessey’s at night after closing. As a testament to his loyalty to the staff and his business acumen, during Covid, he kept his staff employed full time when other places were laying people off and or closing their doors. Now, 15 months later, after a global pandemic, the scrutiny of the community as the new owner, ups and downs and many mistakes made as a new business owner, he’s come out on the other side much wiser, still with a smile on his face and the earned respect of the PB community. If you stop in I highly recommend the breakfast burrito with bacon and hash browns and the beef tacos!

If you know of someone you think has an interesting story, send me an email scott@isellbeach.com with their info and why you think they would be a good person/business to spotlight and will consider them for a monthly spotlight.

Coastal Commission raises concerns over plans for De Anza Point

CAMPLAND ON THE BAY'S PROPOSAL TO REMOVE MOBILE HOMES AND ADD RV SPACES TO DE ANZA POINT ON HOLD

By DAVE SCHWAB

A proposal by Campland on the Bay to demolish vacant mobile homes at the former De Anza Cove mobile home park and convert about 150 mobile home sites there into RV spaces, was paused after the California Coastal Commission attached numerous conditions to those plans.

Jacob Gelfand of Terra Vista Management, which operates Campland on the Bay as well as Mission Bay RV Resort adjacent to the now-vacant mobile home park at De Anza Point, pulled his proposal from consideration by the Coastal Commission on May 12. The move came after Coastal Commission staff recommended requiring numerous conditions to approve Campland's RV conversion proposal.

"We remain fully committed to moving forward," said Gelfand describing the benefits of Terra Vista Management's plans as "significant and wide-ranging." Those conditions, Gelfand said, include repair of the bike and pedestrian path around the peninsula and abatement of the vacant mobile homes.

"It's always hard to predict what kind of special conditions are going to be attached to any project," said Gelfand. "While we had hoped to be able to move forward after the May 12 hearing, we need more time to continue work on final plans before resubmitting the full scope of the project to the Coastal Commission."

The City Council voted 6-3 in 2019 to enter into a lease with Campland allowing the beachfront RV park and campground to do asbestos clean-up and mobile home removal within 24 months at the now-abandoned mobile home park. Campland's plans call for adding 150 more RV campsites to the existing 260 there while re-opening the scenic coastal bike and pedestrian path around De Anza Point as part of its five-year lease extension with the city.

The Coastal Commission however has found Gelfand and Terra Vista Management to be in violation of some of its City lease conditions. Those conditions require public access to bike and pedestrian paths, as well as providing a public parking area within the Mission Bay RV Resort parking lot. The 2019 lease also requires Terra Vista Management to post signs identifying the area as owned by the City and available for public use.

However, the Coastal Commission said Terra Vista Management did not post any of the required access signs identifying the area as City-owned and open to the public, and instead maintained signs that had the effect of blocking public access to public parking areas.

"Our enforcement unit is in talks with the lessee (Terra Vista Management) to resolve both enforcement issues at this property and at Campland, and we hope to bring that proposed resolution to the commission in the next few months," said Coastal Commission spokesperson Noaki Schwartz. "All the violations revolve around public access. We're making progress and hope to bring a proposed resolution to the commission in the next two to three months."

Regarding the reasoning behind Coastal Commission's attaching special conditions to Terra Vista Management conversion project's approval, Schwartz said: "The Commission upholds the Coastal Act, and these conditions ensure that the proposed development complies with this environmental law and its resource-protection policies."

Another stakeholder involved with Terra Vista Management's proposal is San Diego Audubon Society, which fears Campland's conversion plan for the former mobile home park could postpone, for up to eight years, implementation of the 'wildest' wetland restoration plan in the ReWild Mission Bay project.

The ReWild project will develop conceptual plans to enhance and restore 170 acres of tidal wetland habitat in the northeast corner of Mission Bay, including the enhancement of 40 acres of existing tidal wetland habitat at Kendall-Frost Marsh west of Campland, struck between San Diego Audubon Society and Campland guarantees new RV spaces Campland is creating on De Anza Point will be as far away from the public bayfront — and future wetland restoration — as possible. Under its agreement with Audubon Society, Campland will now place new campsites only in the northeastern corner of their De Anza Cove leasehold boundary.

A compromise agreement

Audubon Society spokesperson Andrew Meyer said the environmental group has no problem with Campland's providing more low-cost RV accommodations for its waterfront guests.

"But those accommodations need to be moved away from areas of sea-level rise and away from the Kendall-Frost Marsh," said Meyer. "We definitely feel sea level rise could present problems with access. The City is in the process of determining what Mission Bay Park will look like for the next 100 years. The northeast corner of Mission Bay is the best place for wetland restoration."

Mission Bay Park is the largest municipal aquatic park in the nation, consisting of about 4,235 equally divided acres of land and water, with 27 miles of shoreline. The De Anza peninsula contains approximately 6,759 feet of shoreline.

