OB PIER TO REOPEN IN JULY

The Ocean Beach Pier is scheduled to reopen in July after repairs to its railings. The City is working on the OB Pier Replacement Project, as the 56-year-old structure is failing due to severe storms and large waves.

City gives updates, hears public comments for replacement

ity officials received public testimony on what amenities residents would ideally like to see with a new Ocean Beach Pier, which will be compiled and factored into later decisions made to replace the 56-year-old iconic structure.

City staff and engineering consultants on June 10 shared public input so far on the Ocean Beach Pier Renewal Project, while receiving new input during the second in a series of community workshops aimed at building a new OB Pier.

"Today's event is really about getting more feedback from you about what type of amenities you would be interested in that would be possible for a new pier," said James Nagelvoort, director for the City's Strategic Capital Projects Department.

He noted "the pier took some damage from winter storms," while adding the good news is "the pier's underneath structure, the part that holds the pier up, is sound. However, some of the surface railings have been knocked down and the bait shop has taken some damage. Work has started to make those repairs, and we anticipate reopening the pier sometime this July."

But Nagelvoort warned that OB Pier "will not last another 50 years. We still need to talk about a new pier."

Matthew Martinez with consultant Moffatt & Nichol, which designs piers and waterfront facilities worldwide, said the design phase for OB Pier replacement is about a two-year process. He added the end result will be a "design-build set of specifications and drawings to go out to bid for contractors."

Martinez pointed out there is an extensive environmental review and permitting process running concurrently for pier replacement. He added the City's Historical Resources Board will also have a hand in determining "what we can or cannot do" in terms of pier development.

"We're going to need to make it (pier) higher to get it out of the waves," said Martinez, noting better materials will be used in the pier redo to give it longer longevity "allowing more people on the pier more of the time."

OB community rallies around man after severe motorcycle collision

NEWS

By SCOTT HOPKINS | THE BEACON

veteran Ocean Beach motorcycle rider, beloved by many community members, was seriously injured in a collision on June 6 and his friends are determined to help him through what will likely be a long road to full recovery.

Ian Hughes was riding southbound on Catalina Boulevard just after 2 p.m. that day when a Mercedes Benz, driving northbound, made a left turn onto Talbot Street directly into his path, the resulting impact completely destroying the front of the vehicle.

Paramedics took Hughes to a local trauma center where he has been undergoing treatments that will involve multiple surgeries and extensive medical care. His diagnosis includes a broken femur, broken pelvis, broken hand and fingers, and road rash on his face. Fortunately, no spinal injuries or spinal damage was done.

Neighbors at the crash site reported Hughes was thrown a long distance from his motorcycle and was in extreme pain but was conscious and able to give phone numbers of loved ones and ask they be called.

Many area residents were deeply affected by Hughes' plight and close friends William and Monica Garza DeWitt have begun a fund-raising campaign to assist with Hughes' medical needs, rehabilitation, and extended time away from work.

"Support Ian's Road to Recovery" is the title of a GoFundMe account created by the DeWitts. With a current goal of $15,000, over 100 donations have been recorded. The fund can be found at gofundme. com and searching the campaign with this title.

For those who don't know Hughes, the DeWitts wrote: "Ian is a passionate and vibrant individual who brings joy and positivity to everyone he encounters. He is known for his adventurous spirit and has always been an advocate for safe riding."

The DeWitts also are asking for people to share Hughes' plight with others, offer words of encouragement on GoFundMe to lift his spirits, and perhaps volunteer skills or services that could benefit Hughes in his recovery such as meal preparation, dog walking, transportation, or errand-running.

"Every act of kindness, big or small, will make an immense difference in Ian's life," the DeWitts concluded. "Let us come together as a compassionate community and show our support for Ian during this difficult period."

City Council passes homeless camping ban with 5-4 vote

ouncil members at a June 13 special meeting heard about the City's new comprehensive shelter strategy, as well as endorsing, by a 5-4 vote after hours of debate, an ordinance banning most tent encampments in public spaces if shelter beds are available nearby.

The new ordinance brought by Mayor Todd Gloria and District 3 Councilmember Stephen Whitburn bars encampments at all times in certain areas including parks, canyons, and waterways, as well as near schools and homeless shelters, and transit stations regardless of shelter capacity.

"There's no question we're facing an acute crisis that has been building for decades as our housing shortage became more acute," said Mayor Todd Gloria adding, "Solving homelessness itself has become a more complex puzzle to solve."

Pointing out that homeless problems are extremely complex, Gloria noted they involve "a host of personal circumstances including serious medical and mental health conditions, substance-abuse disorder and partners or pets they can't part with."

Added Gloria: "We've endeavored to create spaces for everyone opening shelters focusing on women, seniors, people with behavior and substance-abuse challenges, families, LGBTQ+ youth, etc. We've greatly expanded safe parking for those who are living in their cars to do so legally and safely. There's still so much more we must do to get people off the streets. The comprehensive shelter strategy is the road map for our continued efforts. My administration has a clear plan, one that is consistent with the city council's priorities informed by national best practices."

In council debate following public testimony, District 2 Councilmember Dr. Jennifer Campbell gave kudos to the mayor and Whitburn noting "It takes a lot of bravery to do this. This is a win-win ordinance because the homeless neighbors living on sidewalks in unsafe conditions will get to move to clean healthy locations with 24-hour-a-day service, safety, meals, showers, restrooms, and social services, all the while being helped to find permanent housing."

Numerous people testified during hours-long public testimony on the comprehensive shelter strategy and the unauthorized homeless camping ordinance. Most criticized the City's current plan as inadequate and overly expensive or insisted it criminalizes the homeless. Some argued as well that passage of an unsafe camping ordinance would be leaving the City open to potential lawsuits challenging the measure's legality.

One individual testifying against the passage of the ordinance called out the council asking why no one from the homeless community, or anyone who has actually lived on the streets, is being represented in homeless decision-making by the City.

"It's not a plan, it's called a strategy," said District 1 Councilmember Joe LaCava about the direction the City is taking. "We need housing. But to put options on hold and to do nothing is not acceptable. Make no mistake, this is a candid and transparent discussion of where

THE CITY'S COMPREHENSIVE SHELTER STRATEGY

Presented by Mayor Todd Gloria to San Diego City Council on June 13, the new strategy outlines the current status of homelessness, progress that has been made to expand homeless services, contributing factors to the increasing need for shelter, and the short-, medium- and long-term solutions for shelter, safe sleeping, safe parking and outreach needs in the City.

The City has increased shelter capacity by nearly 70% over the past two years. Of the region's 18 cities, only San Diego and four other cities have added shelter beds, and only 10 cities in the County provide any shelter at all.

Key elements of the shelter strategy include expanding shelter options to fit the specific needs of veterans, seniors, youth, and others; expanding services that provide compassionate and equitable services to individuals experiencing homelessness; and engaging with regional partners to identify sites for additional shelter, safe camping, and safe parking needs. For more information visit Comprehensive Shelter Strategy for the City of San Diego.

we are and where we need to be. There's no question that we need more shelter, and I appreciate us considering all options. But shelter, though important, is not the end game. The shelter must be the intermediate step between the streets and permanent housing. That is our goal. Until there is housing shelter fills that gap."

"There is one group of people we did not hear from today," said Whitburn. "We did not hear from the people most impacted by the health and safety hazards of encampments. We didn't hear from them because they died. Hundreds of people have died in encampments on our streets in just the past 12 months, preyed upon by drug dealers and overdosing on fentanyl, hit by cars, and randomly attacked.

"People died during the hepatitis outbreak. Given the City's interest in protecting public safety, we need reasonable regulations on the use and location of encampments.

SDPD's plan to enforce the ordinance:

- Citywide approach;
- Efforts will begin around schools and parks;

Homeless sites will be targeted based on:

- Community requests;
- City Council offices;
- "Get It Done" data;
- Coordinate with the Health and Social Services Department, which will lead with outreach first;
- Coordinate with Environmental Services Department to ensure health and safety concerns;
- SDPD will follow up with progressive enforcement:
- Continuously educate/enforce to stop recurrence.

Ask The Trust & Estate Attorney

I am inheriting assets from my parents but I want to protect them in the event of a divorce from my spouse, what do you suggest?

