

Gubernatorial Recall Election set for Sept. 14; What do San Diegans think?

There are similarities – and differences – in the upcoming Tuesday, Sept. 14 California Gubernatorial Recall Election compared with the last successful one in 2003. That election saw then-Gov. Gray Davis replaced by actor Arnold Schwarzenegger.

One major difference this time around is there are only about a third as many candidates, 46, compared with the crowded field of 135 candidates who sought to replace Davis on the October 2003 ballot.

This year's Sept. 14 recall field of candidates to replace Gov. Gavin Newsom includes GOP politicians, a reality TV personality, a YouTuber, a retired detective, a cannabis advocate, several business owners, and a new-age shaman. Unlike 2003 however, this recall election does not include anyone with Schwarzenegger's star power or appeal.

The Recall Election ballot will have two parts. Voters will be asked if Newsom should be recalled (removed). Following that recall question, all qualified replacement candidates for the office of governor will be listed. Write-in replacement candidates for the office of governor can also run. That Certified List of Write-in Candidates will be available on Sept. 3.

Polls leading up to the special election are indicating that Republicans, in general, are enthusiastic about it, while Democrats are lukewarm about it, which may or may not be reflected in partisan turnout on Sept. 14. Though Newsom could be hurt by strong GOP voter turnout and weak Democrat turnout, Democrats outnumber Republicans statewide by a wide margin of 22 percentage points.

Newsom also has a large war chest. His camp reportedly has raised $32 million to fight his recall, including several donations of $1 million or more. State law allows the target of a recall to accept unlimited sums of money. Challengers, however, can only accept a maximum of $32,400 from each individual donor.

If the recall should be successful, it could have serious statewide and national implications, as a Republican governor in California could alter the balance of power in Washington, D.C. If 88-year-old Democratic Sen. Dianne Feinstein (D-Calif.) were to retire or die before her term ends, while a Republican governor is in office, that would give a GOP leader the opportunity to appoint her replacement and, presumably, restore a Republican majority in the U.S. Senate.

WHAT ARE SAN DIEGANS SAYING?

With the 2021 Newsom recall election about two weeks away, San Diego Community Newspaper Group did a random poll, not scientifically valid, to gauge the mood of San Diego beachfront residents on whether they believe California's current governor should be recalled.

Here's what they had to say:

"I, along with nearly 8 million other Californians comprising almost 62% of the state's voters, elected Newsom in 2018," said Tom Coat of Pacific Beach. "Now, a much smaller minority of voters is taking advantage of recall rules badly in need of change to attempt to cancel out our votes. That's not how a democracy should work."

"I would never seek to recall any elected official whose primary focus during a historically deadly pandemic has consistently been to protect the health and lives of his constituents. The state finance department puts the cost of the recall at $276 million. For $276 million we could provide 55,200 college scholarships of $5,000 to low and middle-income students. I could support spending $276 million on scholarships that would change lives. I can't on a ridiculous recall effort," Coat said.

"Although Newsom deserves replacement, the more than $200 million costs of removing him from office is too expensive, since the next gubernatorial election is quite soon – November 2022," said Phyllis Minick of La Jolla.

"Newsom's mismanagement of California is demonstrated by our uncontrolled fire damage, failure to ensure a safe electrical grid, neglect of water conservation, overwhelming homelessness, uninformed anti-COVID mask mandate, attempted to overturn of Prop 13, highest gas prices in the U.S., and among the lowest national K-12 school rankings (37th place). This state, which is bigger and industrially better than most countries warrants more efficient leadership," Minick said.

"California's 'two-part ballot' recall process is ridiculously flawed and fundamentally unfair," said Karl Rand of PB. "It should be replaced with a single-question ballot that allows the targeted incumbent to run head to head, directly against any and all replacement candidates."

"The good news: there is a pending California Senate Bill (SCA 3 - Allen) that would end this two-part ballot folly for future recalls. The bad news: SCA 3 will not apply to this recall. As a matter of fundamental fairness, I urge everyone to vote no on this recall, and push for the passage of SCA 3 to repair our broken recall process," Rand said.

"He should not be recalled," said Glen Rasmussen of La Jolla. "There are no valid grounds because his actions have been consistent with the will of the majority of Californians."

"I feel it is a waste of time and money in pursuing the recall since the general election when Newsom is up for reelection, is next year," said Ellen Citrano of PB. "Recalls should be used for egregious behavior, failures or criminal acts and not just because some people don't like or agree with what a leader did during an unprecedented crisis."

pilot program has been endorsed by all City-recognized PB community groups. The revenue that will come from the parking district will support projects that reduce congestion, improve traffic and parking, finance mobility-focused projects, and way-finding signs.”

