La Jolla group opposes new belvedere at Windansea beach

By DAVE SCHWAB

Replacement of a belvedere destroyed by vandals years ago at Windansea in La Jolla has become a bone of contention between competing groups arguing over whether a new structure there would block views and threaten shoreline erosion.

La Jolla Parks and Beaches, Inc. on June 1, 2020, approved plans for the replacement of a historic belvedere at Windansea beach. The previous belvedere. constructed around 1912, was destroyed in the early '80s, apparently hauled down by a vehicle using chains.

Belvederes, or gazebos, are roofed, open-sided galleries usually commanding fine viewpoints. Such is the case with the recent move to resurrect Windansea's belvedere as an ad hoc group, known as Preserve Windansea Beach Association, has formed to block the proposal.

"Preserve Windansea opposes building any type of construction on the sensitive shoreline public beach at Windansea La Iolla," said PWBA in a statement. "There are holes in the bluff at the proposed construction site. We are supported by residents at Windansea along Neptune, throughout La Jolla, and in San Diego at-large via a petition with 681 signatures. We have raised a considerable sum of money to gift the City for a 'sustainable overall plan' to improve Windansea shoreline that does 'not' require a City development permit."

Belvedere project landscape architect Jim Neri, who has worked on numerous coastal park improvement projects in La Jolla, including restoration of the Children's Pool Plaza, said replacing the former Windansea belvedere is justified.

"Since 2018 we've been presenting this project to the community and all major groups in La Jolla have supported it," said Neri. "What we're up against is some people who don't understand the history of the place, how important these belvederes are in providing shade and comfort to people, especially those convalescing while providing coastal access to everyone. A lot of people can not get down to the beach physically. But they're a part of the universal (coastal) access that has been mandated by the Americans With Disabilities Act."

Belvedere opponents argue the structure would bring unwanted elements into the community.

"This gazebo will bring latenight crime, noise, and be a nuisance to the residents at Windansea, as the previous one did and was torn down in 1983 due to being a nuisance and not maintained," said PWBA. "This parcel and site are not designated by the City or state as historical, as no gazebo in La Jolla is designated officially historical.

"We do not need this unnecessary structure blocking the iconic views at Windansea. We do not understand why the applicant wants to build a structure blocking views for all when there are many beaches within La Jolla and San Diego with sunshade structures, trees, grass, and gazebos for the few who do not like the sun. This is a natural shoreline beach about the sun and open views to be preserved for all."

Neri disputed the opponent's claims that a new belvedere would erode existing coastal bluffs or block the viewshed.

"Everything that we are doing is to protect the coastal bluffs from erosion," said Neri. "We are simply replacing the structure, which was destroyed by vandals, in the exact same place, the exact same size, with the exact same materials: exact everything. We're doing that (protecting bluffs) by constructing more of the post-and-chain series you see at Windansea now. We're doing that because people are loving the beach to death, starting new trails down to the beach. We're trying to direct people away from the sensitive coastal bluffs.'

Concluded Neri: "The belvedere itself is a way to get people who can't get down to the beach, to have a place to enjoy it. The estimated cost of the belvedere is just under $25,000, and we have a pledge from a donor already to fund that amount. This is not nostalgia. It has to do with coastal access. We do have the backing of the community to replace this belvedere, which was destroyed."

Ex La Jolla office manager pleads guilty to stealing $352,000

By NEAL PUTNAM

former office manager for La Jolla Nurses Homecare has pleaded guilty to wire fraud in which she embezzled $352,594 during her two year employment for the company that provides in-home care services for the elderly.

The victims of Ana Phimmasone, 37, who was also known as Ana Bravo, include 22 others as outlined in U.S. District Court records in San Diego.

Phimmasone could receive 20 years in federal prison when she is sentenced on March 7, 2022.

Phimmasone, of Chula Vista, appeared before Judge Mitchell Dembin on Nov. 23, and she is free on $5,000 bond.

She held a trusted position that allowed her access to client accounts from April, 2016 to April, 2018, according to the U.S. Attorney's office.

She has agreed to pay restitution back, according to court documents.

Phimmasone stole checks and deposited them into her own bank account. She falsely told victims the healthcare provider changed its payment processing company to PayPal, and then she set up a fraudulent PayPal account based on the name and personal info of an 87-year-old woman.

City Council approves vaccine mandate for City employees an Diego City Council voted 8-1 on Nov. 29 to pass an emergency ordinance requiring all current – and future – City employees to be fully vaccinated against COVID-19 or face termination.

By DAVE SCHWAB

The sole dissenting vote was cast by the only Republican on the nine-member City Council, Chris Cate from District 6, who is terming out in December 2022.

The vaccine mandate was made effective on Dec. 1. City contractors will also be required to be fully vaccinated, but they have until Jan. 3 to fulfill that requirement.

"Thank you to my colleagues for their support for this important item," said District 2 Councilmember Jennifer Campbell. "San Diego County has had roughly 400,000 confirmed cases of COVID-19 and 4,325 people in our county have lost their lives from it. Those 4,325 people were someone's parent, someone's spouse, someone's child.

