Driver to stand trial in death of woman on Riviera Drive

By NEAL PUTNAM

A man with a prior conviction for drunk driving was ordered on May 16 to stand trial for second-degree murder in the death of a woman who was killed in the Crown Point area when his car crashed into her.

Nestor Alejandro Hernandez, 23, was also ordered to stand trial for gross vehicular manslaughter while intoxicated in the death of Vanessa Urbina-Aragonez, 22, who was attending Mesa Community College and was studying to be a nurse.

Attorneys submitted the case without arguments to San Diego Superior Court Judge Marian Gaston at the end of the all-day preliminary hearing.

Hernandez has pleaded not guilty and remains in jail without bail. He also is charged with DUI, and driving with a measurable blood/alcohol level with injury to the woman's boyfriend, Brian Armenta Zamarano, 24.

Hernandez was driving his Toyota Tacoma on Jan. 22 in the 3400 block of Riviera Drive of Pacific Beach when he allegedly failed to negotiate a curve in the road and struck Urbina who was standing in front of a disabled Chevrolet Tahoe at a curb.

Acting Detective Taylor Walker testified the approximate speed of Hernandez's vehicle was 72 mph before the crash, according to the car's event data recorder.

Will shoulders the load for Savannah as she scrapes stickers off the Roosevelt Avenue and Haines Street signs during the Pacific Beach Town Council's 13th annual graffiti cleanup held on May 13. Both volunteers are part of the PB Rotaract Club. A total of 119 volunteers helped clean graffiti and trash and more than 730 tags were removed throughout the community.

Century-old Scripps Pier records reveal precipitation trends

SALINITY OF SEAWATER USED TO DETECT EL NIÑOS

By ROBERT MONROE

Researchers at UC San Diego's Scripps Institution of Oceanography investigated the history of Southern California climate using a unique dataset collected at the iconic Ellen Browning Scripps Pier in La Jolla.

Led by oceanography graduate student Sierra Byrne, the team analyzed the relative freshness of the water, which has been measured by hand at the pier site since 1916. Periods when the water was less salty indicate that there was more freshwater entering the ocean from nearby streams. Inundations of freshwater took place during years when there was extreme precipitation and more streamflow.

Plotted on a graph, the history reveals the marks of climate patterns such as El Niños and La Niñas and longer patterns such as the Pacific Decadal Oscillation (PDO). The signature of a 30-year-long negative phase of the PDO from the 1940s to 1970s when waters in the eastern Pacific Ocean were relatively cool reveals itself in a pattern of minimal salinity variation in pier samples.

"This provides us with an extremely valuable dataset that we use to look for interannual to decadal variability in winter salinity," said Byrne. "This is possible because of the connectivity between rain, streamflow, and coastal ocean dynamics that spread low salinity waters through freshwater plumes."

Though there are other ways to observe past climate trends, the researchers say this approach is novel because even a location like La Jolla, which is not immediately adjacent to any river, can still pick up the signal of heavy streamflow. The nature of storms in California tends to push freshwater south when it enters the ocean so in the case of Scripps Pier, the nearest freshwater flows come from Los Peñasquitos Lagoon seven kilometers (4.3 miles) to the north and the San Dieguito River 12 kilometers (eight miles) to the north.

"This highlights the value of coastal sea surface salinity data as a way to connect the coastal ocean, local streamflow, and atmospheric variability," said Byrne. "Typically, surface water temperatures are used for detecting shifts in climate phases, and through the influence on winter precipitation in Southern California we show that surface salinity also reflects

The study appears in the journal Communications Earth & Environment. The California Department of Parks and Recreation, Natural Resources Division, and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers funded the work.

Scientists, aquarists, and technicians have all played a role in collecting data from Scripps Pier since 1916, when the original pier was constructed. Measurements of water temperature and salinity are taken at the water's surface and closer to the bottom via collection bottles that are lowered from a structure at the end of the pier.

These readings are the oldest known continuous record of Pacific Ocean conditions. Today, nine other stations join Scripps Pier in the statewide Shore Stations program.

"We are grateful that California State Parks has continued its long-term support of these crucial Scripps Shore Stations time series of salinity and temperature at 10 stations extending the length of our state," said Reinhard Flick, co-principal investigator of the Shore Stations program. "Only long, continuous, and consistently measured data like these from Scripps Pier make it possible to quantify decades-long climate variability. Old time series that began before large and fast climate change effects manifested are especially important to determine the amount and rate of current and future climate changes."

This study used Scripps Pier data collected between 1916-2021. Byrne said that data collected since that time frame, including the 2023 PiNC (Plumes in Nearshore Conditions) experiment could build on it. Such research into the size and direction of freshwater plumes in the ocean could inform tracking of coastal pollution and improve the safety of beach communities.

New look at climate data shows wetter rain and snow days ahead

Once-in-a-century storms could be experienced more than once in a lifetime

By ROBERT MONROE

A key source of information underpinning the upcoming National Climate Assessment suggests that heavy precipitation days historically experienced once in a century by Americans could in the future be experienced on several occasions in a lifetime.

Scientists at Scripps Institution of Oceanography at UC San Diego and the Department of Energy's Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory (Berkeley Lab) report that extremely intense days of rain or snow will be more frequent by the end of this century than previously thought – as often as once every 30 or 40 years in the Pacific Northwest and southeastern United States.

The conclusions come from analyzing a 30-terabyte data set that models temperature and precipitation at scales roughly the size of urban ZIP codes: six kilometers (3.9 miles). Researchers developed the dataset, called Localized Constructed Analogs Version 2 (LOCA2), to provide climate information that is useful for local planners. In contrast, most of the existing advanced climate models look at regions that range from 50 to 250 kilometers (30 to 400 miles).

"With this dataset, we're able to look at the impacts of actual weather pattern changes across the United States at an extremely granular level," said Dan Feldman, a staff scientist at Berkeley Lab and the project's principal investigator. "We see that there is a lot more extreme weather that is likely to happen in the future – and by looking at actual weather patterns, we show that changes in extreme precipitation will actually be more extreme than previously estimated. Land use managers and planners should expect more extremes, but location matters."

CLIMATE PROJECTIONS

The LOCA2 data set updates a similar analysis conducted in 2016 in advance of the Fourth National Climate Assessment (NCA), which was released in 2018 by the U.S. Global Change Research Program. The NCA is intended to assist the U.S. government with planning for, mitigating, and adapting to changes in climate that will affect the country. The Fifth NCA is expected to be issued later this year.

LOCA2 projections cover the lower 48 states of the United States, southern Canada, and northern Mexico. The data set draws on more than 70 years of weather data and incorporates 27 updated climate models from the Coupled Model Intercomparison Project (CMIP6), the latest iteration of an international effort to simulate the climate that includes the "coupling" of natural systems such as the ocean and atmosphere to understand how they will act in concert as climate changes.

"We've spent a lot of effort improving the representation of extreme wet days, which is important for understanding both the likelihood of flooding and the availability of water for agricultural, commercial, and residential use," said David Pierce, a scientist at Scripps Oceanography and the developer of LOCA and LOCA2.

SHARED SOCIOECONOMIC PATHWAYS

The LOCA2 climate projections are available through the end of the century down to the daily level and for three different greenhouse gas emissions scenarios known as SSPs, or Shared Socioeconomic Pathways. The three scenarios are a medium level of emissions that is slightly less than current levels (SSP 245), medium-high (SSP 370), and high, where emissions greatly increase (SSP 585). The data set is freely available for planners and decision-makers to use.

The projection reinforces what climate scientists have long predicted: Future weather events will become more extreme in a warming world. LOCA2 finds that the heaviest days of rain and snowfall across much of North America will likely release 20 to 30 percent more moisture than they do now.

Hundreds volunteer for Pacific Beach's annual graffiti clean up

By DAVE SCHWAB

Pacific Beach Town Council's 13th annual graffiti cleanup on May 13 was a big success again this year.

"A total of 119 volunteers went out to remove graffiti, including District 1 Councilmember Joe LaCava and his aide Vickie Joes, and 730-plus tags were removed," noted PBTC president Charlie Nieto who, along with Jaden Ballardo, delivered an event wrap-up at the group's May 17 meeting.