But not everyone is convinced of the need for the new parking pilot, how it’s been conceived, or the means by which it will be concluded and a decision made as to whether it’s been successful or not and whether it should be terminated – or continued.

Gordon Froehlich, previously a PB Parking Advisory Board member representing residents and a dissenting voice opposing paid metered parking, said it’s an idea whose time should never have come.

“Parking meters just do not fit in this type of town, a Southern California beach community,” Froehlich said. “Our beach access is important to the City’s recreation program. Parking meter spaces will result in more commercial visitors taking beach parking. We shouldn’t price local families out of a day at the beach.”

Though generally supportive of the parking pilot program, Ed Gallagher of PB is concerned that it may have flaws.

“We need to support our local businesses and generate revenue for community needs and I agree that the metered parking pilot on Garnet sounds like a good solution,” Gallagher said offering this caveat, “As with many new initiatives, it is hard by definition to anticipate unintended negative consequences, such as beach tourists or business district employees parking all day in surrounding residential neighborhoods.”

Added Gallagher: “A true pilot should have a fixed sunset date and clear measures of success. This pilot has neither, as far as I can tell. If it’s as successful as advocates believe it will be — and I hope it will be — then the community will clamor for the pilot’s reinstatement. If there are issues as many detractors fear, then the community need not do anything to end the test. The onus is on the advocates to build a better mousetrap, and re-pitch an improved metered parking test that addresses the concerns from the first failed pilot.”

Katie Matchett, president of nonprofit beautifulPB, which is working to make the beach community more sustainable, said: “I’m excited we’re taking on something we’ve been talking about for so long. It opens up a lot of opportunities to manage our parking resources better. It also opens up some funding opportunities.”

Noting beautifulPB has been part of the community’s parking board since its inception, Matchett noted, “It’s going to be flexible. Nothing about this program is set in stone.”

SCOTT’S PB SPOTLIGHT

I often get met with surprise when people learn that I grew up here in PB since there aren’t too many “locals” anymore. It got me thinking, there’s a lot of interesting people and businesses in our community that people may not know about if they are new to the area. So, each month I will be spotlighting someone within our community that I think has an interesting story to share.

This month’s feature: Ron Williams – PB Plumbing

If you’re thinking you don’t know Ron, you’re wrong, you do. Everyone knows him or at least you’ve seen him driving his trusty yellow 1970’s Ford work truck, Old Yeller or you’ve seen him still ripping at over 60 at one of the reefs in Bird Rock or the beach breaks in PB. He still has that 12 year old mischievous grom smile and unruly blonde hair that screams “I grew up at the beach”. I can sum up Ron in 3 words.....Ron’s the man! I made the long commute to his house, he’s my nextdoor neighbor, and we had a killer 45 minute talk in his workshop surrounded by old bikes, numerous surfboards, old surf posters and all kinds of plumbing stuff. All while sipping on his favorite adult beverage.....an ice cold Banquet beer. Some of what we talked about I already knew, but even after 17 years of friendship, a 10 day surf trip to Scorpion Bay, a few too many Banquet beers over the years on the driveway, numerous waves shared at the reefs and at Law St and countless other good times, he still awed me with some kick-ass old school PB stories. Again, Ron is the man!

Ron was born in Pasadena where his dad worked for the railroad. When he was 2 the family packed up and moved to Crown Point, then moved back to LA a few years later and then back again to North PB when he was still in elementary school. He attended PB Elementary, then PB Jr High (yes, it was a junior high for many years before it switched to a “middle school”) and then Mission Bay. Once again the family, now 1 girl and 3 boys, moved back to LA due to his dad’s work with the railroad. That’s where he met his wife Donna, who is absolutely beautiful and an amazing lady. 47 years later they’re still together, still in love and have 3 kids and 4 grandkids. They lived on Law St for over 30 years and a few years ago sold that house and moved into the home on Wilbur he grew up in after his mother Judy (who also was kick-ass) passed away.

Ron started his plumbing career in an odd fashion. Just barely out of school, him and Donna were living in Mission Beach and he needed a job. His dad met a guy at a party and said his son needed a job and shortly after Ron started in plumbing and general construction. He worked for years with some of the who’s who in LJ and PB doing plumbing and construction work and really started solidifying his reputation as a really good, reliable and honest plumber. As is life, times change and people need to progress. So with that he went and got his license and started in own company in 1994, RW Plumbing. Roughly a year later, a longtime PB family, the Taylors, who had owned PB Plumbing gave up the business and name PB Plumbing and Ron being PB to the core, humbly took the PB Plumbing name. Over 25 years later, he’s still going above and beyond for people in the community as one of the most respected plumbers and tradesman in the area. He does zero marketing and all of his business is by referral, another testament to his undeniable workmanship.