"We must do everything we can to prevent the spread of this deadly virus and save lives. As City employees, especially those of us in charge of public safety, we must set an example, and act accordingly, in the interest of keeping San Diegans throughout the City healthy and safe."

Mayor Todd Gloria thanked the City Council following its vote noting it was a "team effort" to get the item on an agenda. Noting he was a student of history, Gloria then alluded to the 1918 flu epidemic that hit San Diego, during which the City Council then failed initially to vote in favor of implementing safety measures to address the pandemic immediately, though they did so ultimately after more deaths.

"This council has learned the mistakes of the past," Gloria said during a press conference.

"They understand the times we find ourselves in. And they understand that bold action is necessary to get us out of this pandemic. Let me be clear: Vaccines are the way out of this pandemic."

Added Gloria: "While we are still working to anticipate the operational impacts of this decision, what we know is that there have been operational impacts to date – missed trash collections, the two police academies that have been suspended, the fire academy that was suspended, the number of times that we've had to have operational changes to our fire-rescue response because we had over 30 firefighters quarantining. We are being impacted today, and that is why this action was so very necessary. I want San Diegans to be able to interact with the City's workforce with confidence."

Concerning the prospect of City employees losing their jobs, Gloria said: "I don't want to lose any member of our City family. I hope that none of them choose to leave City service. But more importantly, I don't want to lose any of them to COVID-19. And sadly to date, we've lost a few."

SOME TENANTS, SHOPPERS, AND NEIGHBORS NOT HAPPY WITH COLOR SCHEME

olors are clashing, claim some residents about a major remodel of Pacific Plaza Shopping Center well underway in on Garnet Avenue, just east of Ingraham Street.

Construction is mostly completed on the Pacific Plaza I portion of the sprawling mall immediately surrounding the Vonsanchored shopping center at 1702 Garnet Ave.

A less-intensive remodel is planned on the opposite side of the mall, in Pacific Plaza II, starting in April 2022. San Francisco-based architectural firm SZFM Design Studio is doing both Plaza I and II refits.

"Concerning the Pacific Plaza I Shopping Center remodel, a contractor confirmed there are 35 different colors painted there," said Ted Hilton, a resident living behind Pacific Plaza II. "From speaking with almost 30 people, many key tenants, business owners, managers or employees at Pacific Plaza I or II, all concurred, excluding one non-tenant, that numerous paint shades clash with each other and this is not the look they want."

Sudhish Mohindroo, a design principle for SZFM, defended the architectural redo of Pacific Plaza I, noting it is specifically designed to fit the surrounding neighborhood and community-at-large.

"The shopping center has been a hub of the community for a long time anchored by a very successful supermarket and drugstore (CVS)," said Mohindroo. "But unlike many neighborhood centers of this kind, this one has a series of small shops, which could just as well be anywhere on Garnet Avenue."

Added Hilton: "I believe our community would see a very different remodel if the architect had been local. There should have been an understanding not to remove the roof's Spanish tiles that are associated with higher-end properties. Pacific Plaza I now has huge swaths of unattractive dark gray imitation brick.

Noting SZFM is a boutique urban design and architecture firm, Mohindroo noted: "For 30 years we've worked on reinvigorating and revitalizing older downtowns as well as older shopping centers. That is our focus: How do we remake older properties, re-imagining them in today's context?"

"Many disparaging criticisms were heard about the Pacific Plaza I remodel. One tenant commented the bright red sign makes Vons look like McDonald's. Another believed they must be sampling colors. Our Pacific Beach centerpiece is in serious peril due to these remodels," Hilton said.

Construction at the Pacific Plaza I will continue into January and then Pacific Plaza II upgrades will begin in April.

Added Mohindroo: "We are very sensitive to trying to make these shopping center refits blend into the surroundings of the neighborhood. The vibe of this center was very casual and laid back. In PB, the buildings are eclectic and individualistic, casually expressing their personalities. We just felt it was time to freshen up the design of the center.

"PB generally has cooler colors, blues, and whites reflective of the water and the sky," continued Mohindroo. "We decided to change some of the (building) materials in the center to have horizontal siding, which is very common in PB and is a durable material. We also felt the wood shingles on some of the buildings are very difficult to maintain.'

Looking ahead to Pacific Plaza II's remodel next spring, Hilton said: "Management needs to be transparent and inform PB residents of any proposal for public input to help improve the look of our community. All of the buildings in Pacific Plaza II have wood shingles that complement its many trees; walking there is like being in a wooded village, an ambiance that needs to be maintained."

Noted Hilton: "Customers are less likely to return if they are surrounded by unmatched paint shades. Owners can alter that loss by placing tile on the roofs in Pacific Plaza II, along with (keeping) their normal earth-tone colors to continue complementing nearby properties."

Mohindroo said most of the Plaza I remodeling work, including work on the cornerstone courtyard behind the former Starbucks there fronting Konitos restaurant, will be done by Dec. 15.

"Well be putting the finishing touches on it, including the furniture, in January and February next year, and then it will be done," he said.