The proposed Terra Vista Management development is seen by the City as an interim use to expand the public benefit of the currently vacant and inaccessible portions of De Anza peninsula. Meanwhile, the City continues its local planning efforts on the De Anza Revitalization Plan, a multi-year update and amendment to the Mission Bay Park Master Plan. The intent of the master plan update is to redevelop the De Anza Cove area providing a balanced mix of new habitat and recreational space.

- California Coastal Commission special conditions attached to approving Campland at the Bay's RV conversion proposal:
- Several revisions to the project plans to restore and expand public access.
  - Submittal of final construction and storage plans to ensure that neither the final development, nor the work to convert RV spaces, will encroach into adjacent park land or public parking.
  - Final construction pollution prevention plans to ensure that all debris material is retained and prevented from entering coastal waters.
  - The submittal of final post-development runoff plans to demonstrate how runoff will be retained, treated, and infiltrated on-site to the greatest extent feasible.
  - A requirement that the substantial amount of demolition material that will be generated by the mobile home sites' conversion into RV spaces be disposed of at a legal site outside the coastal zone.
  - A requirement that the applicant assume the risk of coastal hazards and waive liability.
  - Submittal of a final public access plan detailing the public's rights of access to the public parking lot and waterfront path on the peninsula.
  - Placing a fixed duration on this permit until June 30, 2027, so as to coincide with the expiration of the applicant's lease with the City.

Man sentenced for attacking nanny

By NEAL PUTNAM

A man who attacked a nanny in a La Jolla park and tried to take her baby has been released from jail in order to live in a residential treatment program.

Michael Hudson, 51, was given credit of serving 203 days in jail since he was arrested on Oct. 14, 2020 in an incident at the park on La Jolla Hermosa Avenue.

In his guilty plea to false imprisonment, Hudson acknowledged he committed a hate crime when he tried to take the baby, who is white, from the nanny, who is Hispanic.

Hudson told the woman she "can't have the baby," and he scratched the nanny's arms as she fought him off. She screamed and another woman nearby yelled she would call police. Hudson then fled.

San Diego Superior Court Judge Francis Devaney sentenced him to one year in jail, but allowed him to leave jail early if a bed became available at this program.

Devaney ordered him to complete the program, and barred him from ever returning to the park. Hudson was also forbidden to have any contact with the nanny or child on terms of two years probation.

Hudson was fined $370 and ordered to pay restitution of $2,152 to other victims in an unrelated case. Devaney said Hudson doesn't have to start making payments until 90 days after he finishes the program.

Deputy District Attorney Leonard Trinh did not oppose the dropping of attempted kidnapping and resisting arrest charges after he pleaded guilty to false imprisonment in April.

Trinh said the hate crime was charged because Hudson tried to kidnap the baby because of the victim's race. The charge says Hudson intimidated the nanny and interfered with her civil rights.

Hudson ran towards the ocean where San Diego Police officers saw him swimming in the water along a rocky area near La Jolla Cove. Officers called out lifeguards for assistance in detaining the man.

After three hours, Hudson came out of the water and was shivering. Police had waited him out, considering the water's temperature, and he was arrested.

His attorney sought last October to determine if his client was mentally incompetent but a judge ruled he was mentally competent to understand court proceedings.

SDPD to investigate officers who were filmed punching unarmed Black man in La Jolla

By DAVE SCHWAB

An incident in La Jolla videotaped by a bystander, wherein police officers punched a homeless unarmed Black man who was allegedly resisting arrest, has launched an investigation and prompted responses from a City Council member and a homeless provider.

"The department is aware of the cell phone video," said San Diego Police Department spokesperson Shawn Takeuchi, about the May 12 incident that occurred about 9 a.m. in the 4100 block of Torrey Pines Road near Scripps Institution of Oceanography. "Two officers on patrol witnessed a man urinating in public. From a distance, the officers tried to talk to the man. The officers decided to approach the man because urinating in public violates the law.

"The man would not stop to speak with officers, therefore an officer held the man to detain him," continued Takeuchi. "Despite the officers repeatedly telling the man to 'stop resisting,' the man would not comply. One of the officers struck the man several times. The man was taken into custody and transported to the hospital. The Internal Affairs Unit is currently investigating the incident and reviewing Body Worn Camera video."

The man was released and booked into County Jail for resisting arrest and battery on a police officer, Takeuchi said.

"While attempting to detain an apparent homeless individual in La Jolla, a police officer repeatedly punched the individual in the face. This event was a tragedy and a disgrace," said District 1 Councilmember Joe LaCava who represents La Jolla. "This should not have happened. The Police Department has launched an investigation, but officers should not be put in a position to address a situation better suited for behavioral health professionals. We must take immediate action to change how our City responds to these situations."

In the coming weeks, LaCava said he will release his final budget priority memo, which will formally request funding for Mobile Crisis Response Teams, which are specialized, non-law enforcement professionals who are dispatched to de-escalate situations and safely connect individuals with care and mental health resources.

