City enforcement plans for STRs not adequate, residents say

By DAVE SCHWAB | The Beacon

Some coastal civic leaders and citizens argued enforcement regulations in the City's new Short-Term Residential Ordinance, which took effect May 1 are flawed.

That message came across repeatedly during a 90-minute STRO Zoom enforcement community briefing presented by the City's Development Services Department Code Enforcement Division (now called BLUE) on April 27.

"I really appreciate everything that you (City) are doing," testified

“The City's enforcement plan is dead on arrival.”

- Kevin Hastings, OB Planning Board

Janie Emerson, president of La Jolla Shores Association. “But you obviously have never lived near a party house. In many instances, you have people passing out in the middle of the street. This happens in the Shores on a regular basis. Calling the local contact, in most instances, they don't even live here.

Volunteers needed for new Downtown Ocean Beach Ambassador program

By DAVE SCHWAB | The Beacon

Ocean Beach MainStreet Association and Ocean Beach Town Council are combining to seek volunteer ambassadors for their new Downtown Ocean Beach Ambassador program.

Kicking off Saturday, May 27, ambassadors are needed to staff the information booth in Veterans Plaza Park and to stroll OB's downtown business district. Ambassadors will welcome visitors and locals to downtown OB, as well as provide them with information to help them explore the area and enhance their experience while visiting the eclectic town. The ambassador program will operate Saturdays from 11 a.m.-3 p.m.

Both civic organizations are seeking highly enthusiastic individuals ages 16 and older to serve weekly as ambassadors for a 3 1/2-hour shift from 10:45 a.m.-2:15 p.m. Ambassadors will direct visitors to restaurants, retail shops, rentals, public parking, and public transportation, as well as provide general event information.

OB ambassadors will also provide information about OBMA and OBTC programs, projects, and initiatives in Ocean Beach. They will be tasked with collecting pertinent data from visitors and locals alike to help improve future visits to downtown OB.

Ambassadors will be trained in all aspects of the program by a lead ambassador. They will be provided with the tools necessary to relay the best information to visitors and community members.

High school students can fulfill their community service requirements by participating in this program. Volunteers are required to complete a volunteer application and attend a one-hour training session for ambassadors on Saturday, May 6 at 10 a.m., or Wednesday, May 17 at noon, at OB Java at 5047 Newport Ave.

Volunteer applications can be completed in advance at OceanBeachSanDiego.com or at the end of each training session. For additional inquiries, email Kristen Keltner at Kristen@OceanBeachSanDiego.com.

The program is a partnership between OBMA and OBTC to bring volunteer-driven ambassadors to OB. The program highlights OB attractions and businesses for tourists and residents who are visiting. The program is intended to make visitors and community members feel welcome as they experience and explore the eclectic beach town.

Visit OceanBeachSanDiego.com and OBTownCouncil.org to learn more about both these organizations.

OBTC holds public meetings on the fourth Wednesday monthly except in November and December. Regular speakers include local leaders and political, business, and law enforcement representatives. Meetings are either hybrid (venue in OB, streamed to Facebook, and via Zoom) or online only depending on the topic and the month.

OBMA has a small staff working with local businesses, organizations, government, and agencies. They take calls from tourists and locals daily. Yearly and weekly events are managed by the staff, which also includes the organization of many volunteers and the facilitation of many committees. The board meets the second Thursday of the month at noon at the OBMA office, 1868 Bacon St.

STRO

They are not going to respond. This is not workable.”

“They (STR operators) understand that the party is over and that there are consequences for not following the rules, that their license, and the renewal of that license, is at stake,” replied Norma Medina, program manager for the City’s new STRO Enforcement Program.

Following the STRO Zoom meeting, Kevin Hastings, Ocean Beach Planning Board vice chair, said he concurred with criticism of the new ordinance’s shortcomings. “The tools to be made available to residents are encouraging, and give transparency on the STR licenses for once,” he said. “But the City’s enforcement plan is dead on arrival. This seemed to be the consensus of everyone in attendance, except city staff.”

Added Hastings: “The new STR enforcement staff will go home at 11 p.m., and have no staff at all on Monday and Tuesday. And even when staffed, they are going to rely on SDPD to respond to loud parties and rely on code enforcement for illegal unit complaints. We already know those two mechanisms do not work. SDPD does not prioritize nuisance complaints and cannot respond in a timely manner. And code enforcement can take 6-12 months to address illegal construction. These failures were precisely the reasons for needing dedicated STR staff.”