Of the new color scheme for Pacific Plaza I, the architect noted: "People are going to feel like they're walking on a main street with a variety of colors, but it's not going to be excessive. It's going to be very much like other places along Garnet Avenue, in terms of individual businesses having a certain personality, where you don't have a regimented single color scheme."

Concluded Hilton of Plaza II's future refit, "As community members, we need to make our voices heard that we want to maintain the same peaceful, natural wood look in Pacific Plaza II that makes the Café Athena outdoor dining experience one with nature. If there is to be a large-scale remodel, an alternative would be an upscale Mediterranean village with stucco, stone, and tile that would complement many of the businesses using the outdoors."

City releases red dye into Mission Bay to study water circulation

ontoxic fluorescent red dye released by the City into Mission Bay on Dec. 3 to study water circulation will help design future water quality improvements and ecological restoration projects at the bay.

The dye made of rhodamine is safe for use in drinking and saltwater and was expected to be visible for about a week. It will naturally be absorbed into the bay and is not expected to leave any residue on beaches or have any other longterm effects or affect recreational use of the bay.

The dye was released into the Rose Creek inlet to the bay from the Mike Gotch Memorial Pedestrian Bridge between Campland on the Bay and De Anza Cove. The movement of the dye will be recorded using visual and drone surveys and will aid City staff in the understanding of water circulation patterns within Mission Bay.

City supervising public information officer Arian Collins talked about the larger environmental project the dye is being used for.

"Some of the priority Mission Bay projects include wetland restoration and expansion, water quality improvements, protection and expansion of eelgrass beds, restoration of shoreline treatments, and expansion of habitats for endangered or threatened species," said Collins. The City is planning and designing shoreline treatments and habitat restoration projects to create wetlands in Mission Bay."

Concerning problems with the bay's water quality and ecology, Collins noted The Clean Water Act Section 303(d) list of impaired waterbodies identifies Mission Bay at the mouth of Rose Creek as being impaired for eutrophication (excessive nutrients due to runoff) and lead from upstream sources, and that Mission Bay at De Anza Cove is listed as impaired for Enterococcus, fecal coliform (bacteria) and total coliform.

Collins said a Mission Bay Contaminant Dispersion Study similar to this one was done in 2003 by Largier et al. and the results were incorporated into

Of how the dye study can improve understanding of the bay's circulation, Collins said: "The data collected on the movement and dispersion of the dye in the bay will help us understand circulation patterns and tidal influences. The dye acts as a proxy to contaminants that could enter the Mission Bay from Rose Creek and storm drains, and by measuring the dye we get data that can be fed into the hydraulic model of the bay."

Mission Bay Park was developed from the 1940s through the 1960s using a tidal marsh named "False Bay" by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo in 1542. The San Diego River had historically shifted its terminus from San Diego Bay to the south, to "False Bay" to the north, until 1852 when the United States Army constructed the first dike along the south side of the river to prevent it from shifting back to San Diego Bay.

In 1944, a Chamber of Commerce committee recommended the development of Mission Bay into a tourist and recreational center to help diversify the City's economy, which was largely military. In the late 1940s, dredging and filling operations began converting the marsh into what has become Mission Bay Park.

Twenty-five million cubic yards of sand and silt were dredged to create the landforms of the park, which now is almost entirely manmade. Today, the San Diego River is constrained on both the north and the south by levees (San Diego River Flood Control Channel), and it no longer drains to the ocean through Mission Bay other than a weir located at the entrance to Mission Bay.

Approximately one-half of the park was once state tidelands. Mission Bay Park was transferred to the City of San Diego with several restrictions, some of which were adopted by the Citizen of San Diego for adoption into the San Diego City Charter with others implemented as part of the California Coastal Commission's oversight of local planning and land-use decisions.

Among the limitations are:

- a ban on permanent residential development or any private ownership of land within the tidelands, and
- a limit on the commercial development of leaseholds of no more than 25% of the land area and 6.5% of the water area for private purposes.

This assures that most of the acres making up Mission Bay Park are available for public recreational use. Information on Mission Bay projects that will utilize dye study data can be found at sandiego.gov.

Remodeled Mandarin House reopens for indoor dining losed since an August 2019 kitchen fire, a freshly remodeled Mandarin House in La Jolla has been open for take-out since June and recently re-opened for indoor dining.

"We are about 93% done with remodeling," said Nelson Law, owner of the restaurant at 6765 La Jolla Blvd., just south of Bonair Street. "We're still working on our front facade and fixing things up in the dining room. We need to repair the north wall where someone had hit it with their car. We're going to put a big window in it."

Law characterized Mandarin House's return as a journey. "It took four months to get the insurance settled and then it took 12 months to get our first permits approved," he said. "Parts of the City's Building Department were slowed by COVID and things just took a while. Then it was just back-andforth getting the kitchen completely rebuilt with all new equipment."

The owner of Mandarin House said the dining room indoors has a new layout but not to worry, it won't be too different from what patrons are used to. "We've just kind of updated it," he said of the ambiance. "We kept the old-school feel. We are an old Chinese restaurant. We wanted to maintain that. But it is 2021. We just brushed it (design) up, gave it a little facelift and a new vibe. A lot of people like it. It appeals to our longtime customers, and our newer crowd as well."