"This is not a matter of budgets, it is a matter of expertise and tools," said LaCava. "You would not send a doctor to arrest a criminal, police should not respond to mental health situations. This event obligated precious resources from the SDPD, the hospital, and the jails. This individual will likely be back on the street unconnected to resources. I demand better and will vote on the budget to require it."

"While the circumstances of this incident are not yet clear, we at Father Joe's Villages are deeply troubled by this video," said Deacon Jim Vargas, president/CEO of the charitable organization downtown that serves the homeless. "It is a clear illustration of several broken systems and a stark and distressing reminder of the insufficient resources available to those on our streets. From the failure to provide the basic dignity of public restrooms to the urgent need for a more compassionate, effective, and comprehensive response to those suffering from mental illness, San Diego can and must do better. In the meantime, this individual and thousands of others experiencing homelessness are paying the price. We trust that a thorough investigation of this incident will be conducted and we will look to see the results."

The bystander who took the video of the altercation between the man and police shared it on social media.

BIG BAY BOOM RETURNS

The Port of San Diego's Big Bay Boom fireworks show will take place at 9 p.m. on Sunday, July 4, over San Diego Bay. The Port of San Diego is the title sponsor of the approximately 20-minute fireworks show, which will be telecast live on Fox 5. A musical simulcast will be broadcast on KGB 101.5 FM radio. Fireworks will be discharged from four barges placed off the shorelines of Shelter Island, Harbor Island, North Embarcadero, and South Embarcadero.

The Big Bay Boom can be viewed from Shelter Island, Harbor Island, Spanish Landing, North Embarcadero, South Embarcadero, Cesar E. Chavez Park, and Coronado Tidelands Park. Parking areas fill up early and the Port of San Diego strongly encourages the use of public transportation or ride share. The Metropolitan Transit System (MTS) will be providing expanded train, trolley and bus service and is offering "Friends Ride Free" — where a friend may ride free with a fare-paying customer on all MTS routes on July 4.

OCEAN BEACH PIER REOPENS

After recent repairs, the Ocean Beach Pier will be partially re-opened to the public on Friday, May 28. City engineers and maintenance crews have made immediate repairs to make a portion of the pier safe for public access while a longer-term strategy is developed for the future of the pier. Public access to the pier will be allowed up to the bait shop and café, and only emergency vehicles will be allowed when necessary. In addition, the pier will need to close during high tides.

MT. SOLEDAD MEMORIAL DAY

The Mt. Soledad National Veterans Memorial in La Jolla will honor Air Force Airman 1st Class William Pitsenbarger (Honor of Medal recipient), the 30th anniversary of Desert Storm, and the nation's heroes through a live and virtual tribute event on May 31 from noon-1 p.m. and streamed at memorialday-live.com.

This event will honor Pitsenbarger whose story was portrayed in the recent movie "The Last Full Measure," which showcased his story in the Vietnam War including actions that led to him being posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor, saving a number of American soldiers in 1966. Attendees and speakers will include the film director, producer, and airmen who served with Pitsenbarger, and the Army soldiers that he saved.

Rubio's collaborates with Top Chef for new street tacos

Chef Richard Blais and Ralph Rubio discuss the inspiration for the new street tacos outside Rubio's Coastal Grill at Carmel Mountain Ranch on May 18.

By THOMAS MELVILLE

Being mistaken earlier in the day for Jesse Tyler Ferguson, from the TV show “Modern Family,” didn’t dampen chef Richard Blais’ enthusiasm while introducing his new collaboration with Rubio’s Coastal Grill last week at Carmel Mountain Ranch, it actually gave him a funny segue into discussing his “modern” take on street tacos.

“I will make sure to text Jesse to let him know people think he’s making tacos for Rubio’s,” Blais joked. “I’m sure he would have been a lot more expensive to get than me.”

Blais, the winner of “Top Chef All-Stars” and a recurring guest judge on the show, is a James Beard-nominated restaurateur who recently opened Ember &

Rye at the Park Hyatt Aviara in Carlsbad. Nine years ago, the celebrity chef moved to San Diego, and his love affair with tacos intensified.

“When I first came out to San Diego, just like when you travel to any city, you search out the best food and the best places to get it,” he said.

That’s how Rubio’s found its way onto his food radar. And then two years ago, Ralph Rubio reached out to Blais about a taco collaboration, and finally, this summer those creations are available under the name Rubio’s X Blais Street Tacos.

“It was a pleasure working with Richard,” Rubio said. “He is a creative genius. When we started the project, we didn’t really know what we were getting into, but once we got in the kitchen together it was amazing. We all hit it off.”

“We started out with more than 20 different taco recipes that we developed,” Rubio said. “We got it down to what we thought were the best three.”

Those three are Hula Hula Carnitas, Blaised & Glazed Crispy Chicken, and Ancho Po-Boy Shrimp – not the typical tacos found this close to the border.