I would recommend setting up a separate property trust to hold the assets that you inherited from your parents. Transferring the title of the inherited assets to your separate property trust is the first step to ensuring that the assets remain yours if you are ever divorced.

If the assets are cash or stocks and bonds you will want to transfer your bank or investment account into the name of the separate property trust. If the assets are real property, such as a home, then you will want to transfer the real property into your separate property trust with a deed.

Contact us for more information on protecting your separate property.

Historic USS Recruit training ship at Liberty Station opens to public

The USS Recruit will be open on Saturdays and Sundays from noon-4 p.m.

USS RECRUIT OPENS

Liberty Station will open the ship's doors to the public Saturdays and Sundays from noon-4 p.m. The exhibit will feature images of the USS Recruit's construction, recruits training on the ship, architectural renderings, and NTC alumni videos.

By KYLIE CAPUANO | THE BEACON

iberty Station is launching an exhibit inside the historic USS Recruit naval ship to kick off the 100-year celebration of the Naval Training Center's 1923 opening.

Located on the corner of Laning and Harbor Drive, the landlocked ship – lovingly nicknamed the "USS Neversail" as it never left NTC grounds – was commissioned in 1949. Constructed with sheet metal over wood framing, the ship sat at 225 feet from bow to stern atop a concrete slab foundation. It was built to scale as two-thirds the size of a Dealey-class destroyer escort. Later, in 1982, it was remodeled to be a training guided-missile frigate and grew in length to 233 feet.

During the NTC's prime, between 1949 and 1989, the USS Recruit trained more than 50,000 naval recruits. The ship was used to teach basic naval procedures – such as navigation, gunnery, and other essential ins and outs of ship life. It continued to serve as a crucial center for training until the NTC's closure in 1997. Today it stands as the only remaining training structure constructed by the Navy after World War II.

Seventy-four years after the ship's commissioning, it resides in the now vibrant Liberty Station grounds. In order to honor its rich naval history, Liberty Station will open the ship's doors to the public every Saturday and Sunday from noon-4 p.m. The exhibit will feature images of the USS Recruit's construction, recruits training on the ship, architectural renderings, and NTC alumni videos.

Mayor Todd Gloria and Councilmember Dr. Jennifer Campbell welcomed in this historic celebration by declaring June 7, 2023, to be Liberty Station's Centennial and USS Recruit Celebration Day.

"A lot of things have happened at Liberty Station over the last number of years," said Gloria. "Obviously, we are celebrating the centennial. But the story could have ended when the base closure commission made its decision. We as San Diegans chose instead to preserve this property and reposition it for the future. I think it's emblematic of what our city is about."

Celebrations of the NTC centennial milestone will continue throughout the year at Liberty Station.

"We have long been proud to be a military town and we will always be that," said Gloria. "But, in recent years we have chosen to diversify, to change, to innovate, and to collaborate – to create something that is far more dynamic and interesting – while still holding onto that military component."

SUMMER EXHIBIT AT THE DICK LAUB COMMAND CENTER

A free exhibit in the lobby of the Dick Laub Command Center at 2640 Historic Decatur Road of work by artists working in Arts District Liberty Station based on summer themes is running now through Sept. 30. Additional exhibits in the center include artwork by Joe Pisano's The Art of Immortalizing Heroes, Joe Frangiosa's Nautical History Gallery & Museum, and art by Lisa E in the Conference Room off the lobby (part of an NTC Foundation exhibit that includes works by Lauren LeVieux in staff offices). The summer exhibit is open daily from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. The side door near Solare Restaurant is open on weekends if the main door is closed.

The Kroenke Group joins Midway Rising in Sports Arena redevelopment project

tan Kroenke, billionaire owner of the Los Angeles Rams, Colorado Avalanche, and Denver Nuggets, has joined Midway Rising as the lead investor in the Sports Arena redevelopment project at 3500 Sports Arena Blvd.

Midway Rising was selected by San Diego City Council last September to redevelop the 48.5-acre former Sports Arena area. Midway Rising is composed of housing developer Zephyr, sports-and-entertainment venue operator Legends, and affordable housing builder Chelsea Investment Corp.

Midway Rising's plan calls for 4,250 residential units, a new 16,000-seat arena, a 200-room hotel, and 20 acres of plaza and park space. A cornerstone of the long-term redevelopment project is 2,000 deed-restricted residential units for low-income families.

ESK Midway Rising Investor, LLC, a special purpose entity owned by Kroenke and a subsidiary of his real estate firm The Kroenke Group, now has a 90 percent ownership interest in the redevelopment project, which reportedly will rise to 95 percent once project construction starts.

"Today's announcement of The Kroenke Group's addition to the Midway Rising team underscores that San Diego is a world-class city that can attract significant investment in projects and enterprises that elevate the community for all our residents," said Mayor Todd Gloria. "I'm proud to welcome The Kroenke Group to San Diego and am looking forward to seeing the Sports Arena property's transformation into a place for San Diegans to live, work and play."

Currently, Midway Rising is completing physical site due diligence, a process that involves analysis and assessment of existing and underlying site infrastructure as well as geotechnical constraints. The resulting project description based off the team's initial proposal and vision for the Sports Arena will undergo environmental studies and reviews next year. Late next year, the project team hopes to bring a long-term lease and development plan to the City Council for approval.

"The Midway Rising project will continue growing our investment in the Southern California region and we appreciate the City's confidence in our joint vision with the existing project partners," said Jason Gannon of The Kroenke Group. "This project is an incredibly exciting opportunity for The Kroenke Group to make a profound impact in San Diego, and it lays a foundation for our future investment in the community."

The 76-year-old Kroenke, who has a reported net worth of more than $12 billion, also owns pro soccer teams Arsenal FC and the Colorado Rapids.

PIER

Martinez estimated the cost of pier replacement at $50 million to $70 million. "You'll have an opportunity to weigh in as to what type of amenities – restaurants, shops, educational areas, gathering spaces – you would like on the pier, all of which could add to the cost," Martinez concluded.

Based on the findings of a 2018 study, the City has determined that pursuing a potential replacement of the pier is the best option considering the ongoing costs of repairs, the need to modernize the existing facility, and the anticipation of future sea-level rise.

The 2018 study by consultants Moffatt & Nichol examined the damage and deterioration of the structure and analyzed three options for the future of the pier: repair, rehabilitate, or replace. The study documented various structural problems with the pier and determined that it has reached the end of its service life.

Ongoing public workshops will help Moffatt & Nichol design the preferred alternative for the potential replacement of the pier based on input from San Diegans considering community impacts, environmental permitting, sustainability, operational usage, cost, historical significance, and other factors.

The project is currently in the preliminary engineering and planning phase to develop the full scope of a preferred alternative for the potential replacement of the pier. The project still needs to go through other phases including California Environmental Quality Act and National Environmental Policy Act permitting, other regional agency permitting, design, and construction. The preliminary engineering and planning phase is expected to be completed this fall.

After the preferred alternative is completed, a detailed project schedule and cost estimate will be prepared. Currently, there is $8.4 million in state funding designated for the project and the City will pursue other state and federal grants.

A best-case scenario would be to have construction on a new structurally modern pier beginning before the end of 2026, with completion by mid-2028.

NEWS

It's true, May gray and June gloom have been worse this year

naffectionately known as May gray and June gloom, the marine layer annually descending like a curtain along San Diego's coast this time of year has been more intense and is lasting longer than usual in 2023, the National Weather Service confirmed.

"We've had more cloudy days and had less solar radiation than most Mays," said meteorologist Brandt Maxwell of the NWS. "Clouds are common in May and June, but this May and June have been more cloudy because we've had a lot of low pressure aloft along the coast associated with more onshore flow going from the ocean to the land. It (low pressure) assists in the marine layer remaining. And the cloud thickness this year has been greater too. The thicker the clouds – the longer it takes for them to burn off."

The average May cloud cover during the day this year in San Diego was a gray 82.5%. The stretch from May 12-31 featured 18 days considered overcast, with two other days barely getting enough sunshine to register as partly sunny amid 70% cloud cover. Long-term weather records show San Diego's overall average cloud cover in May is 63.9%.