Law added the restaurant had not been updated since the 1990s. "Finding new staff has also been a challenge in this climate," he added. "But we've got a good crew, full on the weekends, and we got all our chefs back."

The backroom of the Mandarin House will be available, with reservations, for group parties over the holidays. The restaurant will be open on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day serving an abbreviated holiday menu.

Law said their menu is "by and large the same with all of the old favorites."

The new and improved Mandarin House is now open six days a week and is closed Mondays. Hours are 11 a.m.-2 p.m., closed from 2-4 p.m., then re-opening again for dinner from 4-9 p.m. on Tuesdays through Saturdays. Sunday has a short day, 4-8:30 p.m.

"A lot of people are happy that we're back," noted Law adding, "We've been here since 1977. I'm 36 years old and a lot of our customers have been coming since before I was alive. And we're glad to have them."

Bishop's girls basketball: New coach provides continuity, wealth of experience ix-foot-four. Shot blocker. Imposing presence in the — what? She's the new coach.

Well, this is the way it is for Paris Johnson, the former Aztec standout — four-time All-Mountain West Conference, record-holder of Aztec game, season, and career shot-blocking marks — eclipsing her older sister Desiree, who is her assistant coach for Bishop's girls' basketball.

Paula Conway, the new athletic director at Bishop's, hired her from a list of multiple applicants. "I did full interviews," Paris acknowledges.

Johnson brings a host of skills to her new position, her first teaching job as well. A decade after she starred at San Diego State in basketball, world traveler, besides her heritage of having been born in Hawaii, which she Playing pro basketball in such exotic locales as Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates, and Australia.

And what does she bring to the Knights' basketball players, who are medium-sized at best — their shot blocker and presence in the middle graduated in May — but ready to lap up any insights their new coach can pass their way?

"She's open-minded," says starting point guard Angie Robles, who measures almost a foot shorter than her new coach/ mentor at 5 feet 5 inches tall. "She always checks in on us. She's always willing to talk if I need to."

Seems like that's part of the engine that keeps Robles running and gunning with the Knight offense. Surprisingly enough, she is one of two point guards Johnson starts every game. Renee Chong, another senior, also plays point. The two, Robles and Chong, rotate who help initiate the offense during each game.

Says Robles during a raucous photo-shoot/media day in the Bishop's gym with a pro photo sending fog, using bright red lights, and a "halo" circle players look through to create "surreal" photos, "I wouldn't be doing well if Coach 'P' weren't the new coach." They have a coach/player bond that feeds the insides of Robles, an active initiator who shares responsibility for igniting the Knight offense.

Chong, the other point guard, is more poetic. "We're looking forward to having fun, making memories winning as a team, playing with passion and competitiveness," she says. That's not hard to envision, even though there's no practice today on media day."

Can hair extensions damage my hair?

No, they will not. Actually, even very fine and damaged hair can become healthier if you're wearing hair extensions because they will protect your hair from things that could damage it like curling irons, blow dryers, styling heat and environmental damage. Because of the unique application bonding system, the extensions can be easily removed.

How do I maintain my extensions?

Judy is fully trained on how to educate her clients to professionally take care of their hair extensions at home. Judy will recommend hair care products, brushes, combs and appliances for use at home. Hairstyling is very similar to how you style your hair without extensions.

Scripps Oceanography 'SOARS' with simulator to study ocean/atmosphere machine with the capacity to hold 36,000 gallons of seawater and precisely mimic ocean and atmospheric conditions to study climate change was unveiled at a Nov. 29 ribbon-cutting ceremony at Scripps Institution of Oceanography at UC San Diego campus.

The 118-foot instrument, named Scripps Ocean Atmosphere Research Simulator, combines a wave tank with a wind tunnel along a 120-foot-long channel and takes up nearly the entire length of SIO's Hydraulics Laboratory. The machine can produce everything from floating sea ice to humid, rapidly evaporating surface waters. It will enable scientists to better understand processes influencing cloud formation and precipitation, and better understand future ocean conditions.

Experiments with SOARS can simulate how the ocean and atmosphere will interact when carbon dioxide levels in the atmosphere reach 500 parts per million (currently 416 ppm) and how ocean conditions affect the dispersal of plastic pollution at the surface. Scientists can also add inputs such as air pollutants including greenhouse gases for studies of potential climate change effects in current and future oceans and atmospheres.

The Scripps Ocean Atmosphere Research Simulator (SOARS) is the only instrument in the world capable of studying the current and future ocean and atmosphere boundary layer. With SOARS, scientists are understanding how human activities are changing the chemistry of the ocean and atmosphere, and how this could impact global climate. Lead researcher Grant Deane is pictured. ERIK JEPSEN/JUS SAN DIEGO

"The world's oceans have always been critical to the fate of human-kind," said physical oceanographer Grant Deane at SOARS dedication. Describing the interaction of the Earth's oceans and atmosphere as a "dance" and a "symphony," Deane noted the SOARS ocean-inalab is "a new note in that symphony, and we have to make sure it's not a sour one. That is why we built SOARS."