“We were playing around with different ideas – we even had a carrot mole option at one point,” Blais said. “We weren’t trapped into the most authentic things. Can you put fried chicken on a taco? Absolutely, you can. Can you put house-made ranch dressing on a taco? Why not? It’s a stone’s throw away from crema, right?”

“These tacos were inspired by my travels and adventures. I think with these tacos, it’s a great way for people to get the taste of traveling without having to leave their neighborhoods,” Blais said.

“Early in the pandemic, many craved comfort food. Now, the trend is toward innovative tastes that ignite a sense of adventure.”

HULA HULA CARNITAS

The Hawaiian-inspired tacos feature slow-roasted pork flavored with gochujang, achiote, and garlic, served on a corn tortilla with mango salsa and cotija cheese on top. Blais admitted that this one was his favorite right now.

“What I love about this taco is that it’s a long, slow cook, it’s a braise, slow-roasted pork shoulder and steamed in a banana leaf. It’s not an easy thing to make happen. It’s a little bit Baja, it’s a little bit Hawaii, and it’s all parts delicious,” Blais said.

RUBIO’S PACIFIC BEACH CONNECTION

Ralph Rubio grew up in Los Angeles and moved down here to go to SDSU. Some of the upperclassmen wanted to go down to San Felipe, Mexico for spring break to get fish tacos. Rubio said: “Fish tacos, what are those? I’d never been there before and never had a fish taco. We got there in the late morning, so the taco shops were just starting to open up, and I had my first fish taco and just fell in love.”

That experience inspired Rubio to start a fish taco eatery in Pacific Beach. In January of 1983, Rubio, who at the time lived near Fanuel Street and Pacific Beach Drive, and his father bought a hamburger shop called Mickey’s Burgers (previously an Orange Julius) at 4504 E. Mission Bay Drive. The first Rubio’s restaurant started as a walk-up taco stand with a few uncovered picnic tables outside. The original is still there and still serving fish tacos and cold beer. As of this month, there are a total of 160 Rubio’s restaurants with locations in California, Nevada, and Arizona.

on Buffalo chicken with Frank’s RedHot sauce served on a flour tortilla with shredded cabbage, homemade ranch, house-pickled celery, carrots, and jalapenos, and topped with cotija cheese and celery seed. Rubio said this taco was his favorite.

“What really brought it together was the idea – when you go to a taco shop, especially in Mexico, you get marinated carrots and jalapenos – so that’s what we added in, those marinated carrots, celery, and jalapenos that top the taco as well as some cotija cheese, which is the parmigiana of the taco world for sure,” Blais said. “That adds some umami and salinity, which brings the two worlds together – chicken wings and chicken tacos.”

ANCHO PO-BOY SHRIMP

This taco features a modern take on classic New Orleans street food, the po’boy sandwich. It features flash-fried ancho-lime shrimp with Cajun aioli on a flour tortilla with shredded cabbage, salsa Fresca, and lime.

Expanded outdoor dining to remain for another year

By DAVE SCHWAB

Each area merchants are elated the City has approved extending an interim urgency ordinance allowing permitting for outdoor dining to continue through July 13, 2022.

But concerns remain that rules and regulations governing those outdoor dining enclosures – everything from makeshift structures to near-permanent ones – be properly enforced and maintained.

Without the extension, permits for all restaurants were set to expire on July 13. With the extension, businesses and restaurants are allowed to continue outdoor operations, even if COVID-19 health orders are rescinded.

“Discover Pacific Beach supports our businesses and believes that it is in their best interest to continue their outdoor business permits to help them recover from the loss of revenue during the pandemic,” said Sunny Lee, executive director of Discover PB, the second largest business improvement district in San Diego with more than 1,500 members. “As of right now, nothing is changing within the current guidelines. The permits have just been extended.”

“The extension is welcome news for our businesses to give them additional time to recover from a devastating year-plus,”

MOST COMMON VIOLATIONS FOR OUTDOOR BUSINESS OPERATIONS

- Unpermitted structures in the right-of-way/streets not designed, reviewed and inspected for building code requirements.
- Liquid propane gas (LPG) heaters within tents and structures.
- Electrical issues – weather-protected GFCI circuits and lights not listed for outdoor use.
- Platforms built in the street with added walls and roof.
- Unpermitted tents (400 square feet and larger).
- Materials being used for roof coverings not meeting the state fire marshal's standard.
- Fire extinguishers not installed in tents and structures.
- Blocked fire access to existing permanent structures.
- Red curb encroachments.
- Tents that are unpermitted and material being used without the state fire marshal's label.
- Electrical supply that is not GFCI protected for outdoor use and is not weather resistant.
- Visit sandiego.gov for more about outdoor business operations.

said Jodi Rudick, executive director of La Jolla Village Merchants Association representing approximately 1,300 businesses and about 6,500 employees.