The pair noted those numbers were an improvement from the 12th annual cleanup last year when 87 community volunteers, and one government office representative, removed 600-plus tags.

"Last year's clean up is certainly one we are proud of, but this year the 2023 graffiti clean up undeniably blew 2022 out of the water," said Nieto. "We had astoundingly even more volunteers than anticipated and broke last year's record by 130-plus more tags and stickers removed from all across town. The turnout for this year's event from not only residents but also several local groups meant a lot to us."

Added Nieto: "We'd like to recognize DiscoverPB, Aloha Church, Pacific Life Church, PB Rotaract Club, MBHS Outreach

Club, and County Supervisor Terra Lawson-Remer's office. Of note, it was a breath of fresh air for us to see much more youth involvement this year. Lots of local families and current Buccaneers turned out for the clean up this year, which made the event especially worth it."

Nieto and Ballardo gave kudos this year to the Graffiti Busters' core team noting Jim Menders was the team's "brains," mapping all graffiti data as well as offering materials instruction. They hailed Marcie Beckett, a longtime member of PBTC's Graffiti Busters team, for being the clean-up's "mastermind," given her utter familiarity with the task along with handling publicity, organization, and data recording.

Susan Crowers was cited by them for being the clean-up's "guru," as she was crucial in planning all the graffiti meetings leading up to the big day. The town council also acknowledged her efforts in making all banners and signage for the event, as well as dealing with logistics.

Nieto considers the annual clean-up part of the town council's responsibility to ensure community enhancement. "One of many historic duties of the PBTC is to act as custodians and caretakers of the community that we all reside in and love," he said. "The work of the Graffiti Busters is one way we can execute that mission. Not only do the Graffiti Busters offer an aesthetic service of community beautification for those who live in PB, but they also support our business community, as many mom and pops become victims of vandalization, and are unfortunately ill-equipped to tackle it on their own."

PBTC's annual graffiti cleanup was started in 2008 by then-PBTC president Jerry Hall. That inaugural event was preceded by Jim Menders organizing volunteers to survey the community for graffiti, which he used to map tagging locations before training volunteers to remove tags armed with supplies and maps of where to go.

Beckett pointed out the impact of the graffiti clean-up on volunteers is long-lived. "The rest of the year these folks are more likely to remove or report graffiti on their own, which results in a better-looking community and discourages future graffiti and crime," she said. "It is a fun event and it makes people feel good to make such a positive impact on the community."

The event involved a three-hour cleanup around the community mustering at Pacific Beach Presbyterian Church on Garnet Avenue on a Saturday morning. Volunteers were provided with materials, equipment, and training to participate. Minors were allowed to get involved with a safety waiver signed by their parent or guardian.

Attendees at the cleanup included Discover PB with Community Court, Mission Bay High School's Outreach Club, Pacific Life Church, Aloha Church, PB Monthly, PB Rotaract Club, and County Supervisor Terra Lawson-Remer's Office.

The effort was sponsored by Schoettle Financial, California Strategies Inc., Pacific Beach Ice Cream Co., and Campland on the Bay.

Mission Beach want second trash pickup earlier to combat fly infestations

By DAVE SCHWAB

Some Mission Beach residents are clamoring for the City to begin the second summer trash pickup to combat fly infestation sooner than July 1.

Since July 2018, the City has increased trash, recycling, and street-sweeping services in Mission Beach to twice weekly starting July 1. Then-Mayor Kevin Faulconer granted Mission Beach a second trash pickup from early July to the end of September to fight the flies. The second trash pickup happened every Saturday on top of the normal weekly trash pickup each Tuesday.

The additional summer trash pickup has been done to proactively address fly infestations that have been a perennial problem during the summer months. Trash pickup up the rest of the year is handled once a week.

But some residents are arguing that this needs to be improved upon.

"The last three years, City Council would wait until the new budget year to fund the second trash pickup starting July 1, which allows the flies to multiply in June and the rest of the summer," argues South Mission Beach resident Mike Meyer. He added: "The plan was to charge the 1,000 short-term rentals (in MB) for the second trash pickup. Why can't the City charge $30 a month for three months and start before Memorial Day?"

Meyer said the initial response he received from the City on his proposed summer trash-pickup change was that it would be too costly, $50,000 for the three months of a second pickup.

Meyer questioned that conclusion arguing, "They (City) collect TOT (Transit Occupancy Taxes) on all these rentals. A typical three-bedroom condo on the oceanfront is $4,000 per week. That is $400 per week in TOT. In just 10 weeks, that is $4,000 per condo in income. Just 13 condos pay for the pickup during the summer."

Meyer added he was told last summer that the City would start billing short-term rental properties this year for Mission Beach's second summer trash pickup now that they have the names and addresses of Mission Beach's short-term rental businesses and could collect the fees.

Responding, City senior spokesperson Kelly Terry said: "The City Council budget currently includes proposed funding for 12 weeks of two day/week collection for City-serviced properties in Mission Beach."

FLY PREVENTION

There are numerous things Mission Beach residents can do to help prevent summer fly infestations including:

- Placing waste containers in the street or alley at the point of collection no later than 6 a.m. on collection days;
- Taking in trash bins immediately on trash collection days;
- Parking in legal spaces only (no alley parking) to allow room for trash and recycling collection and street-sweeping vehicles;
- Using trash can and trash bin liners to prevent the need for washing bins;
- Keeping waste container lids closed so flies cannot access food sources to lay eggs;
- Replacing broken containers and/or cracked container lids;
- Washing trash and recycling containers to keep the bottoms and sides free of food sources for fly eggs.
- Providing a sufficient number of containers to fully contain waste generated each week;
- Bagging and sealing trash so flies cannot lay their eggs on food sources;
- Spraying the outside of the lid and top of containers with bleach to deter flies from landing on those surfaces;
- Keeping containers in cool dark locations away from bright sunlight;
- Sweeping trash can and trash bin areas frequently.

City rolls out new Organic Waste Recycling Program

By DAVE SCHWAB

California State Senate Bill 1383 requires the reduction of organic waste – food scraps and food-soiled paper, garden and landscape waste, organic textiles, carpets, and wood waste – disposed of in landfills. To comply with the bill making San Diego more sustainable for everyone, a new Organic Waste Recycling Program is being introduced for all City residents.

Representing the biggest change to trash and recycling in San Diego's history, the new organic waste recycling program supports the City's Zero Waste and Climate Action Plan goals.

Organic waste accounts for a significant portion of California's waste stream and releases heat-trapping methane gas which contributes to climate change. Organic waste in landfills also emits air pollutants such as fine particulate matter, which contributes to health conditions like asthma.

To address these issues, SB 1383 was signed into law and targets the reduction of pollutants, including methane. Cities throughout California must meet the new reduction limits through organic waste reduction and recycling.

The City's web page, OrganicWasteRecycleSD, includes multi-language resources to help you get started, such as workshops, a list of what goes where and tips to keep your green bin clean.

Following is a Q&A between Peninsula Beacon and Renee Robertson, director of the City's Environmental Services Department, discussing what the new Organic Waste Recycling Program is all about:

BBP: When will this Organic Waste Recycling Program begin?

City: The City started rolling out new green bins to City-serviced residential and business customers in January of this year. City-serviced residents in the following beach areas are next to receive expanded organics service:

June – La Jolla, Ocean Beach, Pacific Beach, University City, and Point Loma;

July – Del Mar, Carmel Valley, Scripps Ranch, Mira Mesa, and Sorrento Valley;

August – Rancho Peñasquitos, Rancho Bernardo, and Mission Beach.

A multi-language Curbside Organic Waste Recycling Guide is being sent to those homes, with information including what goes in the green bin and how to keep it clean. Organic waste recycling is a big shift in our habits, so we recommend starting with some easy wins, such as eggshells, coffee grounds, and fruit and vegetable peels. Then work your way up to some of the "ickier" items, like meat and dairy products and leftover meal scraps.