As our Banquet beers were getting dangerously close to empty and I needed to commute the 20 feet home to make dinner for my wife and kids, I asked Ron what advice would he give a new business owner knowing what he knows know. His answer exemplifies all things great about Ron Williams.....“be honest, be loyal and work hard”. Words of wisdom we should all live by and that are lacking these days. I know a lot of amazing, interesting, cool, knowledgeable etc people but there are few people I look up to, admire and strive to be as good of a person as they are. Ron is one of those people. He has lived his life as a family man and a truly good person who puts his family first, his friends second, his customers third and himself last. Again, Ron is the man!

If you know of someone you think has an interesting story, send me an email scott@isellbeach.com with their info and why you think they would be a good person/business to spotlight and will consider them for a monthly spotlight.

PB BEACHFEST DOWNSIZED

Discover PB’s annual Pacific BeachFest will return Oct. 2 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., but the event is being downsized due to COVID. “BeachFest is being scaled down this year to only the 5K run and beach volleyball tournament,” said Sunny Lee, executive director for Discover PB, the business improvement district that holds the family friendly festival. “This is due to the pandemic causing indirect obstacles in the event industry that made it impossible to put on the full event.”

The free festival typically offers live music, action sports on the sand, a fish taco contest, and local artisan goods for sale, and is held along the boardwalk from Felspar to Thomas streets in Pacific Beach. This year marks the 23rd anniversary of Beachfest, which draws more than 50,000 visitors annually.

NEW DIVE COASTER TO OPEN NEXT SPRING

SeaWorld San Diego will be opening the dive coaster, Emperor, in March 2022. Joining other thrill rides at the park, Emperor will be the tallest, fastest, and longest dive coaster in California, as well as the only floorless dive coaster in the state.

Named after the world’s largest penguin, the new coaster will mimic this species’ amazing underwater diving ability. Climbing to 153 feet with feet dangling in the air, riders will be suspended on a 45-degree angle at the crown of the ride before plunging down a 143-foot face-down vertical drop, accelerating to more than 60 miles per hour. Riders will also experience inversions, barrel rolls, Immelmann loop, hammerhead turn and flat spin as they race along the nearly 2,500 feet of track. Each of the floorless ride cars will hold 18 riders in three, six-person rows. This is the first seating configuration of its kind in North America.

“Due to the unprecedented challenges of the last two years, the opening was delayed, we know this has been disappointing and we’d like to thank our guests for their patience for this long-awaited ride to open,” said John Dunlap, SeaWorld San Diego park president.

Marine veterans start nonprofit to help vets and Mother Earth

By DAVE SCHWAB

Transitioning out of the military, two Pacific Beach Marine veterans have found a new purpose donating medical marijuana to veterans and doing beach cleanups.

Austin Fagen and Gregor Coffaro have started a nonprofit, Purpose First, to donate medical marijuana to veterans. They've also created Purpose First Beach Clean Ups to give back to the community.

The business duo claims they had an epiphany in discovering "just how life-changing this medicine (medical marijuana) truly is."

"We immediately became part of nonprofit organizations that donated free medical marijuana to veterans," said Coffaro, who left the Corps in 2017. He said medical marijuana helped him "calm down and become myself again as I was transitioning out."

Adding medical marijuana was such a positive change in his new normal, Coffaro said he practically "begged to voluntarily create a weed for warriors nonprofit so veterans suffering post-traumatic stress disorder or depression could get free donations of lab-tested cannabis from licensed dispensaries."

Coffaro added he and Fagen felt it was important to get veterans away from the standard practice of using opiates prescribed by the Veterans Administration to treat their maladies.

PURPOSE FIRST

Contact: www.purposefirst.us, purposecannabis@gmail.com.
Instagram: @purposefirstbeachcleanups.

"We connected veterans of all walks of life and taught them to use natural plant medicine versus the opioid cocktail provided by the VA," said the two Marines. "Cannabis genuinely touched our hearts and helped us find empathy for the things that really matter in this world. At Purpose First, we are building the most sustainable business to lead by example. To create the best cannabis for the people, while giving back the most to the community. We love our people and planet."