“While June 15 is the date the state and most are using as the ‘end of the COVID restrictions,’ we know that we are not out of coronavirus woods yet, as has been made evident by surges around the globe,” Rudick said. “Outdoor gathering is far safer than indoor crowds. So we continue to applaud businesses willing to adapt to outdoor service.”

Added Rudick: “I know that some in the community are concerned about the loss of parking spaces to accommodate the outdoor dining expansions. But we have put into place some great alternatives to on-street parking.

“For example, village employees can take advantage of discounted parking for only $75 a month. Plus, anyone can get an all-day parking pass for only $4.95, valid any day of the week, by going to lajollabythesea.com.”

“The City will continue to work on a case-by-case basis with restaurant and business owners to ensure compliance with all codes that protect public health and safety,” said City spokesperson Scott Robinson about outdoor dining regulations. “This cross-departmental effort follows ongoing proactive, educational efforts on what is allowed to be designed and built under the Temporary Outdoor Businesses Operations permit program. The City encourages TOBO permit holders to self-comply, ensuring operations are located, designed and built as approved within the permit guidelines.”

Robinson added all unpermitted business operations will be able to apply for a permit. However, any permit holder that does not achieve compliance by July 13 may have their permit revoked.

The City Council first approved an ordinance on July 14, 2020, allowing outdoor retail sales and eating and drinking establishments to expand their footprint within the public right-of-way and on private property. Businesses could apply for a TOBO permit from the City, allowing for temporary use of a street, sidewalk, or parking lane for business.

Each of the 427 TOBO permits the City has issued since the program started outlines the location where canopies, umbrellas, or furniture can be placed in the street or sidewalk. Additionally, business and restaurant owners must submit for a separate permit to install platforms, specifying the design and materials for construction.

Janie Emerson, president of La Jolla Shores Association, praised the City's extension of outdoor dining regulations that have worked well in their neighborhood. “It is a real boon to businesses, both restaurants and shops, and it is fun for everyone,” she said adding, “While there is always a trade-off, loss of parking in the Shores is minimal.”

Long-Time La Jolla Advocate Passes at 93

Robert Arthur Collins

October 18, 1927 – May 18, 2021

LA JOLLA, CA - At the age of 93, Robert Arthur Collins passed away peacefully in his La Jolla home with family present on May 18, 2021. Bob was born in 1927 in Des Moines, Iowa, the eldest child of Dr. Harry A. Collins and Esther McCarthy Collins. He was always close to his three sisters and two brothers, everyone moving to La Jolla in the 1950s. Native San Diegan Alicia Dolan stole his heart, and she and Bob married in 1957, raising three children.

As a boy, Bob sometimes accompanied his physician father on house calls to Iowa farms. Carrying a shovel in the car was a necessity. Spring mud usually meant leaving the car on the side of the county road and waiting for the farmer to pick them up in a Ford Model A or tractor. Another trip to see a patient took Bob and his dad by train to Southern California in 1937, where they experienced the Del Mar Racetrack's first opening day.

Bob attended Dowling High School in Des Moines, then Southwestern University in Georgetown, Texas, through the V-5 Naval Aviation Cadet program. Later, he served in the U.S. Naval Reserve. In 1950, Bob graduated from Saint Louis University (SLU) in Missouri with a BS in biology and chemistry, “Neither of which I ever used,” he said.

Bob always had an interest in cars, and he spent several years in Michigan at General Motors Tech. Afterwards, he accepted an appointment with the U.S. Department of Justice as a Special Agent with the FBI in Washington, Birmingham, and New York. He was an honest man with a strong sense of justice. He always tried to do the right thing.

When his family moved to La Jolla, Bob followed, intrigued by the growing real estate market. “I saw all of the possibilities in real estate development during the late 1950s and '60s, so I decided that was a good place to be.” He often teamed up with his mother and siblings, who also saw the investment potential in real estate. Bob went to work for the Tavares Construction Company, developing and building projects throughout California, even master-planning an entire community. Eventually he established his own company, Robert A. Collins Real Estate Investments, which focuses on commercial developments, apartment buildings, hotels, and marinas. He took a special interest in La Jolla's development and preservation, serving for decades on many committees and twice as president of the La Jolla Town Council. He helped establish All Hallows Catholic Church with the selection of property on Mount Soledad.

Bob loved being active and social. At SLU, he was a member of the swim and water polo teams. He also enjoyed ice hockey. His interest in sailing began while in New York with the FBI, where he joined the Harlem Yacht Club. In San Diego, he joined the San Diego Yacht Club. He and Alicia sailed and raced boats from Sabots to ocean-racing yachts. Bob served on the club's board of directors for eight years and became commodore in 1978. He also became a member of the Tennis Fleet. “I didn't play tennis until I was about fifty years old,” he said. “It's a pretty good game to keep an old guy in shape.”