BBP: What is the purpose of organic waste recycling?

City: Left to decompose in landfills, organic waste releases methane, a gas that traps the sun's heat and warms the atmosphere. Decomposing organics emit 20% of the state's methane, a climate super pollutant 84 times more potent than carbon dioxide. Organic waste recycling keeps food and yard waste out of landfill, which helps reduce the amount of methane released into the atmosphere.

Scripps Ranch resident Jennifer Ott uses her kitchen pail to collect vegetable and fruit trimmings to be composted.

Reducing what we throw in the trash also helps San Diego get closer to the City's Climate Action Plan and Zero Waste Plan goals of zero waste by the year 2040. Zero waste means diverting as much material and resources from the landfill through reducing, reusing, recycling, and composting.

BBP: What advantages does organic waste recycling present?

City: The most significant advantage is the immediate and positive impact it has on the environment. In fact, it is the single fastest, easiest, and most convenient thing a person can do to fight climate change. Another advantage is the local conversion of food and yard waste into compost, closing the loop and making it available again. The City's award-winning Miramar Greenery turns organic materials into a nutrient-rich soil additive for local farmers and gardeners to grow food and plants. As a result of so much organic material being processed into compost, our soils are improved and erosion is reduced.

Bonus: City residents may self-load up to two cubic yards of compost or mulch for free with proof of residency.

BBP: How will trash collection be handled differently under this program than it was previously?

City: Green bins will be collected weekly, on the same day as black trash bin collection (and from the same location). Collection from blue recycling bins will continue as normal, which is every other week.

TIPS TO KEEP YOUR GREEN BIN CLEAN

- Always keep the lid closed.
- If possible, keep your bin in a shaded area.
- If possible, delay adding food scraps to the outdoor bin until collection day.
- Freeze or refrigerate items until pickup day.
- Wrap leftover food in a newspaper, paper bag, or other food-soiled paper products.
- Sprinkle a layer of baking soda on top of organic waste if you notice odors.
- Line the bottom of your outdoor bin with newspaper, a paper bag, or yard waste to absorb excess moisture and prevent food from sticking to the bottom.

ROLLOUT OF CITY'S WEEKLY ORGANIC WASTE RECYCLING COLLECTION SERVICES:

- Kitchen pails are being delivered to all City-serviced residences.
- Green bins are being delivered to City-serviced residences not previously provided with them.
- When the green bin and kitchen pail arrive, each household can make a big environmental difference by collecting organic waste, discarding the contents into the green bin, and setting the green bin out for collection weekly at your normal trash collection location.
- Deliveries are scheduled based on your current trash collection day. Green bins will be placed on the street, next to the curb, in front of your residence.
- The distribution of new green bins for organic waste recycling will be rolled out by route. If you received a new green bin, you will have the option to exchange the container for a smaller or larger container size or to request an additional bin (requests will be reviewed for eligibility). Available green bin options are 35-gallon, 65-gallon, and 95-gallon sizes. All bin requests can be made on the Get It Done app at sandiego.gov/get-it-done or by calling 858-694-7000.

Where does a pizza box go? Tips on what is and isn't recycled

Get 'back to basics,' and refuse, reuse and recycle the right material to help ensure what goes in the blue bin gets remade into new products

Most people want to do the right thing when it comes to recycling, but confusing messages make it difficult to remember the basics. The recycling system throughout San Diego County only works if everyone does their part to keep the right materials in the blue bin and the wrong ones out.

Residents make decisions every day when faced with a greasy pizza box, a dirty take-out container, or a used single-use coffee cup from a favorite coffee roaster (soiled paper and cardboard items are not recyclable). In hope or haste, we dispose of these items, but do we collectively "recycle right" and what are the consequences of not doing so?

Californians generate an average of six pounds of waste per person, per day. Therefore, recycling plays a vital role in helping reduce waste, conserve limited resources and support the production of the raw materials manufacturers want and need.

If all the waste generated in San Diego County was deposited in the sports stadium in Mission Valley, it would take less than three weeks to fill up and it would fill 18 more times each year. Therefore, making the best decision now helps in the long run. By following these simple steps, recycling should become less confusing, more efficient and ensure valuable recyclables stay out of the landfill.

Recycling right means accepted materials are:

- Empty – No or very little food residue remaining.

- Dry – No liquids left. Liquids can ruin paper, cardboard and other materials in the recycle bin making them not recyclable.

- Loose – Do not bag recyclables. Doing so clogs the sorting equipment at the Material Recovery Facility where the contents of recycling bins go to be processed. Place accepted materials in your blue bin loose.

Recycling right cuts down on contamination. Contamination is anything that doesn't belong in the blue recycle bin such as plastic bags, batteries, clothing, cords, hoses, electronics, food, liquids, napkins and paper towels, straws, plastic utensils, and more. Many of those items may be recyclable, but not in the blue bins.

Eric Wolff, program coordinator for Solid Waste Planning and Recycling at the County of San Diego, said: "There's a big push to reduce contamination in the recycling bin since 20 percent or more of what some residents and businesses currently put in the recycle bin is actually not recyclable. Stopping contamination starts with consumers.

"Residents want to recycle," Wolff adds. "They put items they're not sure about in the recycle bin, hoping it's recyclable. That's called 'wishcycling,' and actually causes more harm than good. That's why we're going back to basics."

Back to basics means placing only accepted materials in the blue bin. Throughout the San Diego region, with a few minor exceptions, the four main groups of recyclable items are:

- Paper, cardboard and cartons.
- Plastic bottles and containers.
- Glass bottles and jars.
- Metal and aluminum cans and foil.

KICK CONTAMINANTS TO THE CURB

Workers and sorting equipment at the Material Recovery Facility (MRF) are not able to separate out all materials that don't belong from recyclables. Residents throughout the county can help by cutting out wasteful single-use items and switching to durable, reusable materials instead. To learn more about how to Recycling Right visit the County of San Diego's Recycle Right webpage and check out WasteFreeSD.org, a countywide resource for information on recycling, reuse, repair and hazardous waste disposal.

San Diego County diverts about 61 percent of its waste. California has set a goal to reduce landfill disposal by 75 percent. A study by CalRecycle found that the majority of material brought to landfills could have been recycled or composted.

Crown Point Jr. Music Academy honors teacher at groundbreaking

By DAVE SCHWAB

Crown Point Junior Music Academy celebrated the May 12 groundbreaking for its whole-site modernization with speeches, music, and violin performances, and a tribute to the late Stephen Luchs, the school's violin teacher.

"I am the super duper proud principal," said Sakeenah Smith. "I've made it my top priority to build relationships with our students, staff, and parents. Our students and this whole community deserve the state-of-the-art facilities that are planned here."

The elementary school's groundbreaking was extra special in that it also paid homage to Luchs, the teacher responsible for bringing the Suzuki Violin program to Crown Point, which eventually led the school to become Crown Point Junior Music Academy.

Members from the Luchs family were present at the groundbreaking as was retired Crown Point employee Catalina Valenzuela, who paid tribute to Luchs.

"In 2008 our school was on the verge of closing due to our low enrollment," she said. "But the district gave us an opportunity to turn into a musical academy. Mr. Luchs came in involving the parents in taking violin lessons with their kids. It is something so special and Mr. Luchs made it fun. I was fortunate to be part of those lessons with my daughter, and we got to perform together."

Added Valenzuela: "She and I would take turns being the bow and doing the fingering on the violin. This (Suzuki) program is what separates our school from others.

The violin program is what started this music academy. After that, we began to offer music enrichment classes to all grades and formed a music club and choir."

Of Luchs, Valenzuela noted: "There was no one like him. He was funny. He loved to tell jokes. He'd often start off his classes asking, 'Does anybody know any jokes today?' He was a great friend to me and others. We miss him dearly and we cannot wait for the music center and the rest of the campus to be complete."

"Thank you to the late Stephen Luchs," said San Diego Unified School District Superintendent Dr. Lamont A. Jackson during the groundbreaking. "To those who met Stephen and know how big his heart was ... he was able to bring something special here to Crown Point Junior Music Academy. And we need to celebrate that. So today is a great day. We need to carry him with us, and what he was about. Stephen Luchs loved deeply and is missed deeply. I want to recognize that he contributed to this great day."