Added Deane: "With SOARS we can bring ocean storms into the laboratory and create an atmospheric composition to study the past, present, and future oceans with unprecedented fidelity, from polar to tropical conditions. And we can grow the organisms that play a critical role in these exchanging processes."

Researchers using SOARS can generate winds up to 63 miles per hour, which are storm-level speeds. The instrument can also chill winds to -20 degrees Celsius (-4 degrees Fahrenheit) and water to -2 degrees Celsius (-28 degrees Fahrenheit), which is enough to allow sea ice to form. The instrument can pump carbon dioxide into the channel to simulate how increased emissions are going to change nature, grow phytoplankton under natural light provided by skylights, and study conditions that range from polar to tropical. SOARS will use filtered seawater delivered directly from the Pacific Ocean via pumps on Ellen Browning Scripps Memorial Pier.

"When you think about climate research, oceans and atmosphere interacting, the only way you can understand what's happening is to be out there in an ocean on a boat," said UC San Diego Chancellor Pradeep K. Khosla. "But you don't control what's happening there. The goal of this facility is to bring the ocean into the building. This facility puts it all together and helps us understand how complex multidisciplinary interactions happen in the ocean out in the real world. It's a small investment on our part, but a really big investment for researchers in this area. This is the only facility of its kind in the world and it's going to bring people out here."

"I'm thankful as a policymaker to be able to keep California on the front lines of providing the data necessary to combat climate change," said state senator and president pro tem Toni Atkins who added, "It's no surprise" that this latest technological breakthrough in understanding climate change is a product of SIO and UC San Diego.

Characterizing SOARS as a "transformative project," 78th District Assembly Member

Christopher M. Ward said: "This facility will be able to recreate environmental systems in real-time to be able to understand the changing dynamics of the oceans and atmosphere and the potential dangers of sea-level rise along our coastline. SOARS will be an incubator and facilitator of world climate solutions and be a great resource."

"We're standing in front of the hydraulics lab that was built in 1964 for experimental instrumentation on a large-scale to understand the interactions of waves in the ocean tides," noted Margaret S. Leinen, vice chancellor for marine sciences. "The idea here is to re-create the ocean in this instrument and control the temperature of the water and the atmosphere and to grow plankton in it, and then measure those interactions with this state-of-the-art instrument. It is just incredible. There isn't anything like it, even on a small scale, anywhere in the world."

SOARS is expected to continue testing and commissioning this winter, and become available to researchers from Scripps and researchers around the world in January 2022.

The instrument cost $4 million to build — $2.8 million of which was awarded by the National Science Foundation, and the rest provided by UC San Diego.

Obituary: Scripps Research mourns passing of pioneering scientist Richard Lerner

Richard Lerner, MD, a scientific pioneer who developed technologies that had a major impact on science and medicine, and who played a critical role in shaping Scripps Research and San Diego's burgeoning life sciences sector, passed away on Dec. 2, 2021. He was 83 years old.

"Richard had a tremendous influence on science, the institute, and the lives and work of many of us at Scripps Research," says Peter Schultz, PhD, president and CEO of Scripps Research and a long-time collaborator with Lerner. "He was truly a giant and his vision, leadership and passion for science will be deeply missed."

A Stanford-trained physician-scientist, Lerner served as director and president of Scripps Research from 1987 through 2012. During his tenure, Scripps Research established a Florida campus and launched the institute's bi-coastal graduate school, now named the Skaggs Graduate School of Chemical and Biological Sciences. With its interdisciplinary research focus, the school soon ranked among the top 10 graduate programs of its kind in the US.

"Richard's fearlessness and bold ideas propelled Scripps Research to its current stature as one of the world's leading biomedical research institutes," says Schultz.

Paul Schimmel, PhD, a professor in the institute's Department of Molecular Medicine, says Lerner infused the institute with an esprit de corps that invigorated the science. "We felt we were with him on a non-stop adventure," says Shimmel, "like pioneers of the old west, who would transform medical research and its associated graduate education."

Lerner also recruited an impressive cadre of scientists to La Jolla in fields ranging from structural and computational biology to immunology and molecular medicine, and also established the institute's now top ranked Department of Chemistry.

Thoughts about gift giving: the motives and significance behind our gifts

Doing it Better

By Natasha Josefowitz, Ph.D.

y newspaper came today with a large, glossy supplement of ideas for gift giving. I also received several catalogs with holiday gift ideas. Some magazines are even trying to be helpful by designating categories: for the man who has everything, for the woman in your life (a generation ago the suggestion was giving her a vacuum cleaner), gadgets for seniors, and, of course, toys for children, even toys for dogs and cats. Given the ongoing pandemic, we are being urged to buy early in order to avoid predicted supply-chain delays.

So now the holiday season is upon us, the one that requires obligatory gifts to all family members and friends, and money to all the people in your life who render service. There is a protocol that if you are invited to someone's house for a meal, you bring a gift to the host or hostess, such as a bottle of wine, candy or flowers, or better still, a small potted plant so the hostess doesn't have to leave her guests in order to scurry around looking for

JCC HANUKKAH CELEBRATION

Due to a generous grant from the San Diego Seniors Community Foundation, the Lawrence Family Jewish Community Center at 4124 Executive Drive was able to create special Hanukkah celebration bags, filled with treasures, and deliver them to seniors in the community. In addition, the grant supported the center's annual Hanukkah party, which was further supported by a private donor.