The high temperature at San Diego's airport also only reached 70 degrees twice last month, and its overall average high of 66.5 degrees was tied for the fifth coolest on record.

Maxwell noted that May/June are the two most prominent months for an extensive marine layer. He added, "April we will have some, as well as July, but that is a little more restricted to near the coast. The rest of the year it comes and goes, maybe with a second peak in the fall around October."

Added Maxwell: "Most commonly, during spring and early summer is when there is a temperature inversion, usually between 1,000 and 3,000 feet above sea level, with warmer air above cooler air. That makes for a very different kind of mixing between those two air masses, trapping the moisture below the inversion. And there is no easy way to get rid of it."

San Diego Community Newspaper Group asked readers if they felt May gray and June gloom was worse this year, and if it has affected their moods. Here is what they said:

Speaking for many, Walter Andersen, who owns a Midway nursery said: "We are pretty much 'gloomed out.' Let's hope July and August aren't scorching months to make up for all of the cool weather we've had this year.

"For our business, we welcome the overcast, kind of encourage people to get out in their yards and 'dress things up' and maybe plant some new things to brighten up their yards. For the businesses at the beaches, it probably discourages some activities."

"I think it's fabulous," said Carolyn Chase of PB. "Longer isn't necessarily worse. I was dreading the increasingly earlier-rising to 80 degrees and above. I love living near the Pacific Ocean and its fabulous fog. And I have to point out it does get sunny in the afternoon, usually around 2-3 p.m. People do like to complain about the weather, regardless."

"It really reminds me of the 'lost summer' from 5-7 years ago," said James P. Rudolph of La Jolla. "The marine layer was thick and stubbornly resistant to any dissipation."

Rudolph even had a term to describe how overcast weather affects people's moods, referring to it as Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD). "But it's really not that severe here," he said. "We truly are blessed. Yes, the layer has been around for a couple of months. But my mood has not been affected by it. Neither has business at my family's restaurant (Harry's Coffee Shop) been impacted."

Diane Kane of La Jolla disagreed that the cloud cover hasn't affected people's moods. "The foggy conditions seem worse this year," she said. "Not only does the fog linger all day, but it also is quite thick and often precipitates heavy dew or light rain. My wisteria bloomed a month later than usual and a few roses are reluctant to push out foliage, much less blossom. I'm still wearing winter clothing."

Brian Earley of La Jolla concurred with Kane. "It certainly has an effect on the coastal beaches and the number of people who might spend the day there," he said. "When it is very May gray and June gloom and the weather professionals say that the coast will have clouds, it cuts down the number of people at the beaches seemingly in half.'

Landscape architect Jim Neri, whose office is in PB, had a suggestion for renaming these two heavily cloudy months. "We might consider renaming these months Grapril, Gray, and Gloom," he said. "Definitely a downer mood-wise, especially when it veils after being clear for an hour."

Ann Dynes of La Jolla also mentioned the new weather vocabulary. "This year, we also had Graypril and that has made this spring seem drearier than any I can recall," she said. "Anyway, my message would be that, although this was worse due to Graypril, this happens every few years and locals know that next spring is always going to be fine again.

"My south-facing windows overlook the horizon, and 'dawn' always woke me with sunshine until this year," lamented Phyllis Minick of La Jolla. "Without exception, every morning has been so gray that it's hard to know when night has passed and a new morning has arrived."

Peninsula Shepherd Center is holding its annual fundraiser and Summer Celebration from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday, June 24 at All Souls' Episcopal Church's Gooden Hall and Patio, 1475 Catalina Blvd.

Proceeds will go toward enhancing PSC's Aging in Place programs and services for older adults. Community businesses and organizations participate by donating to the PSC for its opportunity drawing, silent and live auctions. Peninsula Shepherd Center is a nonprofit serving seniors age 65 and older in Point Loma, Ocean Beach, and Midway. It is one of 28 senior centers countywide.

In addition, the Summer Celebration Challenge is another opportunity to support PSC by matching up to $5,000 in donations by supporters. Summer Celebration Day is on a Saturday this year to encourage guests from the community to attend. The event will include a delicious luncheon, entertainment and door prizes, as well as and a new vendor fair. Sponsors for Summer Celebration will be featured at the new vendor fair and include Paul Hartley Realty, Bayview Senior Assisted Living, Harbor View Senior Assisted Living, Bridgeview Home Care, Nelson Camera, Mallory Furniture, The Hartley

Insurance Company, Cura Home Health, Oliver Stahl State Farm Insurance and Anchor Health.

"Empowering Senior Independence" is the mission of Peninsula Shepherd Center, a nonprofit providing for older adults living independently," said Lisa Nokes, PSC executive director. She added Peninsula Shepherd Center provides transportation services through its Out & About Senior Transportation Program. Also provided by the center are computer tablets and training through its PSC Connections Through Technology Program. Monthly "Lunch and Learn events," along with social opportunities in the Senior Lounge, are also available at the senior center. For more information, visit sdpsc.org.

HISTORICAL STRUCTURES

The City Historical Resources board is scheduled to review three structures, one being a segment of the Ocean Beach Pier, for possible historic designation on June 22. One dwelling, the George and Martha Saunders House, is at 3120 Sterne St. Another is the Claude Ryan House at 2275 Evergreen St. Proposed action on both is to designate or not designate the properties as a historical resource under adopted designation criteria.

OB Street Fair & Chili Cook-Off kicks off summer in San Diego

Artists Alley, beachside beer garden, community mural, three stages of entertainment, and loads of chili will keep the party going all day

BY BART MENDOZA | THE BEACON

A sure sign that summer is in full swing, the 43rd annual edition of the OB Street Fair & Chili Cook-Off takes place on Saturday, June 24. One of San Diego's most beloved traditions, the Street Fair is expected to draw upwards of 50,000 people to the area for a full day of fun in the sun. Attendees will have a plethora of activities to choose from, including three stages with music from 18 performers, an Artists Alley, the Chili Cook-Off, a beachside beer garden, a community mural, and more. Mixing art, food, music, and fun, the OB Street Fair is a feast for the senses.

This year's theme is "Where the Sun Sets In San Diego."

"We put out a call for action to the community," said Kristen Keltner, events and program manager for the Ocean Beach MainStreet Association. "Lots of area residents submitted photos of the sunset, and we've used them around Ocean Beach, with that image on this year's logo as well as Tshirts and posters, etc."

Folks who haven't attended the Street Fair in the post-pandemic era will find the same spirit if not the same footprint. The biggest change is the movement of the Seaside Family Fun Zone, at Saratoga Park, giving kids a much more natural play area than its former location in a parking lot. Meanwhile, the music stages are no longer in the middle of side streets, instead being placed in business parking lots, and taste tickets for the Chili Cook-Off are available online before the event or in person on the day of.

"The stages have changed slightly due to the Fire Marshall regulations, and we've had to move the vendor booths a little, but the overall footprint is now technically a little bit larger," Keltner said. "In addition to Saratoga Park now being part of the event, two of the stages will be slightly larger and set back in the parking lots, so it is a bit more space and a bigger footprint."

LIVE MUSIC

The event's biggest draw is the favorites SM Familia, 2023 San Diego Music Awards Artist of the Year Jeff Berkley, and acclaimed Grateful Dead tribute, the Electric Waste Band.

"I'm looking forward to an amazing event," said Ted Wigler, who books the Main Stage and promotes the beer garden, while also booking Winstons. "I love how this day brings everyone in the community together," he said. "People are raring to come out and have a good time."

Wigler has volunteered his services at the Street Fair for the past 22 years. "I'm happy to contribute where I the whole event from the Main Stage.

music, and this year has an excep- can," he said. "It's just part of my love tional lineup, including Latin reggae for the community and at the end of the day, it's a lot of fun."

> What does he consider when putting together the Street Fair's lineup? "We're generally looking at artists who are local and have a fun vibe," Wigler commented. "It helps if they are professional, but really we're trying to be as inclusive as we can with our range of artists and offer something for just about everybody."

> Musician Jefferson Jay will play a dual role at this year's Street Fair, both playing with his band (noon/The 92107 Stage), as well as emceeing

While he enjoys playing music, it's the latter he's most excited about. "As fun as it is to play with the band, I get a thrill out of keeping everybody informed and making sure everybody feels welcome at the OB Street Fair,' he said.