District C board trustee Cody

SUZUKI METHOD

In 2008, teacher Stephen Luchs brought the Suzuki Violin program to what was then known as Crown Point Elementary, teaching both students and parents how to play violin and perform together. That same year, the school became known as Crown Point Junior Music Academy. A San Diego Symphony veteran, Luchs taught violin to elementary school students and parents for 26 years. One year after his death in April 2022, construction has begun on the campus' Whole Site Modernization project, which includes the construction of a new kindergarten facility, a music center and makerspace, renovated classrooms, a safe and secure main campus entryway, and outdoor improvements.

Petterson thanked Lee Dulgeroff, SDUSD chief of facilities planning and construction for "going out of his way to make sure that improvements on this site reflect the focus of this campus. We're going to see performance spaces. We're going to see practice spaces. And you're finally going to have facilities that actually facilitate the kids, the parents, and the teachers doing the work that they're here to do."

City increases street sweeping in Mission Beach for summer

The City of San Diego is increasing street sweeping throughout Mission Beach alleyways this summer, in response to an increase in visitors during the busy tourist season. The added effort will help reduce pollution from increased trash and debris from the crowds and beachgoers, preventing it from reaching the ocean or Mission Bay.

Started on May 24, Mission Beach alleys will be swept every week on Wednesdays. The summer sweeping schedule will continue through September. The Stormwater Department is using sweeping equipment that will allow it to reach nearly every alley in both North and South Mission Beach.

"We know the summer months attract more local and out-of-town tourists to the beach communities and we want to make sure we keep a high quality of life for everyone, residents and visitors," said Councilmember Jennifer Campbell, who represents Mission Beach. "I want to thank the Stormwater Department for adding street sweeping routes to remove trash and debris which reduces fly infestations in our beach communities."

The enhanced sweeping in Mission Beach has the added benefits of reducing the nuisance of insects during the summer and helping improve vector control efforts throughout the community.

Alleys are not part of the regular street sweeping program, as the lack of raised curbs makes the space ineffective for a traditional sweeper. Instead, a smaller, electric-powered sweeper is used to reach trash and debris in the alleyways.

"Regular street sweeping is one of our most powerful tools when it comes to keeping our neighborhoods clean and preventing ocean pollution," said Sumer Hasenin, interim director of the City's Stormwater Department. "The weekly sweeping in Mission Beach will help ensure that San Diegans and visitors alike can enjoy our world-class beaches and bays throughout the summer. We encourage everyone to 'Think Blue' by properly disposing of litter and debris so we can stop pollution before it starts."

Residents and visitors can help improve street sweeping efforts by following posted parking signs, taking in trash cans immediately on trash collection days, and reporting illegal dumping and other problems promptly to the City's Get It Done application.

Rainfall that enters storm drains is not treated, and that runoff collects pollutants from properties and streets and carries them into local waterways. Streetsweeping helps remove both large and microscopic pollutants, such as brake dust, from vehicles before they reach a storm drain. Those particles can be extremely harmful to fish and other wildlife.

On May 24, the City of San Diego started increasing street sweeping every Wednesday throughout alleyways in Mission Beach during the summer months. This effort reduces pollution from trash and debris left behind by summer crowds. COURTESY PHOTO

County Board to leverage funds for new housing developments

By GIG CONAUGHTON

County Supervisors approved setting aside $32 million in state and County funds on May 23 to help quickly create housing for people experiencing homelessness, or who are at risk of homelessness, and $4.6 million a year in services to support them.

The Board action came on the heels of the state making over $34 million for the San Diego region available in Homekey funding in late March.

California's Homekey program was started in 2020 to provide funding to local governments to rapidly buy housing options to help the most vulnerable during the COVID-19 pandemic. It is now in its third round of funding.

The County is partnering with the San Diego Housing Commission and the City of San Diego to apply for the Homekey funding to buy and rehabilitate housing focusing on four development projects.

The County's $32 million would come from $24.5 million in federal American Rescue Act Plan funds and $7.5 million from the County's Behavioral Health Impact Fund.

The City of San Diego would also contribute $32 million; the Housing Commission will add 320 project-based housing assistance vouchers valued at over $68 million.

The County's Health and Human Services Agency would use the $4.6 million annual funding to provide behavioral health and other services to support new tenants.

"This partnership coupled with the available Homekey funding can provide permanent housing and crucial supportive services to an estimated 325 to 500 San Diegans in need," said David Estrella, director of the County's Housing and Community Development Services. "Today's action paves the way to ensure valuable State resources are brought home for the most vulnerable residents in our community."

Local governments that are eligible to use the Homekey money include cities, counties and other local public agencies that can apply with for-profit and nonprofit developers.

In 2022, the County, City of San Diego, San Diego Housing Commission and PATH ventures were awarded $11.8 million in Homekey funds to build a 41-unit development that is currently under construction.

The County's reserved capital and supportive services funding is contingent on the completion of due diligence and Homekey funding awards.

Long time Realtor Chris Love moves to eXp of Southern California Realty

By DAVE SCHWAB

PB Realtor Chris Love has moved her Coastal Properties business from 4090 Mission Blvd. to a new home at 4125 Mission Blvd.

"I'd been at the same location with Coldwell Banker's office since 1976 and they gave us notice on April 14 that they were going to shut the doors," said longtime Realtor Love, who had to pivot quickly. "We were trying to figure out who to go with as our license was about to expire. So we left Coldwell Banker and went with eXp across the street and built it up from the ground."

Luckily for her, developer husband Bill Clapperton was able to come to Love's rescue. "He was able to pull a crew off a big remodel in the area and put it over there and we were able to do it in 16 days, a brand new office," said Love of refurbishing her new space.

Helen Villiers, certified transaction coordinator with eXp Realty, said Love and her 10 colleagues who came over are a welcome addition. "It is truly an honor and a privilege to announce Chris Love, a true pillar of Pacific Beach and Mission Beach to eXp of Southern California Realty," she said. "Chris has been an integral part of this real estate community since the mid-70s, and her professionalism, unparalleled insight into the luxury market, and boundless energy have made her a trusted figure in the industry."

Added Villiers, "As a fourth-generation San Diego and Mission Beach local, Chris's connection to the area runs deep. Over the past 40 years, she and Bill have owned real estate offices in Mission Beach and Pacific Beach. Their leadership has paved the way for countless agents to build successful careers and become household names in the real-estate community."

Love's legacy lies in her ability to truly understand luxury properties and establish long-lasting relationships with her clients. "It's not uncommon for her to sell the same home multiple times to different people over the years – a testament to her expertise and knowledge of the market," Villiers said.

Chris and Bill are also known for their generosity. "They devote their time and resources to multiple charities and worthy causes," Villiers said adding, "Currently, Chris serves as a board member for Rally4Reilly.org, an organization dedicated to helping families affected by spinal cord injuries. While Chris has gained international recognition, her focus remains firmly on serving the local community, specifically Pacific and Mission beaches and La Jolla."

Asked how she got into real estate, Love said she worked for a bank for a year out of college before going into the industry because it offered "the chance for a woman to be successful, I had the skill set and I knew the area."

She attributes her success to "hard work and dedication."

What's changed most in the real estate business during her tenure?

"When I started the real estate contract was one page, and now it's hundreds of pages," replied Love who spoke of the biggest change of all nowadays for realtors. "With the internet, we're all working globally," she said. "PB and MB are global markets now, though they've always also been local markets. We have people coming in from Los Angeles and San Francisco and all over. They want to be at the beach."

New upscale restaurant Dockside 1953 sails into Bahia Resort Hotel

A new upscale restaurant making waves on the shores of Mission Bay is ready for its close-up. Dockside 1953, with its waterfront setting, nautical-inspired design, and eclectic menu of dishes by new executive chef Bryan Stuppy, is poised to become a popular restaurant for hotel guests and locals alike. Aptly named for its marina-facing, bayfront locale at the Bahia Resort Hotel and the year the resort opened, Dockside 1953 is a new spot for the coastal dining scene.