The free party will take place from 1-2 p.m. in person (virtual, 9:30-10:30 a.m.) on Friday, Dec. 10 in the Senior Lounge. Meet with old friends or new while kibbitzing, sharing jokes, and telling stories with the senior department staff, Melanie and Sarah.

MBWC FUNDRAISER

Mission Beach Women's Club held a Military Outreach Ministries Collection on Dec. 7-8 at their club at 840 Santa Clara Place. MBWC partnered with the Military Outreach Ministries' Adopt-A-Family Program. MOM's mission is to serve a vastly underserved of junior enlisted military in San Diego County with basic needs to help stretch their limited funds. The community was asked to donate new, unwrapped gifts for children up to age 12. Donations were dropped off at the MBWC Clubhouse in Mission Beach.

a vase. If invited out to a restaurant, no gift is necessary.

I live in a retirement community where everyone's personal space is limited. We all bemoan too much stuff, so a gift should be something that doesn't take up room and doesn't last. I have eaten the chocolates, the homemade breads and jams, the cookies. I have also received flowers that eventually wilt, candles that were burned, and books that have been read and passed on.

What are the reasons for people to give gifts:

Appreciation — Thanking someone for something that was said or done. Often people feel under-appreciated, so this may be a most welcome gesture.

Special Occasion — An expected gift when invited to a birthday, graduation, or holiday party (unless the invitation says "no gifts, please").

Self-serving — Wanting to be well thought of or remembered or to make the person feel they owe you something in return.

Atonement — Out of guilt or reparation for some wrong doing to that person; the gift says please, forgive me.

Unexpected gift — Given for no special reason except to say I love you, I was thinking about you, I hope you are feeling better, in friendship, etc.

Charitable contributions — Some are expected as part of belonging to an organization. Others are according to one's interests. Some people like to donate small amounts to a large number of charities while others prefer to make a large contribution to one specific cause.

The choice of gifts, whether personal or professional, speaks of the relationship between giver and receiver. There are very specific gifts that would only be enjoyed by a particular receiver (such as an item of clothing where size and color matter), and there are generic gifts such as flowers and candy. Books can also fall into categories of specific or general (for example, I gave a book on grief to a recently widowed friend).

A gift does not always have to be an object. Sometimes a note, a card, a phone call, or a compliment will accomplish the same thing. A very expensive gift may be unappreciated by someone who is struggling financially as it can make the recipient feel they have to respond in kind. On the other hand, it could be something they may need, but cannot afford. This is a very delicate situation, walking the line between appreciation and possible embarrassment.

I wondered where the idea of giving Christmas gifts started. In 1860, a cartoonist, Thomas Nost, created the first image of a Santa Claus with an arm full of gifts. Then in 1868, Health and Home, a magazine, followed suit with a similar image and the toy industry got the message. Thus the idea of Santa Claus delivering gifts to children all around the world began.

We all have heard the expression:

"It is better to give than to receive." A 2008 Harvard study noted that spending money on others leads to lasting improvements in personal overall happiness. A longitudinal study from the University of Buffalo found that people engaged in supportive behavior—like running errands, cooking meals, babysitting (so that new parents can enjoy an evening off), walking the dog (when the owner is sick)—reduced the mortality rate compared to those who do not lend a helping hand. Moreover, a 2007 study in the journal Science states that donating to charity activates neural activity of the brain linked to reward processing areas.

The saying "It is more blessed to give than to receive" is attributed to Jesus (Acts 20:35 King James Version, 1604).

Mission Bay Bucs fall short in CIF Division V title game hile it came up a little short in the goal of winning the CIF Division V football championship, the Mission Bay High football team nonetheless has much to be proud of in 2021. Under head coach Greg Tate, the Bucs finished their campaign with a 41-19 loss to Palo Verde Valley in the Division V title game. Despite the loss, Mission Bay completed a stellar season with a record of 10-3.

By DAVE THOMAS

When asked what were some of the highlights for the season, Tate pointed out the individual seasons some of these guys had as well as making it to playoffs.

"My expectations are honestly the same every season," Tate commented. "I expect to be in the running for a league championship and to make a run at CIF, and I think depending on QB play, we can do that."

Led by some solid upperclassmen, Mission Bay only saw defeat at the hands of Christian High, University City, and the CIF title game with Palo Verde Valley. On the flip side of the coin, Mission Bay defeated 10 opponents, including putting together a six-game winning streak from early September to mid-October. For the season, the Bucs outscored the opposition 452-213.

A sizable chunk of the success Mission Bay had this season was in fact due to some seniors including quarterback Clash Orsborn.

"They (seniors) had a huge impact," Tate remarked. "They've been on varsity since 10th grade. They stepped up to the plate and pushed the team. We talk about every senior class leaving the program better than they found it, and they did that."

For Orsborn, his senior campaign will in fact be one to remember.