Of their Purpose First Beach Cleanups, which started about six months ago, Fagen said: "We are designing our business to give back to the community. We host biweekly beach cleanups to educate our community, keep our ocean clean and bring people together. We have saved thousands of pounds of trash from polluting our ocean."

Fagen said they typically meet up for beach clean-ups at 11 a.m. at Crystal Pier on Mondays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, and spread out from there to comb the beach, and a couple blocks into Pacific Beach's business district, looking for refuse.

"We wanted to bring the community together and raise awareness and do something about the trash problem," Fagen said. "We were seeing trash floating down Garnet like tumbleweeds, and we wanted to do something about it."

Added Fagen: "We are shocked at how much trash is out in PB. It's astonishing and eye-opening.

The single thing we pick up most is single-use plastic such as coffee cups, soda bottles, beach toys, etc. We pick up 50 to 100 pounds of trash in half an hour to an hour."

Fagen pointed out that "unfortunately, plastic never degrades. It will never break down in the environment. It will last forever. The first piece of plastic ever made in the '50s is still on the Earth today."

"We acknowledge our precious Mother Earth is in trouble," said the two Marine vets on their website, purposefirst.us. "Purpose First is designed to do no harm to our environment. We're working for a brighter tomorrow and believe in leaving the Earth better than how we found it. We must be the change we seek in this world."

Palmys serves healthful dishes at restored historic house

By DAVE SCHWAB

Business was so good that the new owners of 1920s-era cottage Palmys in Pacific Beach had to actually close for final adjustments on their official opening day on Aug. 30.

"It was a good problem to have," said co-owner and native Australian Dave Harper, of his new corner eatery at Felspar and Cass streets, which most recently was Brick & Bell, and before that Cafe 976 for 20 years.

"It was a coffeehouse, it has a beautiful garden, it's a historic house," said restaurant general manager Michael Harrison discussing the obvious appeal of the revitalized outdoor dining spot near PB Post Office and Chase Bank. "This is one of the first of three buildings actually here in Pacific Beach built in 1920. We saw potential here, both with the building itself, and also the space that it has outdoors. It's pretty unique to PB. It really drew us in."

As to opening early, Harrison noted: "There's a lot of history in this space. And rather than just invite people to poke around and see what we're doing, we decided to open up just our breakfast menu and actually showcase some food and have some drinks going. We wanted to invite the community in to experience what we are developing."

What's new?

"Community involvement," answered Harrison adding, "We've got a little market space inside where we have not only items that we've created to sell, but also have outside vendors selling handmade goods, surf wax. We'll have surfboards on display and also for sale."

Harper said the business is structured in a very intentional way. "We look for old buildings, an institution within the community," he said. "And we look to strip them back to their original beauty."

Harper added that was "quite easy to do" given the '20s craftsman bungalow style of their building at 976 Felspar St. which they customized by adding natural elements of stone, wood, and plants to the existing architecture.

The objective in returning the building to its past glory was to "make it a place where the community could feel part of," said Harper noting, "We use local surfboard shapers, local vendors, as much as possible."

PALMYS CAFE

Where: 976 Felspar St.
Hours: 7 a.m.-4 p.m. daily.
Contact: 858-886-7111.

On top of that, said Harper, they hired a local surfer/historian, Ken Lewis, who dug up old photos of the building now hanging on Palmys' indoor walls.

"We see ourselves as the new chaperones of an existing community institution and hub, and so we're trying humbly and authentically to offer it back to the community with a few enhancements. If we had a dollar for everyone who came by and said that they love this garden, and they sat there, and they got married – we'd be rich already."

Pointing out a historic building deserves to have a community feel to it, co-owner Dillon Berkabile noted "people feel more comfortable and more like themselves when they're in a home. We've created an environment where it makes them want to come and

Harper said Palmys will be an all-day cafe open for breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

Describing their cuisine, Harper said, "It's a good mix of healthy options. We have lots of healthy bowls, salads, and old favorites as well. Something for everyone, as if you were at home. With the food, we like to use the term elevated simplicity. We focus on ingredients, seasonal and local produce. If you do things simply, but very well, it's always excellent."

"We're eager to show the community what we have," concluded Harrison.

Pacific Beach and La Jolla Girl Scouts earn prestigious Gold Awards

Daniela Zoni

Four local young women have reached the pinnacle of the Girl Scout leadership experience by earning the Girl Scout Gold Award. They were among a record 87 local Girl Scouts who were honored during a socially distanced Gold Award ceremony on the promenade at Liberty Station.