"Many people come in from all other kinds of neighborhoods and places, and I take it as a humble honor that I get to be the voice they hear, from when I will sing the national anthem to kick off events on the Main Stage, to when I say 'Thanks for coming to Ocean Beach and drive safely,' after the headliner finishes. I've been emceeing on the Main Stage since 2013 and it is a great fun time."

Alternative rockers Suede Radio formed during the pandemic and made their OB Street Fair debut last year. "Cheesy as it may be to say, OB is our home and we have been to more than 50 street fairs, collectively," said the band's guitarist, Gary Flick. "Being able to close out one of the stages is an honor that we can't really put into words. OB is the best community in California and having the chance to give a little back in the form of providing a beat for our friends to dance to is a dream for all of us."

TASTY TREATS

Of course, there will be much more than music on June 24. Food is also a big part of the day, with dozens of vendors offering up tasty treats.

Come out early to taste the Chili entries and meet the constestants

By BART MENDOZA | THE BEACON

The OB Street Fair's signature event, the Chili Cook-Off, takes place from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at Veterans Plaza, right on the water. For chili lovers in the area, no other food-related happening comes close to the draw of the Cook-Off. The chili tasting sells out every year, in advance.

Nearly 20 chefs and their teams are expected to take part this year in two categories; an amateur and a restaurant division, each providing 10 gallons of their finest chili to the event. Tickets for tasting and judging the various entrant's wares, on consistency, smell, color and taste, are set at $2 per entry. There is also the option of purchasing a master ticket for $25, allowing you to sample chili from all the competitors. Tasting tickets are only available online via the Street Fair's website.

For event founder and OBMA board of directors' member Mike Akey, much of the Chili Cook-Off fun is in the contestants themselves. "There are so many great people involved," he said. "Some return year after year, while some people like to go all out with costumes and themed booths."

Competition can be fierce, if good-natured. Past contestants have dressed as pirates or in prehistoric garb, bringing a touch of spectacle to the proceedings. "It all adds to the atmosphere, it draws attention. There's plenty of entertainment down there," he said. "But of course, the chili is always the biggest attraction."

There is one big change to this year's event in the amateur category. "In years past, some entrants went with unusual ingredients. We've had chili made with alligator meat, we've had snake meat," he noted. "This time out, due to new health regulations from the city, you can only use regular meat, like steak, but nothing exotic."

Funds raised at the Chili Cook-Off will go to the OB Clean and Safe program to help pay for civic improvements in the area. "It'll be used for things that are needed by people in Ocean Beach," Akey said. "Things have just gotten so expensive. We've used money raised for things like power washing streets and sidewalks and will be replacing trashcans, as well as painting, among other things, and that's not cheap."

Akey has been involved with the Chili Cook-Off for more than 40 years and still loves the event he helped found. He's justifiably proud of the event's long run and it's providing help to the community.

"It's something I look forward to," he said. "I love doing the judges' booth and helping them out on how to judge a chili contest, part of an afternoon of fun." But when it comes to actually sampling chili on the day of the event, Akey is happy to let others do the heavy lifting. "I only break ties these days," he said.

Eclectic mix of live music to be Street Fair's soundtrack

By BART MENDOZA | THE BEACON

The OB Street Fair has many attractions, but nothing brings out the crowd like live music. Even if you don't head to any of the stages, the live sounds will soundtrack the event.

For 2023, 18 bands will take part on three stages, booked by Ted Wigler, who handles the Main Stage while performing the same duties at Winstons, alongside Michael Head, of Cabeza Records, who booked the other two stages. The pair have put together an eclectic bill, with a great mix of local heroes, new talent, and old favorites

What do the promoters look for when booking performers? "We are featuring several artists this year from Ocean Beach, including Travis Oliver, Seawall Prophet, and Tecolote Canyon," said Head. "But it's not a prerequisite to play. We've had bands from all over the country perform here. That said we like to mainly focus on San Diego and all of the great music it has to offer."

While there is much work involved in coordinating musicians and equipment, Head notes all the hard work over the years that has paid off.

"There are a handful of us behind the scenes, many of whom have been volunteering for many years," he said. "People like my two stage managers, Mark Eppler and Dave Gilbert, have been with me most of the way. I couldn't do it without those two. Both are also local musicians who just love music and care about helping the community.

"We coordinate with our sound and stage folks, making sure the stages have all that they need to make the event run smoothly." Head considers his longevity with the Street Fair to be a major plus. "Now that we've done it for so many years, often working with the same volunteers and crew, it's not necessarily that hard but there are always challenges year to year that need to be overcome," he said. "It's just the nature of doing events in the community."

What does he look forward to most on the day? "There's always this moment when the stages are up and running, the booths are in place, people are filling the streets and you know that it's happening," Head remarked. "You know that all of the hard work pays off and that the event is going to make a lot of people happy that day. It's like a roller coaster and once it gets going, there's no turning back, and there's a lot of excitement in that. It's like, 'Here we go!'"

The event's Main Stage, located right at the edge of the beach, at the foot of Newport Avenue, in the parking lot adjacent to the beer garden, will kick off with music from highly-rated Led Zeppelin tribute band, Zeptune (11 a.m.).

Other highlights include another tribute band, the Grateful Deadinspired combo Electric Waste Band (3:30 p.m.). The band remains a local institution, maintaining a Monday night residency at Winsons for three decades running. Meanwhile, headlining the event will be Latin reggae favorites, SM Familia (7 p.m.), currently promoting their new, cumbia-inspired single, "Bebe Dame."

A few blocks over, the 92107 Stage, located at Newport and Sunset Cliffs Boulevard in the US Bank parking lot, will feature an opening set from singer-songwriter Amanda Cogan (10:30 a.m.) and rock 'n' roll stalwarts, The Falling Doves (3 p.m.). Topping this stage will be alternative rockers, Suede Radio.

Finally, the Artists Alley Stage, located in old Union Bank parking lot behind Mallorys will include the opener, bluegrass guitarist Travis Felix Sierra, SM Familia's bassist and band leader, also known as: El Gato.

Oliver (10:30 a.m.), and reggae combo, the Resinators. Closing the stage will be one of the OB Street Fair's most anticipated performers, Jeff Berkley and the Banned. The group won American Album of the Year at the 2023 San Diego Music Awards, with Berkley also taking home a trophy for Artist of the Year.

MAINSTAGE ACT: SM Familia

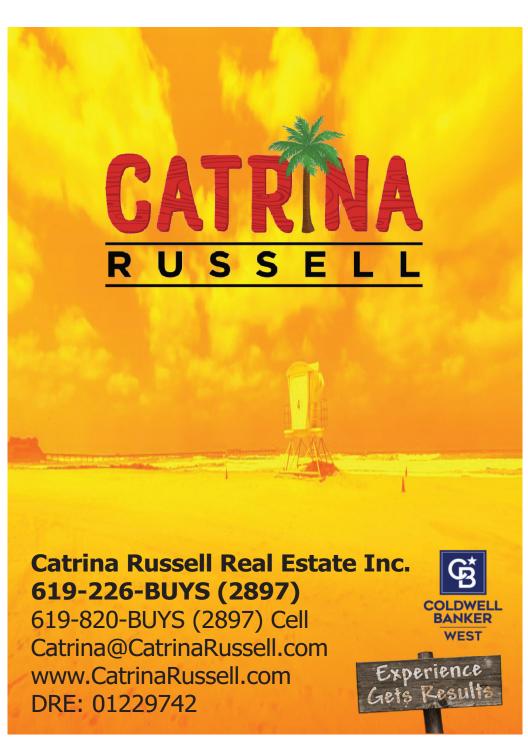

(6:30 p.m, smfamilia.com)

Mixing reggae with Latin influences, SM Familia's rhythmic sounds are the perfect way to close out your OB Street Fair musical experience this year. Formed circa 2015, the band has been twice nominated for "Best World Music Album," at the San Diego Music Awards. The eight-piece group has risen to headline status since their inception, both through backing established reggae stars (Sister Nancy, Eeek-A-Mouse) and playing their own acclaimed concerts. SM Familia make their Street Fair debut this year.