Classic and sporty cars also kept him busy. He enjoyed racing cars as an amateur at tracks around the country, including competing in the One Lap of America event in which entrants drive a specified route and on tracks in the Midwest, South, and East. Traveling the country by motor home also captured his interest, and he and Alicia attended fun rallies and made many good friends nationwide. He will be missed.

Bob is survived by his wife of 63 years, Alicia Dolan Collins, daughter Ann Collins, sons Mike (Susan) and Craig Collins, granddaughters Danielle, Kelly, and Nicole Collins, sister Mary Mulvihill, and many nieces and nephews.

Services will be held Friday, May 28, 2021, at 11:00 a.m., at All Hallows Catholic Church, 6602 La Jolla Scenic Drive South, La Jolla. Masks are required and please social distance by three feet.

Reach your fitness goals while having fun at RockBox

By DAVE SCHWAB

Those looking to lose their extra quarantine weight should consider RockBox Fitness Pacific Beach with its hard-hitting, pound-trimming style.

People can lose their “quarantine 15” at the fitness studio at 1896 Garnet Ave., which characterizes itself as “nightclub meets fight club.”

“It’s the perfect combination workout, kickboxing, and then functional hit training,” said owner Kim Ryan adding, “It’s a whole heck of a lot of fun, and it burns a lot of calories. You get so much strength from it. It’s cathartic. It just feels good to punch bags and kick. It’s awesome stress relief.”

RockBox Fitness gets its name for its rock show played on the hour, every hour. Gym goers complete a high-intensity boxing workout in an environment reminiscent of a live concert.

“We don’t hit people, we hit bags,” noted Ryan about their training method, while pointing out equipment used is wide-ranging including kettle and dumbbells, straps, treadmills, etc. “The workouts are always different, ever-changing,” she added. “We don’t want you to ever get bored while you’re working to reach your goals.”

RockBox considers itself a leading-edge, post-pandemic fitness studio.

Post-Pandemic Fitness features:

– No mirrors: Members focus on workouts, not appearance.

– Tight-knit community: Trainers know student’s names in an intimate setting. Class sizes are small. Faces are familiar.

– Stress-reducing: High-intensity interval training like kickboxing allows members to release pent-up anger and frustration.

– Cleanliness: Gym goers are more aware of cleanliness than ever before, which is why fitness centers must emphasize their dedication to keeping spaces sanitized. Members are also given their own spray bottle to wipe down equipment before and after use.

RockBox is for those seeking a fitness-training alternative.

“We’re so different from a big-box gym where you work out next to strangers,” pointed out Ryan. “We are a family, a tight-knit community.”

With more than 200 members, RockBox offers memberships with people able to buy packs of classes. “There are different options depending on someone’s goals,” said Ryan adding “the majority of our members are monthly members.”

To get through COVID, Ryan said RockBox “made a gym outside and were rock ‘n’ rollin’ in the parking lot. We’re thankful we had space.”

The gym owner added they also live-streamed workouts from their studio to keep members, who were appreciative, engaged. “People keep telling us, ‘I don’t know how I would have made it through last year without RockBox,’” said Ryan.

RockBox classes are in small groups so “you don’t have to work out on your own,” said Ryan adding their certified trainers “keep you motivated, keep you going.” She added members “learn something about the sports of boxing and kickboxing” along with being entertained “in a club setting with lights flashing and concert music going.”

But RockBox never loses sight of its ultimate objective.

“We’re not just about a good workout,” Ryan said. “We want to help people accomplish their goals. We have everyone from people that haven’t worked out in 20 years and need to start somewhere, to avid athletes trying to better themselves. And we’re here to support them every step of the way. Whatever you want to accomplish – we’re here to help you do it.”

MEMORIAL DAY VACCINATIONS

Saint Brigid Parish at 4735 Cass St. is hosting vaccinations on Memorial Day, Monday, May 31 from 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. First and second doses available at no cost. Health insurance and appointments not required to be vaccinated. Appointments also available, if preferred. Number of no-appointment vaccinations limited per location. Parents or legal guardians must provide their consent for an eligible minor to receive the vaccine.

Consent must either be provided in-person by the parent/guardian at the vaccination site or a parent/guardian can provide their consent in advance by completing a consent form. Only the Pfizer vaccine may be provided to minors at this time. For information on scheduling a vaccination appointment, visit Coronavirus-SD.com or call 2-1-1, which is available 24-hours a day in more than 200 languages. All calls are free and confidential.

MBHS PETCO GRADUATION

The 2021 commencement for Mission Bay High School will be held at Petco Park at 8 a.m. on Friday, June 11. Each graduate can receive up to four guest e-tickets for immediate family members only. E-tickets cannot be used for non-family members. Guests will need to adhere to the health/safety guidelines provided by Petco Park, which includes limitations on items that can be brought in by guests. Students will need to arrive to Petco Park at 7 a.m. Guests may park at any of the nearby parking lots or structures, including Tailgate Park, Padres Parkade, Premier Lot, and Bayfront Hilton garage.