"The Dockside 1953 name conjures up fond memories of the Bahia Resort in the 1950s. It's an homage to the quintessential Southern California beach experience, coupled with a nautical look and feels that's as elevated as the cuisine," said Robert Gleason, president and CEO of Evans Hotels. "We're excited to present Dockside 1953, in conjunction with the 70th anniversary of the Bahia Resort this year."

EXECUTIVE CHEF

Stuppy has worked with world-class chefs, helped lead the kitchens of luxury hotels, and even cooked for President Obama (twice) and Hollywood celebrities. He received his education at the Pennsylvania Culinary Institute's Le Cordon Bleu Culinary Arts Program, finishing his degree through an externship at the landmark Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs. He worked his way up to sous chef for six years before setting his sights on San Diego in 2012.

For 10 years he served as sous chef and chef de cuisine at the Hyatt Regency La Jolla. He accepted the role of executive chef at the Bahia Resort Hotel in September 2022, joined by executive sous chef Alyssa Franke in October. Franke previously managed the kitchen staff at several San Diego restaurants and resorts including Coasterra, San Diego Mission Bay Resort, and Viejas Casino and Resort. Stuppy's culinary expertise spans the gamut of the gastronomic world, including fine dining, chef's tables, tasting menus, banquets, and catering.

"I relish my role at Dockside 1953, showcasing the cooking skills I've honed over the years and bringing fresh ideas to the table," said Stuppy. "These past few months we've seen the food program evolve and all areas of the kitchen and hotel coalescing into a wonderful and unique dining experience for guests."

MENU/FLAVOR

Fresh, coastal-inspired, and locally sourced – Stuppy's eclectic menu of California fare features dishes to satisfy all palates for breakfast, lunch, and dinner. His overall inspiration was San Diego – past, present, and future – the legacy of Evans Hotels in Mission Bay, and the picturesque bayside views from Dockside's patio.

"The menu recognizes the abundance Southern California has to offer. It has a strong focus on sustainable seafood from our local fishmongers, and the highest quality produce from local farmers, growers, and producers," said Stuppy. "I want diners at Dockside to feel like they've experienced something special. I strive to see my passion for food and appreciation of all that nature provides reflected in every dish we create."

Breakfast includes sweet and savory options like the Butterscotch Banana French Toast and Beachside Omelet with applewood-smoked bacon, tomato, avocado, and cheddar cheese. Lunch serves up crisp salads like the Dockside Cobb, imaginative flatbreads including the Prosciutto & Brie and Pork Banh Mi, and company best-sellers like the famous Drugstore Hamburger (The Grill at Torrey Pines).

Stuppy's talent shines through in his new dinner menu. Seafood lovers can enjoy "raw" standouts like locally caught Rockfish Ceviche, and the Seafood Tower with oysters, shrimp, ceviche, seared tuna, and lobster. "Share" starters range from sherry demi-glace Indian Iron Mountain Mushrooms and The Green House salad to Wagyu & Lamb Meatball and Bistro Steamed Mussels.

For "feast" entrees, guests can enjoy mains like Steak Frites au Poivre, Chicken Under a Brick, a company classic (A.R. Valentien), and Forbidden Rice Risotto featuring local farmer's market vegetables, curry coconut sauce, pomegranate chimichurri, and harissa oil. Specialties from the sea include a Local Catch of the Day (from Tommy Gomes' TunaVille Market in Point Loma), Pan Seared Seabass Meuniere, and Shrimp Arrabbiata.

Delectable desserts include a decadent Chocolate Cake, Pavlova with seasonal fruit and berries, and Key Lime Tart.

DESIGN/VIBE

Dockside 1953's light and airy, casual-Californian beachside design features yacht club-inspired furniture, décor, and furnishings, including table tops and menu boards that resemble vintage wooden boat decking, brass signage, nautical style light fixtures, blue wave-patterned tapestries, and seafoam blue and sand-colored upholstered seating.

Taking inspiration from the scenic waterfront location, several paintings of classic motor yachts and notable San Diego icons including the Star of India, Point Loma Lighthouse, and Giant Dipper rollercoaster, adorn the walls. A handcrafted scale model of a vintage speedboat serves as an eye-catching centerpiece of the restaurant.

Dockside features a spacious outdoor patio with cozy fire pits and unobstructed bay views. Trellis rafters shade guests from the sun and rain, making it suitable for year-round outdoor dining.

LIBATIONS/COCKTAILS

The restaurant boasts a beverage program brimming with crafted cocktails, several of which pay tribute to the cocktail trends of the 1950s. Classic mixed drinks include the Maple Walnut Old Fashioned, Butterfly Champagne Cocktail (a refreshing mix of Tito's Vodka, lemon, cucumber, and Butterfly Pea Tea Simple Syrup topped with sparkling rosé), and Leaves of Change (made with Empress 1908 Gin, Julian Apple Cider, Seven Caves Bourbon Barrel-Aged Maple Syrup, and red wine vinegar). Complementing Bahia's beachfront setting, guests can also imbibe tropical drinks such as the signature Bahia Mai Tai and Rum Punch, and regional specialties like the Mango-Ginger Margarita along with an extensive wine list and local craft beers.

Adventure seeker, podcaster, and LJHS grad writes 'wild' book

By DAVE SCHWAB

Journalist-turned-podcaster Shelby Stanger has written a book titled "Will to Wild: Adventures Great and Small to Change Your Life."

The San Diego Community Newspaper Group alum is a La Jolla High School grad who interned for the Beach & Bay Press and La Jolla Village News in 1999-2000. She said her university professor's advice to "intern for a community newspaper," is what set her on her ultimate fulfilling career course. And her career choice involves two subjects: nature and adventure.

"This is a really fun read that encourages you to go outside and go for it," enthused Stanger about her perfectly timed book. "Covid was really hard on all of our mental health, but people are starting to get more outside and more active," she said. "Now is the time to get deeper into nature and have an adventure. Doing an adventure – even a small one – will help you reset, recharge, heal, and just might change your life."

What's an adventure?

"Usually outdoors, it involves some risk, some unknown, and physicality taking you somewhere else whether it's into the trees, trails, mountains, waves – taking your mind into a different state," Stanger answered. She added, "Combining nature and adventure always seems to have a synergistic effect. Trying an adventure is the most effective way to create a shift in your mind and build courage."

Pointing out "life itself is an adventure," adding "adventure is life's antidote," Stanger pointed out every adventure she's ever undertaken "has given me the courage to do something else in my life."

Stanger's book has examples of a range of adventurers from a suburban mom who became an ice-climbing guide at age 55, to a group of boogie-boarding grandmas, to a bird watcher, and someone who skied to the South Pole while she was undergoing menopause.

Podcaster Shelby Stanger is always chasing adventures around the globe.

Of her time at SDCNG Stanger said. "I loved my time there. Looking back at my old clips, I covered older ladies breaking records and people biking and hiking across the country for a purpose. The funny thing is, I'm still covering fascinating people who pursue unconventional paths, seeing what the 'wild' looks like for them."

Before launching her podcasting career in 2016, Stanger was inspired to get into the profession after taking an accelerator women's course, modeling a plan for it from the outdoor and action sports industry.

"And my business was a podcast, which I thought was the perfect thing to start with," she said. "My plan included three podcasts and a trailer. It was something I continued to pursue as a podcast host for Wild Ideas Worth Living, which I started and sold to REI Co-op and still host."

Of podcasts, Stanger said: "They're really intimate, special. For 30- to 60 minutes at a time, you're telling stories. Now, as an author, I've learned that even a little adventure can go a long way."

"Will to Wild: Adventures Great and Small to Change Your Life," published by Simon and Schuster, is coming out Tuesday, June 6.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Shelby Stanger is passionate about how to use the power of adventure to improve mental well-being. Her work has appeared everywhere from Outside Magazine, CNN, and ESPN. Stanger's book comes out Tuesday, June 6, and she will hold a book reading that day at Warwick's Bookstore at 7:30 p.m. at 7812 Girard Ave. She also has a talk at TEDx San Diego on June 11 at the Conrad in La Jolla. Tickets are sold out but you can buy livestream at tedxsandiego.com. For more information, visit ShelbyStanger.com.