"OB has been a second home to us," said Felix Sierra, aka bassist and band leader, El Gato. "We used to do a lot of things there in our early days. It was kind of a headquarters for us for a while as our guitar player had a place and studio there. At the same time, (late DJ) Carlos Culture gave us a lot of support when we played at Winstons. It's going to be cool to come full circle and play at such a prestigious event as the OB Street Fair."

For Sierra, SM Familia is the culmination of a life in music. "I used to be a trumpet player as a youth, and from there I learned to play drums, guitars, sing, etc," Sierra recalled. "I've always played in other musical styles before, but as of about eight years ago, I started venturing off to do the kind of music that I've always listened to, which is reggae, but I wanted to play it with more of a Latin culture approach, including cumbias."

Sierra considers the band hard to pigeonhole. "We're not just a reggae band, we're not just a Latin band," he said. "Our music is difficult to describe. But, since we always have to put some kind of wording on it, what we like to say is that we're Chicano reggae because if you're from San Diego or a border her last name, so it was a play on town, you're going to know exactly what that means."

"Soul Malady" and the "Familia" musicians he has worked with. and Aurora." "The group I was in at the time was doing a soul/jazz thing and the singer was Aurora Malady," he said.

"Because we were doing soul music, we decided to put it together with words." Malady passed away in 2021. "When putting SM Familia SM Familia's name is a tribute to together, I didn't just want to pull a one of Sierra's earlier combos, with name out of a hat. I felt the most the SM representing that band, appropriate thing was to tag the name with SM in a sort of homage part being how he feels about the to all those musicians from before

The Seaside Family Fun Zone will keep kids busy

By BART MENDOZA | THE BEACON

If there was a prize for the most improved part of the OB Street Fair over the past two years, it would be The Seaside Family Fun Zone. Formerly located in a parking lot near Sunset Cliff Boulevard, the fun zone can now be found at Saratoga Park, adjacent to the Lifeguard parking Lot, north of Veterans Plaza at Saratoga Avenue and Abbott Street. The park is right next to the beach, an ideal spot for the fun zones mix of interactive activities and inflatable attractions.

The fun zone will also have a lot of appeal to parents who may appreciate a moment or two to relax during the day's festivities. Among the area's amenities will be tables and chairs, as well as healthy, kid-friendly food options, and an arts and crafts section for the vounger set.

While there are no rides in the fun zone, there is plenty to do for active kids. Paper Moon Music, The Artists Outpost, and New Break Church will all provide activities for children, while EMS Attractions will supply several inflatables for kids of all ages to interact with.

Fair attendees can expect to find a traditional bounce house, "The Ultimate Bungee," a trampolinelike ride that has the ability to launch each rider 25 feet in the air. "Coconut Tree Climb," which has participants racing up 30 feet high palm trees in order to hit a buzzer, and the 35 feet tall, pirate-themed, 70 feet long zip line, "The Swashbuckler." The inflatables height makes it a favorite for a quick panoramic photo at the top, with the bonus of slides and a "walk the plank" section.

Meet the area's best artisans at Artists' Alley

BY BART MENDOZA | THE BEACON

If there's one thing besides the Chili Cook-Off itself that has become a signature part of the Ocean Beach Street Fair, it's Artists Alley. More than just a collection of vendors, Artist Alley is a curated experience, meant to draw the best artisans and their wares. As such, the focus is on handcrafted items, including clothing, pottery, jewelry, art, and photography.

It's a wonderful opportunity for fairgoers to pick up unique gifts, directly from their creator. You'll find Artists Alley located at Cable Street and Newport Avenue, with 80 artists in residence. Meanwhile, Artists Alley will be the trolley drop-off point from the satellite parking lots.

"We've been coming to Artist's Alley for at least 30 years," said Carl Carrubba, of clothing vendor Rainbow Tie Dyes. He considers OB to be the perfect match for his colorful T-shirts, tapestries and baby clothes. "Ocean Beach is a really hip community and they really like tiedye," he said.

Carrubba considers being part of the street fair to be an important part of summer for his business. "It's a really great event," he said. "Organizers treat the artists really well, they've kept things reasonably priced for us and there are big crowds who appreciate what the artists have to offer. It's a nice time."

After three decades of manning a booth, he notes that selling T-shirts etc. is his second favorite thing about the OB Street Fair. "Having been there for so long, it's great to see some of the same folks each year. People come from all over to attend and you have some that stop by every time. I really enjoy that."

LUMINOSITY Presents Spectacular Fourth of July Drone Show in Ocean Beach

LUMINOSITY, a communitybased organization dedicated to fostering unity through the arts in Ocean Beach, is excited to announce an extraordinary Fourth of July Drone Show that will light up the skies above Ocean Beach and Point Loma. This mesmerizing display of technology and artistry will take place on July 4th, starting at 9:05 pm, and promises to be an unforgettable experience for residents and visitors alike.

In partnership with Peninsula Alliance, a 501(c) non-profit organization, LUMINOSITY has organized the inaugural drone light show as an alternative to the traditional Ocean Beach Fourth of July Fireworks, which had to be suspended due to structural damage to the Ocean Beach Fishing Pier, the previous launching site for the fireworks.

The pet-friendly Fourth of July Drone Light Show will feature an impressive fleet of 300 drones, meticulously choreographed to create stunning formations and patterns in the night sky. The entire show will be synchronized with a soundtrack, accessible to all on the obluminosity.com website. The display will be viewable throughout Ocean Beach and Point Loma with the Newport Avenue Business District being the prime spectator location.

LUMINOSITY has collaborated with renowned experts in drone entertainment, Skyworx Drone Shows, and Global Drone Network, to bring this first of its kind display to Ocean Beach.

Thanks to the support of community sponsors and individual donations, this event is made possible without any public funding. LUMINOSITY is immensely grateful to the sponsors and donors who have generously contributed to this celebration so far. A special thanks to Starlight Sponsor; IBEW Local

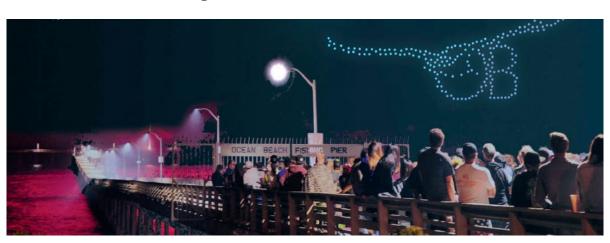

To further support the Fourth of July Drone Show and contribute to future community events, donations can be made through the LUMINOSITY website www.obluminositv.com

2019. With a little luck, fans won't have to wait much longer for a new full-length collection. SM Familia has recently spent time in the studio prepping future releases. A single, "Black + White" was distributed earlier this year, with a new track, a cover of cumbia favorites, Grupo Frontera's "Bebe Dame," due out in time for the Street Fair.

Sierra notes the band curates their sets depending on the show, making each performance from SM Familia a unique experience. "We play all types of shows," he said. "Some are Latin events, some are roots reggae festivals. Our set list changes dynamically between those two things. We kind of get the vibe at each concert, usually the crowds will tell us, so we understand where we should go with our music."

Sierra points out an advantage to playing an event like the OB Street Fair. "We also like to put on a show," he said. "When it's a bigger stage my movements are a little different because I have more space. I use a wireless system and it allows me to interact with the audience on a greater level."

While the size of the venue may vary, Sierra always strives to give the best performance possible. "Whether there are five people in the crowd or five thousand, and I've played for both, we're going to maintain a level of professionalism," he said good-naturedly.

For his part, Sierra is looking forward to taking the stage on June 24. "We have a full 90 minutes and trust me there is not going to be one second of downtime," he remarked. "One of my favorite things is looking out at an audience and seeing the joy on people's faces when I'm playing my instruments," Sierra

"When I'm singing, it's a different thing, sometimes I get into myself. But, say there's a little portion of a song where I'm just playing my bass and I have time to look around. Seeing someone in the crowd reacting to our musicianship and the genuine smiles and love? That's a feeling I can't get anywhere else. You can just feel the sense of connection with an audience. And to think that an instrument brought me to this point is pretty wild, it's a beautiful thing," he said.