"A few highlights of our season were winning our first league championship in a while," Orsborn said. "This was something we as a team hadn't experienced before. I would say I had a very fun season with my teammates and many memories were made that I will never forget."

Even though the talented QB will be leaving the team and graduating in the spring, he thinks there is enough talent to put the Bucs back in the playoff hunt next fall.

"We will be losing some talented seniors," Orsborn said. "But the current junior class has lots of talented players who made a big impact this year and will continue to next season. The defense should be strong next season with a total of eight starters returning. Also, the coaches will continue to put our players in the right place to be successful."

One of the juniors slated to be back is outside linebacker HaTan Nguyen.

"Actually, being a winning team changes the whole feeling of going into the game," Nguyen said. "You have a lot more confidence when you know what you are capable of."

Nguyen, who finished with more than 50 total tackles this year, was a key component on the defensive side of the ball this season, helping Mission Bay to its 10-win season.

When asked what made the defense a success for much of the season, Nguyen noted: "Being able to tackle and being the aggressor when it comes to who gets the first jump."

PB HOLIDAY PARADE

Saturday, Dec. 11 noon-2 p.m. Join one of San Diego's oldest holiday parades, which starts on Garnet Avenue and Haines Street and heads west to Bayard Street. Come be part of this free, family-friendly holiday event or watch from the sidelines. If you would like to have a float or spot in the parade, fill out a form available on Discover PB's website and email it to vanessa@pacificbeach.org.

CHRISTMAS ON CRYSTAL PIER

This free event officially rang in the holiday season with a Christmas tree lighting on the pier on Dec. 4 at sunset, which was accompanied by the hanging of decorated wreaths along the length of the structure. Due to COVID, there were no photos with Santa this year.

Wreaths decorated by Pacific Beach businesses will now hang along the pier in December for all to enjoy. Crystal Pier will be lit up, as usual, again this year. Thanks to a partnership between Crystal Pier Hotel, Discover PB, and Big Josh Foundation, holiday lights, and the community's beloved tree, donated by Christmas Tree Country on Garnet Avenue, the event returned again this year and will be on exhibit until Jan. 1.

SANTA RUN

Saturday, Dec. 11. 5K Run: 9 a.m. Kids 1 Mile: 11 a.m. Dog 1 Mile: 11:30 a.m.

The San Diego Santa Run is back. Registration is now open for the ninth annual San Diego Santa Run. Cost is $50 for the Santa Run 5K and $30 for the kids mile with less than 400 spots left. The dog mile run limited to 125 spots has sold out. More than 20,000 Santas have participated in the run in previous years, but preparations are being prepared to make 2021 the largest Santa Run yet. Tell your friends, family, and neighbors to fill the streets of Pacific Beach with a sea of Santas. New this year, everyone will receive a timing chip with registration. Whether you run it, jog it, walk it, or skip it, everyone will receive an official result. And don't forget the Santa swag, which this year includes a Santa hat, sunglasses, a sunny Santa top, a belt, and a beard.

RETRO HOLIDAY

The parade theme this year is "Retro Holiday," so build a float or decorate your business with visions of holidays past. These events are sponsored by the San Diego Running Company, Woodstock's Pizza, and Christmas Tree Country.

FESTIVE COMMUNITY

"Discover PB is looking forward to holding all of the holiday festivities this year," said executive director Sunny Lee. "It will be great to have the community out together again for an event in Pacific Beach. We are always looking for sponsors and the parade could use some extra help financially this year. If anyone is interested in finding out more, they can reach out to sunny@pacificbeach.org."

PARADE DONATIONS

If you would like to pay a different amount in a donation toward the PB Holiday Parade, visit pacificbeach.org/donate/ and put PB Holiday Parade in the comments section.

Four properties located in Pacific Beach have been relisted for sale by Blackstone Affordable housing advocates are both and in shock and are concerned that this large disposition of residential units will no longer be in reach for lower tier renters. Prebys prioritized affordable living, which led to his low vacancy success.

Team Cairncross handled the debut sales totaling $22,340,000 in separate land deals for fourteen single-family lots where individual owners are already well into building their dream homes. Federal court backs San Diego Unified School District's vaccine mandate federal court has sided with the San Diego Unified School District in its efforts to protect staff and students by putting in place a COVID-19 vaccine mandate. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals followed the San Diego Superior Court in denying an "emergency" attempt to halt the mandate.

The 9th Circuit decision comes on the same day that San Diego County recorded its highest COVID-19 case count since September and the new Omicron variant has been detected in Los Angeles. The 9th Circuit agreed San Diego Unified is acting in the best interest of students, as opposed to discriminating on the basis of religion, as the plaintiffs had claimed.

The 9th Circuit wrote: "Appellants have not shown a likelihood of establishing that the mandate was implemented with the aim of suppressing religious belief, rather than protecting the health and safety of students, staff, and the community."

"We take seriously our responsibility to create a safe environment for our students and staff, and to protect students put at medical risk by being vaccinated," said Board President Richard Barrera. "This latest decision recognizes that we have both the responsibility to protect students and the authority to do so by implementing a vaccine mandate, which is really our best hope as a country to get this deadly disease under control."