Concluded Hastings: “The City is handcuffing themselves right out of the gate. Unless they restructure their enforcement strategy, it will be very difficult for them to confirm the biggest violations and hold irresponsible hosts and guests accountable. But at least they’ll be effective at making sure the font size on the signage is correct.”

“We’re going to be working very collaboratively with the City Attorney’s Office,” said Medina during a presentation on the new STRO Enforcement Program on April 27. “We’ll have a four-member investigation team starting on May 1, in addition to the City Attorney team, which will be providing support.”

Medina noted the initial schedule for enforcement teams implementing the STRO will be Wednesdays through Sundays from 1:30-11 p.m., with administrative support working Mondays through Fridays from 7 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

“The STRO team will reply to complaints with our own STR protocol in the Get It Done (City app), to make sure this is user-friendly,” said Medina. “The City is committed to working collaboratively with members of the community and the short-term rental industry. Our primary goal is always to achieve voluntary compliance.”

Medina said the STRO has 24 different possible code violations, which enforcement teams will be focusing on in evaluating licensed short-term rentals in legal, safe, and sanitary dwellings with proper permitting and no code violations.

There will also be an all-hours local contact designated who will be the first point of contact for anyone wishing to register an STRO violation complaint. “One of the most important ones (enforcement regulations) is whether the local contact is being responsive and actively taking action to resolve matters dealing with parking, trash, noise, and disturbances,” Medina said adding, “When the case (complaint) is closed, there will be a notification sent to the complainant telling them what the result was.”

Medina added the City will be sharing information with the San Diego Police Department, which she said will be “citing some of the nuisance properties” under the STRO. She added the complaint process will be “local contact first, then Get It Done (City app) and after 10 p.m., it will be the San Diego Police.”

“Nuisance is kind of vague, there is (supposed to be) no noise after the 10 p.m. period,” said PB resident Scott Chipman during an extensive Q&A session following the City’s initial presentation. He added: “I thought the entire reason for having an STRO enforcement team is that the police would not be called. We’re trying to avoid burdening the police. It makes more sense to have code enforcement calling the police.”

Responded Medina, “The host local contact is always the first person that should be contacted, and if the local contact did not respond in one hour, that is a violation of the STRO that we are going to be following up.”

“We’re in a better place than a year ago because we had nothing (then),” testified Larry Webb, president of Mission Beach Town Council. “If the local contact does not respond, and there’s going to be no investigation at the time, how is it going to be substantiated that they (local contact) did not respond and that there was a (code) violation?”

“This is a new ordinance, we have to test various methods,” responded Medina. “The City has the burden of proof. Determining whether our investigative methods are effective, I cannot answer that right now because we have to get started. We want to make sure that we are making a difference in the quality of life for everybody. It takes time.”

“The person who complains should be called,” contended Marcella Teran of Pacific Beach. “Otherwise, people are not going to feel like they’re being heard. And then people will stop calling.”

“When I called the (STR) owner, I was told to go to the devil,” said Tom Coats of Pacific Beach, who has lived next door to a problematic STR for years. “The system you have now is not going to work. I would suggest that the first call to the local contact should come from City staff, not from the citizens. The

STRO ORDINANCE REQUIREMENTS

The Short-Term Residential Ordinance now requires a license for all STRs of a dwelling unit, or part thereof, for less than one month within the City of San Diego. There are four license types with varying requirements on the number of days and type of dwelling available for the STR. A host may only hold one license and may not operate more than one dwelling unit for an STR at a time. Licenses are not transferable between ownership or location/dwelling unit.

A host may obtain a maximum of one license at a time in one of the following four STR license tiers:

Tier 1 Part-Time – Rented for an aggregate of 20 days or less per year. The owner or permanent resident does not need to reside onsite during the STR; Tier 2 Home Sharing – Renting a room or rooms in the home for more than 20 days per year so long as the owner or permanent resident resides onsite; Tier 3 Whole Home (excluding Mission Beach) and Tier 4 (Mission Beach Whole Home) – Rentals for more than 20 days per year where the owner or permanent resident does not reside onsite. Guest two-night minimum stays are required both inside and outside Mission Beach for both Tiers 3 and 4. For more information, visit sandiego.gov/treasurer/short-term-residential-occupancy.

citizens should call the vacation rental hotline. The hotline should then call the local contact. This will allow you to verify when the call was made. A call coming out from the City to the local contact will have far more impact.”