Classic rock fans won't want to miss an appearance from Pat Benatar tribute group, All Fired Up, on the Artists Alley stage. Led by singer Tamara Shoemaker, the group plays noteperfect renditions of all of Benatar's biggest hits, from "Heartbreaker" to "Promises In The Dark."

"We're looking forward to a killer show with lots of audience participation," said Shoemaker. "Our feelings are our audience comes first, we entertain them, we're there just for them." As for her choice of tribute artist, she points out that Pat Benatar has touched many people's lives. "Whether it be over a breakup, that special relationship moment, or, of course, someone remembering growing up in their parent's house and the parents listening to her albums. All of those songs really bring back lots of memories for many, I think. It's so great to see the audience singing along to them! Such a rush."

MUSIC SPOTLIGHT: Seawall Prophet

(4:30 p.m. 92107 Stage, seawallprophet.com)

Appearing on the 92107 Stage, reggae musician Seawall Prophet's (aka Aaron Markland) breezy island sounds are perfect for a summer afternoon at the beach. Recently signed to Pacific Records, the songs on his new EP, "Off the Ledge," are instantly memorable, radio-friendly earworms.

The Ocean Beach native is happy to be a part of this year's OB Street Fair, where he will be joined by AJ Price (bass) and Steve Cunningham (drums). "I grew up in Ocean Beach and live right up the street from the stage that we're performing on,"

Jeff Berkley & The Banned

Markland said.

"I am honored to play in my own backyard and excited to watch all of the other incredible acts perform. This year the 92107 Stage alone is stacked with talent from Pacific Records recording artists to local San Diego icons, so you don't want to miss it."

MUSIC SPOTLIGHT: Jeff Berkley & The Banned

(6 p.m. Artist Alley Stage, jeffberkley.com)

Jeff Berkley is more than just a musician, he's a cornerstone of San Diego's music community. Over the past few decades, in addition to his own music, and recordings as part of the duo, Berkley Hart, he has cemented his status as one of the area's top producers as well as session players.

Meanwhile, Berkley's group of all-stars is also impressive, featuring Cathryn Beeks (backing vocals), Jason Cox (percussion), Josh Hermsmeier (drums), Ted Stern (pedal steel), Rick Nash (bass), and Josh Weinstein (organ). Their most recent album, "I Can See The Stars," took home the trophy for Best Country or Americana album at the 2023 San Diego Music Awards, with Berkley also winning Artist of the Year, a welldeserved accolade for one of the county's hardest working musician and his band.

How does Berkley feel about being responsible for so much great music onstage and off? "I am really grateful to be able to be in the room when so much magic is created," he said. "I think I'm best at just creating an atmosphere and helping to point people in the right direction. They find it and do it all themselves. I'm just there to cheer them on. I'm proud of the music we create in this town. We all deserve Artist of the Year awards! Let's make this the year of the artist!"

VOLUNTEER SPOTLIGHT: Dave Gilbert

The most important ingredient in making a successful Street Fair? Hands down, it's the many volunteers who keep things running smoothly, contributing their time and expertise to make the OB Street Fair one of the premier events in San Diego each year.

One such person is guitarist and OB resident Dave Gilbert, who will be doing double duty in 2023, both performing with his namesake band (Artists Alley Stage at 3 p.m.), as well as stage managing.

"My wife Liz and I volunteer for various good causes in the OB and Point Loma area," Gilbert said. "It's a great way to give back to our community."

He's been part of the behindthe-scenes crew with the OB Street Fair since 2015. "Dave is a really important part of the day," said one of the event's bookers, Michael Head. "He's there from start to finish and knows the ins and outs of what a musician might need."

Gilbert's duties as stage manager include making sure that the acts get on and off the stage in a timely manner, that the acts get introduced properly, and that the sponsors are thanked, plus equipment troubleshooting.

"I also have to make sure that the limited parking stays on schedule," he said good-naturedly. "For the most part, the band members are pretty good about that, but every now and then someone will abuse the privilege."

Being a longtime OB resident, Gilbert is happy to stay involved with the Street Fair well into the future. He considers it to be near the top of the list of things to look forward to each year. "It's hard to pin it on one thing exactly, but I'd say that it's a major event, really focused on our community and brings some excellent music to our area as well, win/win!" he said.

FAIR

For those foodies out there with a competitive streak, there will be three opportunities to score a prize. First up is the Chili Cook-Off (11 a.m.), with a relatively dignified tasting deciding the winners. Meanwhile, for those who don't mind getting their hands and faces a little dirty, there is the third annual Dirty Birds Wing Eating Contest (1:30 p.m.), and the traditional Hodad's Burger Eating Contest (4:30 p.m. – 5 p.m.)

At the Chili Cook-Off, both meat and vegetarian options will be available, with a cut-off time of 1:30 p.m., but it's advised you get there early, as the chili is gone fairly quickly. The Chili Cook-Off winners will receive their awards on the Main Stage at 3 p.m. with a top prize of $350 and bragging rights.

COMMUNITY MURAL

For those with a more creative disposition, there are also numerous options. One of the most popular annual traditions to be found at the Street Fair is the painting of a community mural.

Participants purchase a square for $25, with paint and help provided. The finished art will be sealed and placed in the community when completed. Meanwhile, Paper Moon Music, a music instruction studio, will also host a booth offering music lessons and a selection of instruments for potential students to investigate.

Funds raised at these events go to OB Clean and Safe program, helping to pay for community improvements to the area.

PARKING

Traffic is always a consideration at the OB Street Fair, with parking at a premium. Fortunately, there are several options that may help to ease the situation. For bicyclists, beginning at 10 a.m., OBMA will provide a free bike valet area on Bacon Street across the street from The AZ between Newport Ave.

There will also be ADA parking along Santa Monica Ave.

Meanwhile, those who drive can park their vehicles at the Sunrunner Lot (at the corner of Pacific Highway and Sea World Drive), or the lot near Robb Field at 2244 Bacon St., and grab a free ride to the Street Fair, courtesy of Old Town Trolley. The trolley will run continuously from 9:30 a.m. until 9 p.m., dropping passengers off in the Artist's Alley section.

For Keltner, the big reward for a year's hard work happens as the OB Street Fair opens. "My favorite time at the event is right about 10 a.m. when everybody in the community, locals and visitors alike, start flowing onto Newport Avenue and the first band kicks off. That's my favorite moment," she said. "And then we start thinking about next year."

NY THANKS TO OUR SPONSO

The Craft Creamery in Point Loma sources flavors from roughly 50 of the nation's top independent creameries.

Top ice cream offerings in the country at The Craft Creamery

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

If you want to taste flavors from the country's top independent creameries – and local favorites too – seek out The Craft Creamery in Point Loma. The business at 1302 Rosecrans St. was recently taken over and remodeled by entrepreneur Ryan Sisson, founder/CEO of Moniker Group in Liberty Station.

Of his new enterprise, Sisson said: "It lives under the hospitality branch of the company and is highly integrated into, and uniquely positioned within the Moniker ecosystem. It is overseen by Cooper Sage, our general manager of food and beverage."

Moniker's multifaceted brand draws from numerous specialties including interior design, custom-made furniture, co-working spaces, a cocktail bar and catering, a coffee company, a retail store, unique event properties, and now a craft creamery. Part business, part dream factory, today Moniker Group encompasses four main subsidiaries: Moniker Hospitality, Moniker Events, Moniker Design, and Moniker General. In total, eight companies and 10 brands.

Sisson discussed his "scoops on tap" business model, which was inspired by and adapted from San Diego's thriving craft beer industry. "The opportunity to champion small-batch artisans from all over the U.S. and simultaneously offer San Diegans something totally unique and unprecedented in terms of a neighborhood ice cream shop is what sealed the deal for me," said Sisson, who augmented his 1,700-square-foot space with the dual-concept addition of local brewing institution Moniker Coffee Co.

"I wanted this to be a hub for craft ice cream that you would only get in the town that it is a part of. We wanted to give people a chance to try things they wouldn't get unless they went to some rural town in Washington State, Ohio, or wherever."

Sisson said ice cream lovers can come in for a leisurely scoop a la carte, sample a scoop flight, kick it up with a menu of affogatos, or pick up freshly pre-scooped pints on the go.