In 2016, Stanger started the Wild Ideas Worth Living Podcast to dive deeper into stories of how adventure and nature change us. The podcast is now owned by REI Co-op Studios, and Stanger, who has interviewed hundreds of adventurers, remains the host and creator of the show. A sought-after speaker, Stanger has spoken to organizations like Creative Mornings, The Girl Scouts of America, NPR, and TEDx.

Always chasing adventures, Stanger has surfed from Canada to Costa Rica; sand-boarded down desolate dunes in Cape Town; paddled down a remote portion of the Amazon River, and interviewed countless CEOs, athletes, activists, and thought leaders. She regularly consults with highly motivated individuals and major brands to tell better stories and even launch their own podcasts and wild ideas.

LIVE FROM SAN DIEGO – Music performances on the coast this week

By BART MENDOZA

SPOTLIGHT

Grammy-winning Mexican duo Rodrigo y Gabriela (right) stop in at Humphrey's Concerts by the Bay for a two-night stand on May 26 and 27. Few instrumental acoustic duo's could play a venue like Humphrey's for one night, let alone two, but Rodrigo y Gabriela's fanbase for their mix of flamenco, jazz and rock continues to grow on an international level. Currently touring behind their new album, "In Between Thoughts... A New World," the pair's performances on signature nylon stringed guitars are passionate, manic, and inspired, with a compelling percussive element to their playing. Any of their seven studio albums to date are well worth hearing, but a chance to experience their music live, in a beautiful setting like Humphrey's shouldn't be passed up. Opening the shows will be the group, The Krooked Kings.

Rodrigo y Gabriela: Friday and Saturday, May 26 and May 27 at Humphrey's Concerts by the Bay, 2241 Shelter Island Drive. 7:30 p.m. $66.50. humphreysconcerts.com.

RECOMMENDED

Anyone who enjoys music from the great American songbook will want to hear pianist Joshua

White, who performs as part of the Fourth Friday Jazz Series at the La Jolla Community Center on May 26. White is one of San Diego's most gifted performers, known for his amazing improvisational skills. For this show, however, he will focus on the songcraft of composer Harold Arlen. While Arlen's name may not be a household word, his songs have become standards, including "Stormy Weather," "Get Happy," "That Old Black Magic," "Over the Rainbow," and other "Wizard of Oz" favorites such as, "Ding-Dong! The Witch Is Dead." Jazz aficionados will find much to enjoy in White's updated renditions of these immortal tunes.

Joshua White: Friday, May 26 at the La Jolla Community Center, 6811 La Jolla Blvd. 7 p.m. $35. ljcommunitycenter.org.

When it comes to mixing adrenaline and melody, few have made the impact of punk pioneers, The Ramones. Formed in New York, circa 1974, the band's many hits have led to the formation of tribute bands over the years, but none nail the sound and the image quite as well as San Diego-based quartet, Hey! Ho! Let's Go!, who appear at Campland on the Bay on May 26. You'll hear all of the band's best known tunes, from "Sheena Is A Punk Rocker" to "Rockaway Beach," but the biggest impression will be how much the band's frontman looks and sounds like Ramones singer, Joey Ramone. With The Ramones now long gone, Hey! Ho! Let's Go! truly is the next best thing.

Hey! Ho! Let's Go: Friday, May 26 at Campland on the Bay. 7 p.m. No cover. campland.com.

Classic rock fans won't want to miss an appearance from tribute band, Fleetwood Max on June 2 at Humphrey's Backstage Live. While Fleetwood Max doesn't go the doppelganger route, the six-piece group specializes in their namesakes' biggest Top 40 hits from their most successful 1970s era. Expect to hear such evergreens as "Go Your Own Way" and "Don't Stop," while they also dig deeper into Fleetwood Mac's six-decade-long career to include pre-Buckingham/Nicks FM radio staples, including blues rocker, "Oh Well." This show promises to be like listening to Fleetwood Mac's greatest hits compilation, live.

Fleetwood Max: Friday, June 2 at Humphrey's Backstage Live, 2241 Shelter Island Drive. 8 p.m. $15. humphreysbackstagelive.com.

Nobody does down-and-dirty barroom rhythm and blues better than Lady Dottie & The Diamonds, who appear at Beaumont's Eatery on June 2.

The long-running combo features powerhouse singer Dorothy Mae "Lady Dottie" Whitsett helming a band with a fluid lineup, but no matter who is onstage each night, they always provide a soundtrack of music made to fill dancefloors, with plenty of grit and groove. The Diamonds set list includes songs by the likes of Etta James, Muddy Waters, and Chuck Berry, topped by a long list of choice originals, such as "I Ain't Mad At Ya."

Lady Dottie & The Diamonds: Friday, June 2 at Beaumont's Eatery, 5662 La Jolla Blvd. 9 p.m. $10. beaumontseateary.com.

Tio Leo's is debuting a new music series, Cabaret Nights, set to take place on select Monday evenings, from 6-8 p.m. Kicking things off on June 5 will be keyboardist Taryn Donath, performing as a duo alongside drummer Matthew Taylor. Donath is the winner of the "Best Blues Artist" category at the 2022 San Diego Music Awards and it's easy to see why. While accurately categorized, her sound also takes in '60s soul, jazz, funk, jump/swing, and Latin rhythms. Donath is an incredible improviser, and her rapport with Taylor is practically psychic, making for a big, danceable sound from just two players.

Taryn Donath: Monday, June 5 at Tio Leo's, 6333 Mission Gorge Road. 7 p.m. No cover. tioleos.com.

Toward the end of the hour-long presentation at Snapdragon Stadium on Thursday, which officially introduced San Diego as the newest team in Major League Soccer starting in 2025, the final speaker was MLS San Diego CEO Tom Penn.

Penn spoke for about eight minutes and during that time he struck the right tone while paying homage to all the clubs that have had an impact in America's Finest City when it comes to growing what we all know as the beautiful sport.

“For those who have done such great work in this community for this sport,” said Penn. “The San Diego Loyal have embraced this community. Andrew Vassiliadis, and Landon Donovan, huge shout out to what they have done as an organization.”

The words were noticed by the many San Diego Loyal fans and members of its supporters' groups who clapped and cheered at that precise moment.

"How about the San Diego Wave led by Jill Ellis and what they have done for this community," he continued. "The San Diego Sockers, Albion, 1904, the San Diego Flash. All that work that's been done we look to embrace and build on, and it's not the organizations, it's the supporter groups that give of their time and their talent and their passion."

Among the supporter groups that were recognized by name were The Locals, Chavos de Loyal, the Sirens, and American Outlaws as Penn gave all a cordial invite to be part of the process of helping build what San Diego fans hope will be a formidable team that can compete right off the bat.

The most recent city to enter the league is St. Louis, which currently sits in fourth place in the Western Conference standings and has already beaten teams like the Portland Timbers, Real Salt Lake, and San Jose Earthquakes.

that have already lifted the MLS Cup (San Jose doing twice in 2001 and 2003 when Landon Donovan played there).

As for the work that MLS San Diego has in its immediate future it includes reaching out to the fan base and getting the community involved in everything from picking a name, colors, and kit design to shaping the culture and values of the team that San Diego Loyal, San Diego Wave, Albion San Diego, and San Diego Sockers have done so well.

"All the passionate supporter groups, we want to hear from you, we want to learn with you, we want to work with you and build something special to go after Los Angeles, and I'm talking about both of them up there."

MLS San Diego has already hit the ground running sending out street teams to engage with residents of Chula Vista and the beach communities with the rest of the county to follow.