New mural unveiled for 75th anniversary of United Portuguese S.E.S.

One of the highlights of the 75th-anniversary celebration of the United Portuguese S.E.S. in Point Loma on April 15 was the dedication of an outdoor mural painted by Jack Stricker and Austin Gosswiller.

The historic milestone at the United Portuguese Hall at 2818 Avenida De Portugal involved a Diamond and Pearl Cocktail Party featuring heavy appetizers, wine, music, and presentations. One of those presentations was performed outside around the corner of the historic building with the public unveiling of the new two-sided mural painted by Stricker and Gosswiller.

A collaboration between UPSES and the Point Loma Association, a nonprofit spearheading community beautification, and improvement, the new mural is a re-creation of “azulejos,” blue-and-white Portuguese tiles using acrylic paint.

“We worked on the mural for about 60 hours, sometimes late into the night,” said Stricker, adding UPSES “just wanted something new on the walls and it just worked out perfectly.”

“It was fun to re-create it (tiles),” concurred Gosswiller, who has worked with Stricker on a couple of murals since last year. “We’ve got a few more projects lined up,” he added.

Stricker has also done murals in Liberty Station and Ocean Beach. His OB mural depicts pitcher Joe Musgrove of the Padres.

Gosswiller pointed out he and Stricker have been acquainted since fifth or sixth grade having both grown up in Ocean Beach. “He’s a good friend of my brother’s and that’s how we connected,” Stricker said.

Noting he knows UPSES board members who’ve “been wanting something (art) here for a long long time,” Stricker added the board at first wanted them to do a tuna fishermen scene. “But I thought it would be a little too busy,” he said adding the board then left it up to them as to what they’d like to do.

“These tiles are everywhere in Portugal,” pointed out Stricker. “This one (azulejos) I’ve never seen in Point Loma, and I just thought it would be unique and bold. It’s our own design that we came up with. You can see it both ways from the street.”

Of their mural’s color scheme, Gosswiller said: “During the age of discovery blue and white was a popular color, a symbol of wealth and power.”

Stricker noted their UPSES mural was something of a departure for them. “This is more like a design than an actual art painting: There are no portraits,” he said.

Stricker started out doing graffiti before learning how to oil paint at San Diego State University. “I kind of fused the two together a little bit,” he said.

Gosswiller agreed art has always attracted him. “That’s what I excelled in,” he said. “I kind of got into the industry (murals) in restaurant life. But it wasn’t until the COVID shutdown that I wanted to follow my passion and see if I could make a living off of this. That’s when I really dove into it.”

Things are working out well now for both artists. “I’ve been doing it (murals) 15 years or so around here,” Stricker said adding, “It took a while to actually get jobs lined up consistently. But now I have no problem.”

The mural duo is presently in discussions with Petco Park downtown to do six baseball-themed murals for the breweries at the ballpark. “It’s in the works,” noted Gosswiller, who gave a shout-out to the PLA on their UPSES mural. “They helped collaborate with the Portuguese Hall on funding this.”

“They (PLA) paid for half of it,” noted Stricker.

“We’d like to thank them (PLA) for supporting local artists, and hopefully we’ll get to work with them more,” concluded Gosswiller.

Historic home overlooking Sunset Cliffs on the market

By DAVE SCHWAB | The Beacon

A home steeped in Point Loma history overlooking Sunset Cliffs Natural Park is on the market for the first time since being built in the late 1960s.

The mid-century modern coastal dwelling at 705 Cornish Drive, priced at $3.2 million, is listed by longtime Point Loma resident and Realtor Rosamaria Acuña of Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices California Properties.

This one-of-a-kind residence is located adjacent to the iconic 50-acre Sunset Cliffs Natural Park. The original owners of the property, Roy and Katie Klumpp, played a pivotal role in the conservation of the parkland and Point Loma community. In the mid-1960s, the Klumpps bought the lot with a vision to build a unique family home where their children could enjoy the “forever views” and vast, coastal land just beyond their new backyard.