ICE CREAM OFFERINGS

The Craft Creamery in Point Loma sources flavors from roughly 50 of the nation's top independent creameries. Guests enjoy a rotating lineup of top independent domestic producers and mom-andpop creameries, most of which you'd be hard-pressed to find at neighborhood grocery stores. Samples available include San Diego's Mutual Friend (sister company to Dark Horse Coffee Roasters), Molly Moon Ice Cream (Food & Wine's No. 1 Best Ice Cream Spot in the U.S.), Fosselman's (an old school, family-owned parlor originally opening doors in 1919), Double Rainbow (recipient of "Best Ice Cream in America" for their French Vanilla), Petersen's Ice Cream (Chicago's old-fashioned parlor opened in 1919), Graeter's (an over 150-year-old concept known for handcrafted French Pot ice cream), and Chocolate Shoppe Ice Cream (Wisconsin-based creamery opened by a husbandand-wife entrepreneurial duo). Ice cream happy hour is offered on weekdays from 3-5 p.m. where kids age 12 and under receive 50% off. For more information, visit craftcreamerysd.com.

Sisson took a local mom-andpop and "kept it going just trying to add value to it." He said he will be re-introducing milkshakes too into his creamery space, where he made some small layout changes to make more room for people to either sit down or line up.

"We also relaunched the coffee side of the space, now run by Moniker Coffee and open 7 a.m.-6 p.m. daily," he said. "We're just trying to make it a little hub for the community."

"It was a great idea, and felt like a natural fit creating another community space," concluded Sisson of his new-fangled creamery. "It has different products than we're used to, but with Moniker we believe that we can take over places and do cool stuff with them. We're excited to refresh our branding and make spaces, like The Craft Creamery, more enjoyable places to come and visit, have an ice cream, and interact with our team. Some fun stuff is going to happen over the next couple months and we're excited to be able to bring more value to our customers."

Humble Heart Thrift Store becomes live music venue

By DAVE SCHWAB | THE BEACON

I umble Heart Thrift Store in Ocean Beach has added music entertainment to its mix.

"We are super excited that we've recently become a legit live music venue," said owner Christina Riley of the retail shop at 4873 Newport Ave. "We have several shows per week in the evenings featuring a wide variety of not only local bands but bands from all over the world -Canada, Singapore, even Japan, as well as bands from across the United States. It's been amazing how quickly the word has spread and how great the need was for another all-ages venue in the community."

Riley said Humble Heart got its permits to operate as a live music venue at the end of December, noting they've had "dozens of shows since and have dozens more in the works."

"We are also so excited to announce the opening of our new performance-based music school, The Heart of Rock N Roll," Riley said adding her latest business venture will debut Wednesday, June 28.

Plus, Riley pointed out, "We will also be celebrating our twoyear anniversary in OB hosting a free family and community event that day showing off our music studios and large outdoor area, both of which have never been open to the public. We will have lots of fun activities set up and live music from our very own teachers. It's going to be an amazing event."

Humble Heart got drawn into the music business slowly, at first just selling guitars and other instruments, which soon became a draw for area musicians. "We quickly saw the need for a place for local and traveling bands to play," noted Riley.

Humble Heart recently participated in the "Night Out On Newport" fundraiser in the 4800 block of Newport Avenue on May 4 benefiting music programs at Correia Middle and Point Loma High schools. As part of that event, PLHS and Correia Jazz Ensembles performed at Humble Heart. "The jazz bands did their whole finale here, and then there was a rock band that played at the very end: It was a full house," Riley pointed out.

Of their new music venue, Riley said, "We host the shows, run the shows, and the bands book directly with us and they perform on the stage."

The thrift store owner noted their live performances typically involve three to five bands and can last up to three hours.

Annual San Diego Wooden Boat Festival on Shelter Island

n Father's Day weekend June 17-18, Koehler Kraft Boatyard in Shelter Island will host the annual San Diego Wooden Boat Festival at its historic facility featuring 50-plus classic crafts, local vendors, and kids activities.

Displayed boats at Koehler Kraft Co. at 2302 Shelter Island Drive will range from home-built dinghies to historic thoroughbred racing yachts of a bygone era. Live music starting with a youth all star jazz group on the boat shop community stage, and local musicians will be highlighted throughout the day.

"The event was started as a memorial to our founder, C.F. Koehler Sr., and as a way to exhibit beautiful classic boats every year," said Danielle Richards, Koheler Kraft's director of marketing. She noted six live bands, including two student bands, the First Friday Music Club and Young Lions Jazz Conservatory in Liberty Station, have been lined up to perform at this year's boat show. "They teach music to kids in local high schools," added Richards.

Of the wooden boat fest's significance, Richards said: "It's an opportunity to show the general public that owning a wooden boat has value. It's almost a living thing. And they're not as maintenance-heavy as people seem to think. Once restored, they require the same maintenance as a fiberglass boat."

Richards said the boat festival will commence with remarks from current chairman/boatvard owner C. F. Koehler Jr. She added proceeds from the weekend event

KOEHLER KRAFT

A San Diego tradition in boat building and repair since 1938. Koehler Kraft at 2302 Shelter Island Drive is passionate about providing the best service and product to the boating community. What started in 1990 as a tribute to the late Clarence Koehler, Sr., has grown into a Father's Day tradition with the San Diego Wooden Boat Festival, the premier annual event for Southern California wooden boat enthusiasts. Koehler Sr. founded Koehler Kraft Co. (formerly Mercury Marine) in 1938 as a builder of a popular line of mahogany sport fishing boats and racing runabouts. He moved the operation to its current Shelter Island location in 1952. Located in the southern corner of America's Cup Harbor, Koehler Kraft accommodates boats 20 feet long to 80 feet long. Its marina was rebuilt in 2007 with all-new Tropical Hardwood IPE docks and cement pilings. For a complete schedule of events and for more information about the festival, visit sdwoodenboatfestival.com, or call the office at 619-222-9051.

Nautical History Gallery & Museum opens in Arts District Liberty Station

hat started as a model ship-building hobby for military veteran Joe Frangiosa, Jr. has turned into a full-scale occupation and the new Nautical History Gallery & Museum.

Located in the historic Dick Laub NTC Command Center, 2640 Historic Decatur Road in Arts District Liberty Station, the 800-square-foot The Nautical History Gallery and Museum is curated by Frangiosa. His exhibition showcases carefully constructed displays of realistic miniature naval ship models, as well as a collection of other naval artifacts and historic period antiques.

The gallery is a panoramic history of the U.S. Navy, its ships, and how they have evolved over time from the Revolutionary War period, through the Civil War, into the Spanish-American War, then World War I, and World War II, including the beginning of naval aviation.

It is a "working" museum, as onsite you will see model ship builder and curator Frangiosa in action working on his latest project. He has built every ship on display and is happy to share the history of each and every museum element.

"I need to create," said Frangiosa when asked about his inspiration adding "This is a forever gig, something to leave."

Of how his hobby successfully morphed into a museum, Frangiosa said, "America loves miniatures and modeling."

Youth especially are "smitten" by Frangiosa's hand-created miniature gallery figures. "Kids are just bouncing around the room like crazy," he said. "They love the figures because they are made to railroad-model scale and it makes all the ships seem alive. I paint model railroad people to be sailors, which makes the ships come alive with hundreds of figures. The kids pick up on that and love the dollhouse miniature feel of the room. It is really a tribute to the kids. It adds a very fun and inviting 'toyish' feel to the whole place.'

Frangiosa joined the Navy at 19, becoming an aviation boatswains' mate, and spent his four-year career on the U.S.S. Roosevelt. His term on the ship took him to the Mediterranean, North Atlantic, Caribbean, and many other places which allowed him to visit more than 13 countries.

Manny Correia (1) outruns Angel Cordero of Olympian High to win the CIF 800M championship. Correia set a Point Loma High record in the event this year.

Pointer distance runner leaves track record as his legacy

hen PLHS' Class of 2023 walked across the graduation stage earlier this week at Point Loma Nazarene University, one senior may have set a speed record for the distance. And it wouldn't be the first record he set.

Senior Manuel "Manny" Correia ran the fastest 800M time in school history earlier this year and later added a pair of CIF championships to his list of accomplishments.