Noting last year’s graduation was a drive-thru event, MBHS principal Ernest Remillard said San Diego Unified School District this year has “been focused on how we have classes graduating together. Our connections with the Padres and Petco Park came through and we’ll have as many classes as possible graduating together while social distancing.”

Remillard said the graduation stage will be at second base facing inwards so graduating students will be in the first section behind home plate.

REC CENTER »

Of the mural's design, Tobin said: "The idea came out of the materials, old surfboards, and then just playing with that idea, arranging them into flower shapes, each surfboard is a petal. So it naturally kind of fell together that way. And it just looks like it will work."

Curry praised Tobin's thematic approach.

"The idea of using surfboards in the art is just so cool, it's one-of-a-kind dynamic artwork," he noted adding, "When you donate you get a ceramic tile with your name, or your business's name, on that tile. Our intent here is that this is a community project. Community members can donate surfboards, which will be used in the art. We want people to take ownership. And in the meantime, the Rec Center is in dire need of beautification."

The mural surfboards are going to be mounted with metal brackets on the wall on the side of the building, pointed out Jolley, who added the community is "stoked" to be working with a gifted community artist like Tobin.

Jolley said there will be five tax-deductible sponsorship levels ranging from $50 to $5,000. The more someone donates, the bigger the personal tile they will be entitled to for the project.

What the north wall of the Pacific Beach Rec Center currently looks like.

"How cool is that to be a part of?" she asked. "Help us with this."

If all goes well, the mural could be installed as soon as September, said Tobin, who added the first five surfboards for the project have already been donated. He estimated the art project will cost about $50,000.

"I think it's going to take a couple of months to get all the boards decorated with mosaics and then putting it up on the wall," said Tobin.

Added the muralist: "We could use up to about 50 surfboards. Each petal for each flower will match. But each flower will be very different. There are going to be six or seven flowers, and some of them could be 20 feet in diameter or more. I'm excited. It's going to be a great way to really bring the community of PB together."

Surfboards can be donated to Fitness West at 1880 Garnet Ave. For more information about the Pacific Beach Community Surf Garden, visit pbtowncouncil.org.

Pacific Beach designer debuts new swimwear collection

By DIANA CAVAGNARO

Each time is around the corner...are you ready? Catherine Huss, of Pacific Beach, is launching a new swimwear collection in June just in time for the summer. She saw a need for women who wanted to have more coverage. Huss began designing swimwear to give women more confidence. This first collection is a classic all black suit that is not too trendy. The sizes of this swimwear range from XS to XXL. She has designed three tops and three bottoms to mix and match along with a very feminine swim dress. Huss said that she had always dreamed about working in fashion as she was growing up and took sewing classes in high school. Moving on to a private college in St. Paul, Minn., she went on to receive a bachelor's degree in apparel designs and Catholic studies. After graduation, she moved to Los Angeles and procured a job with a women's clothing brand Leo and Nicole. She worked there for five years as a technical designer. Because of her love for the beach and the ocean she decided to transplant to San Diego. She quickly found a job as a technical designer at Rylee & Cru. This company primarily makes clothing for kids. After working at this children's line for one-year, the pandemic struck and she found herself jobless. Having a lot of free time, she started designing on her own, which evolved into Siena and Co. Huss said the brand name comes from her own name since her mother had named her after St. Catherine of Siena. When she was younger, she had traveled abroad and especially loved the town of Siena, Italy. She was inspired by this beautiful town and the Italian Riviera. It was serendipitous that it was the feast of St. Catherine of Siena on the day I was interviewing her. Moving forward after launching her first collection, Huss's goal is to expand with coverups, beach attire and resort wear. She aims to incorporate the evergreen palette of red, olive, and eggplant. Huss wants to ensure there is dignity for the models wearing the swimwear and ethical working standards in the factories that sew them. Everything is made here in the U.S. And Huss is offering free shipping for life if you sign up on the website. To view this new swimwear collection, visit siena-co.com. Diana Cavagnaro is an internationally renowned Couture Milliner based in San Diego. Learn more about our hat designer, teacher, and blogger at DianaCavagnaro.com.

Nonetheless, LaCava concluded: “This was a great opportunity to test an idea that everybody was safer and to make a wide-open statement about outdoor dining. The challenge we have as a City is to let businesses know what the rules are, so they can make decisions as to how to invest their money (improving outdoor spaces).”

SELLER TESTIMONIAL FOR 7520 MAR AVE LA JOLLA CA 92037

Not one realtor or broker believed I could get 3 million for my house except David. They were all trying to convince me to sell it for less to get rid of it. And I mean they were saying in the low 2s and that is not going to happen. He never tried to convince me to settle or take an offer less than what I wanted. When I said no, he listened and told the potential buyers no. He somehow will convince them to give me more money. He strategizes very well. Like he has this game plan on how to get me what I want. He's done it time after time with many of the offers that I have received. We had 10 formal offers between $2,200,000 and $3,200,000 and 7 low ball cash verbal offers. I never ever expected David nor has any agents in my past has ever achieve that for me.