During construction, Katie Klumpp, a passionate advocate for equality in education, who would later be named San Diego’s Woman of the Year in 1988 for her efforts, spent significant time meticulously selecting materials that would flow with the home’s natural landscape. Her husband Roy Klumpp, a Korean War veteran with a Ph.D. in psychoacoustics, worked closely with the contractor and Del Mar-based architecture firm Jung & Cloyes on the finest of details.

Acuña is also the corresponding secretary of Sunset Cliffs Natural Park. She spearheads the annual Spring Festival of Flowers, in addition to several other beloved community events.

Like Katie Klumpp, Acuña is a strong advocate for women, equality, and diversity and is deeply committed to conserving and enhancing the Point Loma community in which she lives.

“I can see why they selected this lot,” Acuña said about the property. “It’s just like a beacon. When you look out, nature and the ocean surround you in every direction.”

Acuña noted it’s the very same scene she witnessed as a child when she first visited Point Loma from her hometown of Calexico on the Mexican border in Imperial County, deciding she’d one day call this place home.

“That was when I first noticed how magnificent the Pacific Ocean was,” Acuña recalls. “It makes sense that the Klumpps were so engaged from start to finish in the process of completing this special home for their family. I’m honored to play a part in 705 Cornish Drive’s next chapter as a new generation discovers its magnificence all over again.”

Roy Klumpp personally sanded all the ceiling beams in the house so they were perfectly smooth. The architects’ vision for the house was that all but four angles would be 60 or 120 degrees, and they placed the home on the lot in such a way as to capture the incredible views, which were echoed by the wood-burning fireplace (which Katie Klumpp had the builders rehang to get it just right).

The den/family room of the home was inspired by removing all the wasted hallway walls to make a wonderful children’s play area. By the time construction was completed in 1967, the Klumpps had strategically helped craft a coastal, mid-century modern home that was as artistic as it was aesthetic, with soaring wood-beam ceilings, a floating staircase, and an interior stone accent wall in the living room.

Roy Klumpp used the garage as his personal workshop where he created custom pieces for the home, including contemporary chandeliers and windows. Katie Klumpp continued her social justice work and was inspired by the panoramic, Pacific Ocean-lined view and natural surroundings she lived in every day. She strove to learn more about the historic significance of the land outside her front door.

During the late 19th century, the area now known as Sunset Cliffs Natural Park was covered with fruit trees and vegetables and had cattle roaming the cliff-side terrain.

Phone call turns Pointer pitcher's dream into reality

BY SCOTT HOPKINS | The Beacon

It was a night like many others for Matthew "Matty" Garrison, a left-handed pitcher for Point Loma High's JV baseball team. He sat on the living room couch doing homework while his mom cleaned up in the kitchen as Norman, their pit/lab mix dog rested nearby.

And then Matty's phone rang. The caller was Barrett Frost, head coach of the Pointer JV who began by saying the Pointer freshman team needed pitching help. Matty was confused since sophomores can't play on the freshman team. But Frost quickly changed to his real message: "Matty, you are being called up to the varsity team."

"I was really surprised," Matty recalls. "I was thinking to myself, 'Is this a joke?' My mom and I were both in shock."

Not only was the call not a joke but Matty was slated to be the starting pitcher in the Pointers' next game, the first of a series against formidable Cathedral Catholic.

Matty lists his pitches as "a four-seam, two-seam, curveball, slider, and change-up." His fastball has been clocked in the mid-80s.

As he prepared, "Many of my (varsity) coaches told me the players were the same but hit the ball harder and farther. Plus there would be a lot more people watching the game and cheering"

And so, on April 24 Matty took the mound at David Wells Field to face the Dons.

"On the day of the game, I was nervous, going through different situations in my head. But after the first inning, I settled in and just told myself it was like any other baseball game," said the reserved 16-year-old. The results were amazing.

Matty pitched six innings (of seven), throwing 94 pitches and facing 24 hitters. He walked only one and struck out eight Dons. He yielded only four hits and gave up one run for an ERA of 1.17. The Dons hit .174 making Matty's first start a resounding success. Unfortunately, his teammates only managed two hits and the Pointers absorbed a 1-0 loss.

Matty took the mound again this week in a series against St. Augustine and will face Madison next week as the league season concludes.

Baseball has been a big part of Matty's young life.