Daniela Zoni of Pacific Beach has reached the pinnacle of the Girl Scout leadership experience by earning the Girl Scout Gold Award. Zoni is a third-generation Girl Scout and a 12-year member of Troop 6226, led by Jeni Bernatz. Her parents are Jennifer and Vincenzo Zoni. She is a senior at Mission Bay High School and plans a career as a nurse.

While volunteering at Feeding San Diego, Zoni learned about homelessness and food insecurity. She discovered that — while the organization's low-income and homeless clients often request food for the pets that provide them with companionship and security — it is rarely available. To address the issue, Zoni partnered with the Bethlehem Food Pantry, located at the Good Shepherd Ministry Center in El Cajon. She set up a designated pet food section at the pantry, created a video to use when educating Girl Scouts and members of the public about the need, publicized the pantry, and helped distribute the pet food at the pantry.

Zoni also established a relationship with the San Diego Humane Society, which provided pet food for her project. Finally, she developed a document about how to create pet food pantries and shared it with 39 other local pantries. To overcome the challenges of pandemic restrictions, Zoni and many of the other 2021 Gold Award Girl Scouts had to significantly revise their approaches to executing their projects.

The importance of our homes, our sanctuaries, as extensions of our egos

Doing it Better

By Natasha Josefowitz, Ph.D.

A bird's nest, a wolf's den, a bear's cave, a dog's kennel, a person's room or house or apartment or castle — these are the sanctuaries, the safe places where one retreats to bear and raise one's young, to hide from predators, to seek refuge from the world.

A cave or a hole dug into stone sheltered our ancestors. Today we have four walls, a roof, a floor. In some places it is a wall made of sun-dried mud bricks with cow dung for mortar, a straw roof, and an earthen floor. In other places it is corrugated cardboard walls with a piece of sheet metal for the roof. Then there are barracks for soldiers or migrant workers, cots in rows in homeless shelters, dorm rooms for students, rented rooms in boarding houses, maids' rooms, beach cottages, mountain cabins, condos in high rises, houses with small yards or large gardens, farms, estates, castles.

What they all have in common is a name: Home. It is a place to return to after a day away, a place to rest, to replenish oneself. It can also be a place of strife, of more work cooking and cleaning, but at the end of the day, there is a bed, four walls, a roof against the elements — safety.

Those of us who can, buy a house or a condo, fix it up, furnish it, and live in it. This space represents who we are — a part of ourselves for the world to see. It is our home and an ego-extension. It is not just a location or a style of house — nor is it only landscape or decor. It is the fulfillment of dreams or failure of them; it is the place of comfort, of refuge, of privacy. A place we can take off our shoes, put our feet up, and be ourselves without the demands of the outside world.

Many of life's most emotional moments happen in our homes. The walls resonate with the memories of conversations, of tears and laughter, of children's voices, of parents long gone.

We look to create the perfect home environment for ourselves, for our families. We spend time buying furniture, deciding on fabrics, on colors for our walls, on the material for our floors: tile, marble, wood, carpets — all give different messages to the visitor: formal or cozy, grand or fun, traditional or innovative. Our homes tell on us; they tell our secrets.

What we place in our homes are symbols of ourselves. Walking around someone's home, we understand the person who lives there better. What are the pictures on the walls, what photos are out, what are the books on the shelves, how is the furniture arranged? Does the home have little furniture and few objects or is it cluttered, as mine is?

And then there is the color scheme. Is it neutral and peaceful, is it colorful and exciting? I once visited Audrey Hepburn in her house near Geneva, Switzerland. Everything was white in the living room, and she wore white, but the library was in primary colors. So she blended into her living room, but contrasted in her library. It was very dramatic, and it fit a great actress.

We can fall in love with a house, grow into it, and then outgrow it and move on to something larger, or move to a smaller house or apartment, move to the city or the country. But every home we have ever lived in will also live within us. We are the sum of all our living spaces and recreate wherever we go some small part of where we have been — of who we were.

Some years ago, after the death of my mother, my daughter and her husband had just bought a house. So we shipped my mother's furniture to Toronto and in one day my daughter had her living room, dining room, and two bedrooms completely furnished. One grandson slept in his grandfather's bed; whenever I visited, I slept in my mother's bed in the guest room.

The wonder of it was that somehow I did not have to leave behind my family home in Beverly Hills where I grew up; it was recreated in Canada. I felt embraced by the old familiar surroundings of my mother.

It is wonderful when certain treasured family belongings can move either with us as we move or go to our children for them to pass on to the next generation.

These become our heirlooms, our treasures; they fill up our homes and make them the sanctuaries that draw us back to elicit the familiar response: "It's so good to be home."