Exhibition on view now through July 8 – Wendell Kling transforms the Athenaeum's gallery and windows at 1008 Wall St. in La Jolla with light, color and cut paper silhouetted imagery to create a peaceful, contemplative retreat. Taking inspiration from temples of various belief systems, A Coruscating Sanctuary provides a platform for the activities that take place within. Kineto-luminescent furnishings and lights orient participants to the central "altar" and matching lectern. Here, the sanctuary invites visitors to participate in quiet reflection, readings, and occasional activations in the exchange of philosophies through poetry, sound, movement, and performance. Kling's work is grounded in contemporary interdisciplinary practice that often incorporates sculptural objects with two-dimensional media, installation, performance, and film.

It's National Bike Month and researchers analyzed a series of factors such as infrastructure, traffic safety, weather, share of commuters who ride a bike to work, number of coworking options with bike amenities, and bike sharing services. San Diego took ninth place among the most bike-friendly U.S. cities. In terms of infrastructure and safety, San Diego registered 1 mile of bike lanes per square mile, with one bike accident per 100,000 people over five years, which puts the city in the top 10 in the ranking; San Diego also showcased exceptionally good weather conditions for cycling, ranking third. When it comes to co-working options, four locations offer bike-related amenities in the city, being the fourth best ranking among the Californian locations; California dominated the list of most bike-friendly cities, securing eight spots in the top 20, with San Francisco, Oakland, and Los Angeles making it to the top 10.

San Diego Humane Society announced Brian Daugherty as its new executive vice president. Daugherty was promoted after serving for seven years as senior vice president and chief philanthropy and communications officer at SDHS. In his new role, Daugherty will add oversight of operations, to help with the vision, direction and evaluation of all departments. "Brian's promotion is designed to enable staff and volunteers at the core of the work we do: help pet families stay together," said Dr. Gary Weitzman, president and CEO of SDHS. "As animal welfare continues to evolve, our work will evolve with it to best meet the needs of our community."

Transdev workers represented by Teamsters Local 683 who provide transportation services for the San Diego Metropolitan Transit System (MTS) are on an unfair labor practice strike. Local 683 has filed three ULP charges and an OSHA complaint against Transdev for bargaining in bad faith, threatening workers for honoring a picket line, unilaterally changing drivers' schedules, and failing to provide workers with access to sanitary bathrooms and secure rest areas for their legally mandated breaks. MTS East County routes are currently operating at 85% of normal. South Bay division routes are not as high due to call-offs. All other divisions and the trolley still operating normally. The South Bay Bus routes that may be impacted include 1, 3, 5, 27, 28, 35, 225, 701, 704, 705, 709, 712, 901, 904, 905, 906, 907, 909, 916, 917, 923, 929, 932, 933, 934, 950/950A, 955, 961, 962, 963, 967, 968, 992.

PB HOMICIDE

A 49-year-old man staying at Campland on the Bay in Pacific Beach was shot in the chest near the resort's pool on May 16 about 10 p.m. and died later after being transported to a hospital, said San Diego Police Department. Police detectives said the shooting victim was with a group at the pool of Campland, at 2211 Pacific Beach Drive, when a fight ensued between he and a suspect, identified by police as 38-year-old Michael Callahan. Police said the suspect left following the fight returning later with a handgun and allegedly opened fire on the victim. The suspect then fled the scene of the shooting but was later found in his motor home at the park.

The suspect was arrested on a murder charge and booked into San Diego County Jail, police said. A motive for the shooting was not disclosed. Callahan was being held at San Diego Central Jail without bail. His arraignment was scheduled for May 19. "We are co-operating with local law enforcement who have asked that we not comment as they complete their investigation," said Jacob Gelfand, COO of Terra Vista Management, Inc., Campland's operators. The victim's name was being withheld pending notification of kin. Anyone with information on the case is urged to contact SDPD's Homicide Unit at 619-531-2293. Anonymous tips can be made by contacting Crime Stoppers at 888-580-8477.

BEACH AND BAY SAFETY THIS HOLIDAY WEEKEND

On Thursday, May 25, the San Diego Fire-Rescue Department (SDFD) Lifeguard Division and San Diego Police shared information regarding beach and bay safety during the Memorial Day holiday weekend. SDFD lifeguards typically see an increase in visitors and activity at Mission Bay, one of the nation's top destinations for aquatic enthusiasts. With more than 40 miles of oceanfront and bay shoreline to patrol throughout the city, SDFD lifeguards help keep an average of 17 million visitors safe and conduct an estimated 7,000 rescues at local beaches each year. Additionally, lifeguards manage cliff, scuba and swift water rescues, enforce boating safety

"Lifeguards and police officers patrolling the beaches and Mission Bay want everyone to have a safe and enjoyable experience," said Lifeguard Chief James Gartland. "Boaters and passengers should learn safety regulations before operating a vessel and be aware of individuals illegally renting vessels."

In addition, the Clean Beach Coalition – sponsored by Think Blue San Diego and the City's Parks and Recreation Department – will be adding 200 extra trash and recycling bins during major holiday weekends this summer to keep beach areas free of trash and debris.

MT. SOLEDAD MEMORIAL ON MAY 29

The Mt. Soledad National Veterans Memorial will honor Navy Aviation Radioman 3rd Class Walter "Uncle Bert" Mintus, those Missing in Action (MIA), Killed in Action (KIA), and those service members who have been repatriated with the help of Project Recover through an online and live and free in-person event on Monday, May 29 from 11 a.m. to noon.

"Uncle Bert" Mintus' aircraft was the lead of four Avengers on a mission targeting the Japanese base in the Republic of Palau. All three servicemen on board, including Mintus, were reported missing in action and subsequently presumed dead on Feb. 4, 1946. "We are humbled beyond words to be able to honor his service and all of the fallen this Memorial Day. Our family wishes to thank everyone at the Mt. Soledad National Veterans Memorial for honoring our great uncle Bert," said his great-niece

Kathy Coder.

The keynote speaker will be U.S. Navy Vice Adm. Kenneth Whitesell, Commander Naval Air Force/Commander, Naval Air Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet. Whitesell has accumulated over 4,000 flight hours and 1,005 carrier-arrested landings flying F-14 and F-18 aircraft. Special guest speaker will be Dr. Pat Scannon, M.D., Ph.D., founder of Project Recover. Project Recover is a collaborative effort to apply 21st-century science and technology in a quest to find and repatriate Americans who were lost in war in order to provide recognition and closure for families and the nation. The nonprofit organization Project Recover located the Avenger in 2016 and turned its findings over to the Defense POW/MIA Accounting Agency. Mintus was repatriated to his family in Pennsylvania in 2018. Currently there are 81,000-plus service

GODDESS COFFEE

Goddess Coffee, which markets itself as the City's first bikini barista coffee shop, is anticipated to open on May 27 at 910 Grand Ave. in Pacific Beach. Goddess Coffee will open in the plaza that also houses The Grass Skirt and Rubio's. The cafe will feature bikini-clad baristas serving an array of coffee and espresso drinks made with Fair Trade and organic beans from South Park's veteran-owned Seven Seas Roasting. There will also be grab-and-go food and pastries, as well as protein-infused beverages and mushroom coffee. The business' mission is to inspire women everywhere to free their inner goddess; to love their bodies, embrace their sensuality, their natural beauty, and their divine feminine power within, according to the company's website.

BIKE ANYWHERE DAY

Thousands participated in SANDAG Bike Anywhere Day, formerly Bike to Work Day, on Thursday, May 18. Nearly 3,700 people took the free pledge to GO by BIKE and visited more than 100 pit stops around the region, including one at Pacific Beach/Taylor Library at 4275 Cass St. and the La Jolla Riford Branch Library at 7555 Draper Ave. "Thanks to everyone that participated in Bike Anywhere Day. Today was a great example of how our community can come together to promote a cleaner environment," said SANDAG and San Diego Supervisor chairwoman Nora Vargas. "It shows our commitment as a county in promoting active ways of transportation and moves us closer to cleaner air and healthier and stronger communities in San Diego County."

From Oceanside to El Cajon to Tijuana, bicyclists were cheered on and greeted by volunteers as they pedaled through the 100 pit stops across the San Diego region. At the pit stops, riders received a free commemorative SANDAG Bike Anywhere Day 2023 T-shirt, snacks, refreshments, and a SANDAG regional bike map to explore the more than 1,700 miles of featured bikeways. SANDAG has organized this event for more than 30 years to promote a fun, environmentally friendly, and cost-saving alternative to driving. For more information about biking and other alternative transportation programs, visit SANDAG.org/BikeMonth.