"When I was 6 years old, I told my mom I wanted to play baseball and she signed me up," he said. "I've played at Imperial Beach and Luckie Waller Little Leagues and for four travel ball teams. One of my travel ball coaches recommended Point Loma High for its good baseball program," he added. He now lives in the Little Italy area with his mother and Norman.

Last year, Matty excelled on the Pointer freshman team and was called up mid-season to the junior varsity. He hopes to continue his ascent in the PLHS program.

"I hope to be an ace the coaches can count on and also develop my hitting to be a two-way player and produce some offense," he says.

Standing "just under six feet tall," Matty hopes to grow to a height of 6 feet 3 inches tall. Perhaps an indicator of his growth potential is the size 12 cleats he now wears.

"I'm hoping to play D-1 somewhere, maybe TCU, Alabama, or somewhere on the East Coast," Matty says. "I watch a lot of college baseball highlights and like the ACC and SEC schools." But he doesn't rule out West Coast schools.

Matty is enjoying his time at Point Loma High where he has made many friends and carries "about a 3.85" GPA.

Hopefully, more good news calls will ring on Matty's phone in the future.

POINTER ATHLETES

J.L. Skinner (Class of 2019) was selected in the sixth round of the NFL Draft (number 183 overall) by the Denver Broncos. Skinner (6 feet 4 inches tall, 220 pounds) has played safety at Boise State University for four years, earning first-team All-Mountain West Conference honors in 2022. He finished his career at BSU with 208 tackles, 9.5 tackles for loss, two forced fumbles 20 passes defended, and seven interceptions.

Two girls pitched no-hitters on two consecutive days for the Pointer junior varsity softball team. On April 25, it was Olivia Connor frustrating West Hills hitters during a 10-0 win. On April 26, Lida Grinnan confused Morse batters as the Pointers won 14-0. The team, coached by Chris Ghio, has a current record of 14-2-1 with a 2-0 mark in league play.

Current senior distance runner Manny Correia set a PLHS record and the county-best time this year, when he was clocked at 1:51:44 in the 800-meter run at the Escondido Invitational, on April 21. Earlier this year, he set personal best times of 50.57 (400M), 3:08:8 (1200M Relay Split), 4:09.83 (1600M), 4:11.15 (1 mile) and 9:12.79 (3200M).

Class of 2020 member Joey Azar took second place in the National Championships of Collegiate Boxing in Charlotte, N.C. Fighting in the 139-pound division, Azar won both the quarterfinals and semifinals before losing to a fierce Naval Academy opponent in the finals. After accepting the silver medal, Azar's goal is to win gold next year.

Beacon writer Scott Hopkins named to PLHS Hall of Fame

By DAVE SCHWAB | The Beacon

Point Loma High School's Hall of Fame with 21 previous members is being revived with three new inductees in this year's Class of 2023, including Peninsula Beacon writer and retired teacher Scott Hopkins.

A new HOF nomination period is also opening on May 20 for future consideration of inductees.

The Point Loma High School Hall of Fame, dedicated in 1925, didn't exist until its first nine members were inducted in 1998. Another dozen followed in 2015. "The Point Loma Alumni Association was established in 1976 to remember our history and our legacy over the years," said PLHS alumni director Kim (Melhorn) Jessop Moore, Class of '73.

Of the HOF nomination process, which grew from the alumni association, Jessop Moore said: "We've got an odd number of members voting on a spreadsheet checking all the boxes to see which nominees really stand out as representing the core values of the school, or who have put Point Loma on the map by doing something good in the world."

"We hope to continue this tradition of adding new members every few years. If you would like to be on (or chair) this exciting committee please contact us."

The Point Loma High School Hall of Fame Class of 2023 includes Richard Arnold and A. Lee Brown, lifelong friends, and classmates from 1959. Of his friend Arnold, Brown noted: "Dick did the on-campus bronze sculpture of the Pointer Dog as well as the lifeguard statue next to the Ocean Beach lifeguard tower."

"He and I have had very parallel lives and have been deeply bonded over 70 years. We both grew up without fathers. As a result, we turned to our passion, which was the ocean. As our careers were winding down, we both turned to the arts – Richard to sculpture, me to writing."

This year's third Hall of Fame inductee, Peninsula Beacon writer, and retired teacher, Hopkins, is a fourth-generation Point Loman and Class of '67 PLHS graduate.