Broker David has gotten me offers as high as $3,200,000. Nobody would believe that happened. He did that not once but twice at $3,200,000. The buyers of my house did offer $3,100,000, but dropped to $3,000,000 because they wanted some concessions. That was fine because as I mentioned before, I really wanted $3,000,000 and I got what I wanted, so again he got me not once but twice $3,100,000 offers, that seems to be David's slogan, not once but twice, lol. David has sold over a dozen of the same properties two and three times over. But never in my wildest dream that I would get offers beyond that. David has special skills at negotiating with the buyers/agents. Not sure how he does it but he is the miracle worker. I will be more than happy to refer any of my friends and family to have David R. Indermill represent them. I look forward to David representing me on many more real estate transactions!

The multiplicity of names: their origins, customs, and significance

Doing it Better

By Natasha Josefowitz, Ph.D.

A new great-granddaughter was just born. Her parents named her Juniper. I thought it was a beautiful name, but was curious as it is a type of a tree. I talked to my grandson who said that several of their friends are calling their infants by tree names, wanting to be ecologically sensitive. They mentioned some friends who named their sons Oak and Ash and a daughter called Willow. This made me start to think about the various categories that people's names fall into such as flowers, gemstones, months of the year, colors, etc. Over the years people have named their daughters Rose, Daisy, Violet, Iris. In French a daisy is called a marguerite, hence Margaret. Then there are names of gemstones such as Amber, Opal, Pearl, and Ruby. There are names after the months of the year, April, May, and June; a popular name in France is Auguste. I was once interviewed by someone called January Jones. There is also a name depicting the time of day, Dawn. Then there are common last names referring to colors, like Miss White, Mr. Black, Mrs. Brown, Gray, Green, Gold, or Silver. My parents had a neighbor named Ben Blue, and I had a student whose last name was Orange. As a redhead I was often referred to as Red. I know someone named after the planet Venus and someone else called Starr. There are also conventions about names. For instance, in Spain children carry both their mother and father's family names, hence Pablo Ruiz Picasso. In the Jewish tradition, one should name a newborn son by his father or grandfather's name, but only if deceased. In Christian tradition, boys are often named Junior or the third or the fourth. There are instances where a child's first name is the last name of an ancestor. In the olden days, last names depicted professions such as Baker or Tailor. There are patronymic names such as Johnson, son of John, even though no one may remember anyone called John in the ancestral line. In Arabic the prefix Bin (as in Bin Laden) or Ibn (Ibn Saud) also mean "son of." The same holds true in Israel for the prefix Ben, as in Ben Gurion. The Scottish Mac or Mc, such as McGregor, and the Irish O', as in O'Brien, also represents patrimony. However, in Greece, instead of a prefix, they use a suffix such as Dimitropoulos, son of Dimitrios. It is interesting to note that all of the names above were sons of, and not daughters of... In other words, the lineage is only on the male side. Parents often hope for a boy to carry on the family name.

In France, the prefix de or des originally denoted the place where one comes from, as in one of our commentators: Lisa des Jardins, which translates as "Lisa from the gardens." In Japan the family name comes first, followed by the given name, indicating the importance of family. In China, the names are also in that order and the given name is often a trait one hopes the child will have. Following Russian tradition, my name at birth was Natalia Mironovna, or daughter of Miron, which was my father's first name, while my brother's name was Alexander Mironovich, son of Miron. However, throughout the generations, all of these names have lost their original intent. Names also go through fashion cycles. I remember a couple of generations ago Biblical names were popular, and I knew Noahs, Joshuas, and Adams. Nowadays it is popular for girls to have traditionally male names or gender-neutral names like Robin, Jordan, or Alexis. However, it is not common for boys to be given girls' names. We also use diminutives. For instance, Elizabeth is often called Beth, Betty, Betsy or Liz. Then there are endearing nicknames such as Honey or Sugar, or even some animal names such as Kitten or Monkey. One should also check on how initials spell out; for instance, Sally Ann Davis, comes out as SAD, or Mark Anthony Dixon, whose initials spell MAD. There has been a trend recently for women who marry to keep their maiden names or hyphenate their last names, using both their maiden and husband's last name. The names we are given at birth reflect our heritage, culture, and family ties as well as how we perceive ourselves and how we are perceived in the world. Memorial Day Fact:

Thank you to all of you who have served and or have loved ones that have served. We appreciate your sacrifices

Originally known as Decoration Day and celebrated on May 30th, Memorial Day originated in the years following the Civil War and became an official federal holiday in 1971 and was moved to the last Monday of May. Originally it was to commemorate the fallen soldiers of the Civil War but once WW1 occurred and then subsequent wars, the day has evolved to commemorate fallen soldiers of all wars.