SALT & STRAW IN UTC

Salt & Straw ice cream has opened a new scoop shop in La Jolla, bringing their cult-favorite flavors to the popular Westfield UTC shopping center, 575 La Jolla

Village Drive, Suite 1150. Salt & Straw will feature its Upcycled Food Series on its menu. Available from May 26 through the month of June, the series features five flavors, each in partnership with brands focused on reducing food waste in the U.S., with the menu itself fully certified upcycled by the Upcycled Food Association. Upcycled food is an innovative approach that creates new, high-quality products from ingredients that would have otherwise ended up in a food waste destination. Through this series, Salt & Straw aims to save approximately 38,000 pounds of food from going to waste.

BENEFIT CONCERT

A benefit concert featuring world-class Ukrainian pianist Oleg Poliansky will take place on Sunday, June 18 at 4 p.m. at La Jolla Community Center, 6811 La Jolla Blvd. Poliansky was born in 1968 in Kiev, now Ukraine. He has won prizes at many international competitions. He has performed in the largest international concert halls and performed as a soloist with renowned orchestras such as Moscow Soloists. Poliansky is also a distinguished chamber musician. For further details, see eventbrite.com or call 858-740-4049.

FOUNDATION FUNDRAISER

The Marine Room restaurant at 2000 Spindrift Drive in La Jolla is presenting "A Conscious Catch" at 6 p.m. Tuesday, June 13. Marine Room executive chef Mike Minor and chef de cuisine Alex Pailles, sustainable-seafood chef Rick Moonen, and others have created a menu that minimizes carbon footprints and supports local seafood purveyors. Proceeds will benefit the La Jolla-based Walter Munk Foundation for the Oceans. Visit bit.ly/MarineRoomConsciousCatch.

PET ADOPTION EVENT

ABC Veterinary Hospital Pacific Beach at 2032 Hornblend St. is holding its first adoption event on June 10 from 1-4 p.m. The hospital has been a long standing community member of PB for over 30 years, and is dedicated to being as involved in the community as possible. The adoption event will include a taco food truck, games, prizes and puppies and kittens. They are working with Kanes K9 Animal Rescue and Del Mar Dog Rescue to try and get these furbabies adopted. They offer urgent care services, surgical services, preventative care and international travel services. The first 60 guests will get a free taste of The Lime Truck, and get the chance to meet staff and participate in merchandise giveaways.

FIDO SHIRT SALE & CLEANUP

T-shirt sale ends on June 4. Show your support for FIDO's efforts to preserve and maintain the dog park, all while wearing the newest FIDO apparel. Check out all the goods on Bonfire – shirts should begin arriving June 13. The next cleanup at the dog park is on Sunday, June 11 from 9:30-11 a.m. fidosd.org.

RUBIO'S LAUNCHES NEW CARNITAS

It's time to celebrate Rubio's 40th summer — the summer of Baja — beginning with the launch of tender, slow-cooked Carnitas. Available starting May 31 will be the new Baja-inspired Carnitas Macha Two Taco Plate, Carnitas Macha Bowl, and Carnitas Macha Burrito. Guests can also get the carnitas on any of their favorites, as a substitute for chicken or steak. Rubio's Summer of Baja also features Baja Weekends, kicking off Memorial Day weekend. From May 25 through Labor Day weekend, guests can enjoy $3 alcohol and free chips with any drink purchase, dine in only, every Thursday to Sunday, after 3 p.m.

POLICE PRACTICES COMMISSION

San Diego City Council members voted to appoint the new commissioners to the Commission on Police Practices, a significant milestone in the ongoing efforts to implement Measure B and ensure transparency, accountability, and to foster trust between the community and the San Diego Police Department. "As chair of the City of San Diego Public Safety Committee, I am excited that we are one step closer to implementing bold, robust, and transparent police oversight," said Councilmember Marni von Wilpert. "I am confident the new commissioners will bring valuable and diverse expertise and perspectives to the table, and I am eager for them to get to work as soon as possible."

The Wonderful World of Fashion and Golden Scissors Fashion Show

Fashion Files
Diana Cavagnaro

The opening number with Gretchen Burns at The Wonderful World of Fashion.

Design by local designer Hayden Mercado at The Wonderful World of Fashion.

The Wonderful World of Fashion was presented by the Friends of Vista Hill and JMS Fund on May 5 at the Town and Country Resort. The event chair was Diane Zeps and the honorary chair was Laura Applegate for this luncheon and fashion show. Sandra Maas, the mistress of ceremonies, began the festivities and greeted the crowd.

Gretchen Productions produced and directed this entertaining fashion show. Gretchen Bergman is known for her theatrical shows. In keeping with the theme, “The Wonderful World of Fashion,” they reprised this iconic song, which Louis Armstrong brought to the top of the charts in the United Kingdom back in April of 1968. Five fashion capitals of the world were celebrated: London, Paris, Milan, New York, and Tokyo. The models came down the runway showing off the latest fashions. Each segment took us to places around the world with pictures in the backdrop of the stage.

This year, the proceeds go to the Don Allen ParentCare Family Recovery Center and Parent Care Central. These programs focus on both substance use disorder and trauma-informed mental health treatment. The primary goals are to help mothers achieve a sober, drug-free lifestyle and to ensure children grow up in safe and healthy families. Their goal is to build Stronger Families ... Brighter Futures. DESIGNED TO LAST

The San Diego Mesa College fashion program presented the 42nd Annual Golden Scissors Fashion Show on May 12. The theme for this event was “Designed to Last” and began with a meet and greet with the designers on the Outdoor Quad at Mesa College. The evening was a collaborative effort from all the different departments on campus. The audience was entertained by talented musicians from the music department. A hospitality professor, Brian Lesson, provided the hors d’oeuvres. The videographer was from the drama/film department.

Jordyn Smiley, fashion program director, was the mistress of ceremonies and greeted the audience. The fashion show presented the amazing designs created by the Collection Class. The evening finished off by awarding the winners of the design showcase.

Grace Rosburg earned first place for the collection she named “Natural Sensibility.” Other first-place awards were given to Sophia Jeanelle Carlos for Sustainability/Upcycling, Nermin Arslan for Smart Casual/Daywear, Alex Perez for Children’s Wear, Ena Walters for Accessory Design, and Lydia Niebla for Special Occasion/Evening.

The creative director of Designed to Last was Liese Victoria and the executive committee was Yoon Bahar and Kathie Taylor. San Diego Mesa College is a public community college, which is the 16th largest in the state. The fashion program offers degrees and certificates in fashion design and fashion merchandising. They also have computer fashion technology in design and computer fashion technology in merchandising. For more information about Mesa College, visit sdmesa.edu.

SCOTT’S PB SPOTLIGHT

The US Service Member

Throughout the course of the US's history, there have been men and women that have sacrificed their lives for their country and have done it willingly and without regard for their own safety. Some of those people were met with praise and high regard, while others were met with disdain. They did it so that the rest of us could enjoy going to the beach, grabbing dinner with friends, attending our kids' sporting events, voicing our opinions on things, etc., all while not having to worry about those freedoms that we take for granted. We owe them all, past, present and future, a huge debt of gratitude and our utmost respect. We also owe the family members of those that serve a huge thank you. Without their support and sacrifices at home, we wouldn't have the freedoms we have today.

I urge you all to look below at the stats I found from the DOD on the number of service member deaths during the last century or so, and let those numbers soak in. As staggering as those numbers are, I'm sure the actual numbers are even higher. I also urge you to reach out to the people in your lives, your neighbors, etc. that served in the military and say thank you. Say thank you, and when you're eating a burger and a beer at a bbq this weekend enjoying your long weekend, say a silent thank you and take a moment of silence at 3pm on Monday to honor all of our veterans and active duty members.

- WW1: 116,516
- WW2: 405,399
- Korea: 36,516
- Vietnam: 58,209