"The Hall of Fame election was a total surprise to me," said Hopkins, who usually writes inductees' bios for the PLHS nomination committee. "I did not even know there was a process underway to select new members."

"Whenever and wherever virtually any Point Loma High sports team is competing, Scott Hopkins will be there, with a camera, covering for the Peninsula Beacon community newspaper," wrote John Freeman in a bio about Hopkins. "His life's passion has always revolved around sports, writing news and feature stories, with a flair for story-telling, especially when it comes to extolling the athletic and academic achievements of his fellow Pointers."

Freeman noted Hopkins installed a police scanner in his car at age 16 and sped to where news was being made. "Scott's sports and news features have earned him dozens of San Diego Press Club awards, often making him the event's top award-winner," he added.

Now retired from his 36-year career as an elementary school teacher in Chula Vista, Hopkins has also been a big-time fan of the San Diego Gulls AHL hockey teams. "If he's not wearing PLHS colors, he's often attired in a Gulls jersey," Freeman wrote.

He added, "Twice every year Scott takes time for a return trip to Puerto Vallarta, where he reunites with the rural Mexican family he adopted nearly 30 years ago. Through the years, his generosity has put two young men through universities while his mentorship and gifts have enriched both the family's lives and his. Those gifts have defined Scott's life, much like his devotion to PLHS."

Arnold, nominated as an artist/veteran/friendship and sculptor, has "lived a life of many dogged pursuits, not the least of which is his current avocation as an accomplished sculptor – led by his sculpture of the Pointer Dog that has adorned PLHS campus since 2010," states his Hall of Fame bio.

Funded in part by the PLHS Alumni Association, Arnold's Pointer sculpture reflects the school's deep sense of pride and purpose.

A longtime Colorado resident, Arnold spent his early adult years as a diver at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography. Since then, the Vietnam War veteran has variously been a skiing instructor, charter-air company founder, manager of two airports, and the owner of a successful residential home construction business.

"Through most of his early career," continues Arnold's bio, "Richard's artistic talents were a passionate, yet understated aspect of his life. That is, until age 50 when his wife urged him to devote more of his creativity to sculpture. At age 81, and still, an adventurer and skier who has sailed and surfed in Costa Rica, his nationally-recognized artwork continues to be his calling, most notably by his bronzed tributes displayed around the country honoring Vietnam War veterans."

"Working in clay and wax, then having my art cast in bronze, I attempt to capture the spirit and personality of the subject," Arnold said. "My sculptures are sensitive, personal, and from the heart."

New Hall of Fame inductee Brown was nominated in multiple categories including academic, author, friendship, teacher, professor, scientist, scholar, lifeguard, and surfer. Brown's numerous scholarly pursuits include a bachelor's and master's (San Diego State), two doctorates (University of Texas), and a Fulbright Scholar fellowship (Oxford, England).

Since returning to San Diego in 2012 from Idaho after serving The Nature Conservancy as a hydrologist, Brown has focused on his writings. Those include two recent books "Varsity" (2020), the story of America's underage warriors in WWII, and "Cradle Of Bitchin: A Story of Mentors, Waterman & the Sea" (2022), a first-person ode to his 1950s youth in Ocean Beach.

A Renaissance man with many stories yet to tell, Brown's heart belongs to his roots, where the stories of his life come shining through.

Hall of Fame candidates must have graduated from PLHS at least 10 years ago and shall have made significant achievements in academics, athletics, arts/entertainment, professional/military, philanthropy/humanitarian, or science/medicine. Special recognition categories may be considered for Good Samaritans and former staff (alive or posthumous).

The deadline to submit nomination forms for the Class of 2024 at plhsalumni.org is June 20. The deadline for statements of support in favor of those Hall of Fame nominees is July 30.

A brief induction ceremony will take place for the Class of 2023 Hall of Fame recipients at 7 p.m. on May 18 at the Ocean Beach Historical Society meeting at Water's Edge Faith Community Church. 1984 Sunset Cliffs Blvd. Formal induction will occur at the PLHS 100th Anniversary Gala in 2025.

Justin Downer named new head coach of men’s basketball at Point Loma Nazarene

By NOAH PERKINS | The Beacon

On April 21, Justin Downer celebrated turning 31 with a family dinner at Puesto. Filet mignon tacos and a nice window seat made the evening special, but what really pushed the day over the top for Downer, was that afternoon’s announcement that he would be succeeding outgoing head coach, Matt Logie, as the next Point Loma Nazarene men’s basketball coach.