Correia's record-breaking run came at the Escondido Invitational meet in April when he recorded an all-time Pointer best of 1:51.44, a mark that was also the best in the San Diego CIF section this year. His winning 800M time at CIF finals was 1:53.11. He is ranked sixth in the state.

Correia also won the 1600M CIF title with a time of 4:10.65.

In his younger days, Correia spent time playing multiple sports at St. Charles Borromeo Academy where he attended school from kindergarten to eighth grade. While there, he ran in parochial school meets and played soccer as early as first grade but became more serious in sixth grade after another parent urged the Correias to get him involved in running.

When it came time for high school, Correia had to make a choice. With his father a Pointer alum, the family chose Point Loma, "And I'm glad they did!" Correia said after a recent workout.

When he arrived at PLHS, Correia met Keith DeLong, who has coached distance runners since arriving at PLHS in 2007. DeLong is regarded as one of the school's most dedicated and hardest working coaches and the two began a four-year bond.

"Manny is one of the best allaround kids we've ever had come through the program here," DeLong said. "He has a great work ethic, puts out 110% all the time, does above and beyond training on his own in the gym and weightlifting. He's got a great personality. He's confident but doesn't have an arrogant bone in his body. I can't say enough good things about him."

"My relationship with my coach is definitely strong," Correia said. "I text him, I call him with all kinds of questions."

When did Correia realize his potential was high?

"Definitely in my sophomore year when I broke the two-minute barrier (in the 800M) and got first in the league finals, it opened my eyes," Correia said.

A look at Correia's career marks shows huge improvements in his times under the mentorship of DeLong.

As a freshman, Correia's best 800M time was 2:13.55, more than 20 seconds above his school record. In the 1600M event, Correia has dropped his time from 4:50.45 all the way down to 4:09.83, a drop of over 40 seconds.

Correia isn't done running and will attend UC Santa Barbara next year, entering as an undeclared major but hoping to major in Computer Science.

"I'll be receiving a really good education there, it's like Point Loma, near a beach, and I love their coach and the team. They're really supportive of each other," he said.

Manny Correia has had a great run during his years at PLHS.

San Diego Surfing Hall of Fame inducts Class of 2023

hirteen individuals and two organizations joined the ranks of local surfing royalty during a San Diego Surfing Hall of Fame induction ceremony on June 7 at San Diego Mission Bay Boat and Ski Club.

Hank Warner was the master of ceremonies for the Class of 2023, which included Bill Bahne, Tim Bessell, Joey Buran, Pat Curren (in memoriam), Mike Diffenderfer (in memoriam), Jeff Divine, Don Hansen, Dempsey Holder (in memoriam), Richard Kenvin, Julie Klein, Taylor Knox, Don Okey (in memoriam), Hank Warner, Pacific Beach Surf Club, and Pacific Beach Surf Shop.

"We created the San Diego Surf Film Festival in 2012 and every year we dedicated one of the awards to significant figures in our surf and film world," said Pierce Kavanagh, director of Misfit Pictures representing San Diego Surf Festival and San Diego Surfing Hall of Fame. "The award ceremonies were comprised of family members in the audience with a heartfelt presentation to the recipient.

"In 2015, we gave tribute to our first living legend, Skip Frye, and everything changed. There wasn't a dry eye in the place and it gave us the sense of urgency to celebrate these amazing folks while they are all still with us. Most of them you can still find in the lineup. We just completed our latest induction ceremony and are already excitedly planning the next one."

Local surfers and shapers inducted into the San Diego Surfing Hall of Fame stand tall among a growing list of legends of the sport. The origin of surfing can be traced to Polynesia and the 12th century with cave paintings depicting people riding waves. In the course of seafaring, Polynesians brought surfing to Hawaii and the sport eventually went world-wide.

The most famous surf pioneer, Duke Kahanamoku born in 1890. was a talented swimmer who competed in the Stockholm Olympic Games in 1912 winning the 100-meter freestyle contest. After his success, he traveled worldwide introducing surfing in all regions where the conditions made it possible including Australia and California.

Here are the Class of '23 Surfing Hall of Famers reacting to their induction:

"My jaw hit the floor. How exciting," said Ron Greene, representing Pacific Beach Surf Club. "The energy, the atmosphere, and stoke during the HOF ceremony were infectious. Every inductee contributed something special in their acceptance speeches, most of which were unscripted and from the heart - sad, tearful, and yet amusing.'

Added Greene: "Randy Strunk, the proprietor of PB Surf Shop, struck a chord while giving his acceptance speech. He made me want to get up on stage like a good football coach who motivates his team to get out on that field and give my unscripted from-the-heart spiel. I did, I survived and boy did I have fun while doing it."

"PB Surf Shop just celebrated 60 years of stoke, serving the PB surf community, and I just celebrated 30 years of ownership," said Randy Strunk. "I am beyond honored to carry the torch of Pacific Beach Surf Shop and over the top that we are only the second surf shop to be inducted into the San Diego Surfing Hall of Fame. To go in at the same time with the Pacific Beach Surf Club, who I have a history with as a past vice president and competitive surf team coordinator, and Hank Warner is just icing and made it a PB sweep.

"In my speech, I had to give thanks to Larry Gordon who gifted me the name and logo to carry on the tradition. And to Bill Andrews, the long-time manager from the '60s and '70s who I knew so well since we were both Shores guys. He always pulled for us. Our motto at the shop is, "There is more to surfing than riding waves" and by that I mean as a business we are representing our community of Pacific Beach and looking for ways to give back."

"The San Diego Surfing Hall of Fame is an awesome thing and a great way to recognize the best of San Diego's rich surfing history," said Joey Buran. "The list of inductees is full of amazing history, unique and colorful characters, and a link of multiple generations

SURFING SAN DIEGO

Even before Duke Kahanamoku came to San Diego in 1916 to give a surfing demonstration, there was George Freeth, whose use of the surfboard as a means for ocean rescues in the early 1900s helped change people's attitudes about being in the ocean.

Another San Diego surfing pioneer, Woody Brown, a world champion glider pilot instrumental in creating Torrey Pines Glider Port, used his knowledge of airplane wing dynamics to shape his boards. Brown became part of a group of local surfers known as the "Plank Boys" because of their huge surfboards. Brown pioneered new surfboard designs helping make surfboards more stable and maneuverable.

In the early 1950s Bob Simmons, trained as an aeronautical engineer, started to combine fiberglass with balsawood and foam, paving the way for a revolution in surfboard weight and design. Surfing's accessibility took a huge leap forward with the creation of the foam surfboard. One of the companies at the forefront of this evolution was Gordon and Smith in Pacific Beach. In 1958, Larry Gordon and his surfing buddy Floyd Smith developed a process for making surfboards of polyurethane foam in their garage. Soon after, the pair opened Gordon & Smith Surfboards, and demand for their boards quickly spread beyond San Diego.

SAN DIEGO SURFING HALL OF FAME CLASS OF 2023

SAN DIEGO SURFING HALL OF FAME MEMBERS

of surfing greatness for our region. "I was inducted primarily for my surfing career but also holding elements for other contributions. I was the first truly successful pro surfer to arise out of California. I was considered a trailblazer. I have been a Christian minister for over 35 years since retiring from pro surfing in 1987. All of this year's inductees were amazing and are well deserving of the recognition they received."

"What an honor it is to be inducted, San Diego has a rich history in the world surfing community," said board shaper Tim Bessell of La Jolla. "Many of the top surfboard builders to surfers have come from Southern California.

WORLD'S LARGEST SWIM LESSON

Plunge San Diego at Belmont Park announced they are an official location for the 14th annual World's Largest Swim Lesson. On Thursday, June 22, from 8-10 a.m. thousands of kids and adults at aquatic facilities worldwide, including Plunge San Diego, will unite for the 14th year in a row to spread the word "Swimming Lessons Save Lives." The World's Largest Swimming Lesson was created to raise awareness about the importance of teaching children to swim to prevent childhood drowning. Since its inception, more than 354,000 children and adults across six continents have participated in WLSL to support the importance of learning to swim. A 15-minute water safety clinic will be held, followed by a 45-minute swim lesson in a large group format with a curriculum set by the WLSL organizers.