The 9th Circuit ruling came on the heels of a decision by San Diego Superior Court Judge John Meyer to deny an emergency application to suspend enforcement of the San Diego Unified vaccine mandate by a North County Organization called, "Let Them Choose."

The 9th Circuit majority decision was sweeping, stating the request for an injunction "fails to raise a serious question as to whether the vaccination mandate is not neutral and generally applicable," the two criteria that are reviewed and applied under well-established precedent. The Court concluded the plaintiffs "have not carried their burden to establish a likelihood of success on the merits, or that they will suffer irreparable harm if this Court does not issue an injunction, or that the public interest weighs in their favor."

Under the mandate approved by the Board of Education to help prevent the spread of the virus in schools and the community, San Diego Unified will require students who are 16 and older (as of Nov. 1, 2021) to be fully vaccinated, excluding those with an approved medical exemption, in order to continue learning in-person.

"The Court majority correctly recognized that the district's legitimate interests include protecting the health and safety of students whose health would be placed at risk by being vaccinated, by providing a narrow medical exemption," said San Diego Unified counsel Mark Bresee.

At least 72 percent of San Diego Unified students 16 or older have been fully vaccinated as of Nov. 8, according to district data.

The Arc of San Diego presented the Winter Wonderland Fashion Show and Luncheon on Dec. 3 at the Hilton San Diego Bayfront. This philanthropic event supports children and adults with disabilities. The event began with a champagne reception and vendor boutique and a silent auction. Maria Stanley and her daughters, Mariel Filippone, Malissa Sanfilippo, and Cici Drummond chaired this extraordinary event.

The attendees adjourned to the sapphire room for an incredible dining experience. Aimee Fuller, a former TV news anchor, welcomed the guests and got the show rolling. The witty and talented Clint Bell was the auctioneer for the live auction with items such as a wine country adventure in Sonoma. The theme for the event was a Winter Wonderland. The guests felt like they were there in a winter scene with the lights, music, and an amazing winter backdrop on the stage. This was perfect for the holiday season.

The entertainment was presented by style personality Leonard Simpson. He is a well-known television-style host and producer of high-profile fashion shows in San Diego, New York, and Los Angeles. The crowd was eagerly awaiting the fashion show, which showed the latest trends with luxury fabrics, glitter, and sequins to brighten your day. Simpson also presented a jewelry collection, which he showed off during the show.

The opening number blasted on the runway with the international designer Ugochi Iwuaba. All of her eye-popping creations delighted the audience. Iwuaba talked with Leonard Simpson on the stage afterward and said she knew first-hand how important the Arc of San Diego was because she had a child with Down Syndrome.

Next came Satori Designs with a look of 'Global Fusion.' You can always recognize their designs, which have a sensational eclectic look.

Following this was the Bespoke Tailor Shop of Zeglio Custom Clothiers, Hidden Rose Boutique, Over the Top Handbags, and looks from around the world with Chateau Le Bel Age.

There was a special guest appearance with famous Ford model Nikki Myer. Next in the show were the amazing designs by Debbie Nhgiem, followed by the finale. Ending the show were the knockout designs by Nolan Dean. One of his out-of-this-world creations came down the catwalk dazzling the audience with lights on the gown.

This event benefits The Arc of San Diego, which provides a service for people with disabilities such as autism, cerebral palsy, and Down Syndrome. These life-saving programs assist both intellectual and developmental disabilities for both children and adults. For more information, visit http://www.arc-sd.com/.

The Social Diary – Grinch fun at Thursday Club, tops in tennis, and legends of space... is it Santa?

By MARGO SCHWAB

he United States Tennis Association Tennis stars gathered for the USTA National Hardcourts Championships held at the La Jolla Beach & Tennis Club last weekend. It wasn't all tennis though, as players and guests mingled for a seaside cocktail reception and buffet dinner. The club is no stranger to tennis greats. Billie Jean King was there recently, and I have personally seen and photographed many greats there including Andre Agassi and Steffi Graff, Stan

Smith, Pancho Segura (always had jokes at the ready), Andy Roddick, Mark Philippoussis, Bobby Riggs, and La Jolla legend Dodo Cheney, the winningest tennis player ever male or female.

Fond memories of Dodo in her signature pearl necklace and lace anklet socks looking sweet but fierce as all at the net. A funny moment at a club kid's party, Dodo well into her 90s showed a great dislike for the Grinch.

But remember the Grinch in Seussian lore finally changed ways and grew a big heart. As such the big green Grinch appeared for a festive fete for the Thursday Club in Point Loma. The now nice Grinch joined members for Christmas cheer among the philanthropic Thursday ladies who do so much for so many.

Meanwhile, up in the sky, is that Santa? No, not yet, but on terra firma at the San Diego Air and Space Museum, it was real-life space heroes and supporters including table sponsor, board member and pilot Richard Pickett, his sister Dr. Diana Kidrick, president and CEO of the museum, and Barbara Barrett.

That's Barbara Barrett, who among many things served as United States Secretary of the Air Force, aside from being on many boards including the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Rand Corp., and the Smithsonian.