“I suppose the job was a nice present,” Downer said.

Logie departs PLNU after four seasons as the Sea Lions' head man, putting together an impressive 82-23 record with two Pac West Tournament titles and four straight appearances in the NCAA West Regionals. He was named head coach at Division I Montana State University.

Big shoes to fill for Downer, who spent the previous season as an assistant coach on Logie’s staff.

“When I joined staff, we had conversations that at some point I would have the opportunity to interview for this job, but certainly [I didn’t think] after only a year being here,” Downer said. “I don’t ever expect a handout – that hasn’t been my career or my life. I expect to earn everything that I get.”

Downer is young but hardly inexperienced. Prior to PLNU, he spent three seasons as an assistant at Division I, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo. Before that, he was on staff at NAIA Vanguard University, and worked as an associate head coach at Riverside Poly High School, coaching current San Diego State point guard Lamont Butler.

“I’m not old, but I would tell you my coaching career started much before that,” Downer said. “I was at a different place at 23 than maybe a guy who was trying to decide if he wanted to get into coaching.”

Downer, a native of North Bend, Wash., played at William Jessup University, as a three-point specialist.

"I am thrilled for Justin to be the new leader of our men's basketball program," PLNU athletic director Ethan Hamilton said in a press release. "His passion, depth of character, and faith set him apart from several qualified candidates. I am confident he will build on the great foundation that's been laid by so many before him."

“He leads with love and cares relentlessly about the well-being of student-athletes,” added outgoing assistant coach Julius Smith, who is joining Logie at Montana State. “Coupled with his competitive fire, his family-based mentality, and strong faith, make him more than ready to lead Point Loma.”

Downer’s first two challenges at the helm are hiring a new staff – something he expects to happen imminently – and filling the hole that graduating senior, All-American Kaden Anderson, leaves behind.

“The obvious answer is there is nobody we can recruit who will be Kaden Anderson next year; there is nobody on the roster who can be Kaden Anderson,” Downer said. “But there is a roster of guys right now that are returning and I think a lot of people are going to be surprised at how good our role players are in a larger role. I am tremendously excited about our young talent.”

Last season, two of the teams’ top three leading scorers – Luke Haupt and Brian Goracke – were sophomores.

“We are going to have to do it by committee, but I believe a group of two or three guys can replace Kaden’s 23 points and 10 rebounds per game,” Downer said.

Downer’s relationship with Logie goes back a decade. Philosophically, he said, there will be overlap and continuity, but that doesn’t mean there won’t be changes.

“I’ve known Matt since I was 21,” Downer said. “We have built this relationship for ten years, so I think our program-values align. But we have only ever coached together for one year. I think the similarities are the type of player and character and that team first ball. I’ve coached nine other years at other places, so there will be some different offensive and defensive schemes.”

Downer is the 16th head coach in PLNU program history. The previous three coaches were all plucked away by Division I programs, following short tenures with the Sea Lions.

“Small college coaches are outstanding coaches,” former PLNU head coach and NBA player John Block said. “Their (PLNU) last several coaches have gone DI. That’s kind of the way things are.

Cabrillo National Monument Foundation to enhance the visitor experience at our beautiful park

This is the time of year when we are usually busy planning a magical evening called Cabrillo Under the Stars for our members and friends. But this year, improvements to the park are requiring us to postpone the event until 2024.

Park programs like a new trail down to the tidepools, Ecogill summer camp, and CNMF operations still need your support!

Cabrillo National Monument Foundation (CNMF) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation and an essential partner to the National Park Service (NPS) to provide support to Cabrillo National Monument, San Diego's only National Park. Our mission is to fund and support interpretive and educational programs that protect and preserve the Park's resources, enhance the visitor experience, and connect all people to the Park for generations to enjoy.

Community support ensures crucial funding for important Park programs that educate, protect, preserve, and enhance the visitor experience.

Please Support San Diego's only National Park visit www.cnmf.org to give!

Donate by May 30, gifts of $250 or more secure you and a guest an invitation to an exclusive after-hours Picnic at the Park on June 24th.

Show Your Love for Cabrillo National Monument and the work of the Foundation, donate today!

Thank You for your support!
