SAN DIEGO COMMUNITY NEWSPAPER GROUP

“We have incredible projects this year that reflect the commitment and compassion.”
- Ashley Hensen, IB coordinator at Pacific Beach Middle School

PB students' service projects help improve the beach communities

Whether it is teaching beginner skills for girls field hockey, collecting donations to further the philanthropic work of Kitchens For Good, Unity 4 Orphans, or enjoying December sunshine while keeping local beaches clean, Pacific Beach Middle eighth-grade students are putting the finishing touches on their required community service projects.

PBMS is an International Baccalaureate school, which means its staff and community are dedi-cated to an unique instructional model and curriculum plan that emphasizes an inquiry based ap-proach to teaching and learning. All IB schools emphasize the development of a student learner's profile: to be a knowledgeable, inquiring, open-minded, and respectful thinker.

IB students learn to communicate, complete challenging course work, act with integrity, and rec-ognize their interdependence with other people and the world in which they live. As an IB school, PBMS requires students to complete community service hours each year: sixth grade students document 10 hours, seventh graders need 15 hours, and eighth grade students are re-quired to complete a minimum of 20 hours that becomes their community service project.

“The community service project kicks off for eighth grade students in September,” said Ashley Hensen, IB coordinator at PBMS. “I encourage students to select a project or topic that they are passionate

Inghram Street spans to be renamed for the McDaniels

By DAVE SCHWAB

It took years, but Kitty McDaniel's quest to get the Inghram Street bridges over Mission Bay renamed in honor of her parents, Art and Anne McDaniel, early pioneers in local government and engineering in Pacific Beach, has finally borne fruit.

Regarding her dad, who was instrumental in designing and building those bridges, Kitty McDaniel gave him a promise when he was terminally ill in 2016. She told him: “I’m going to get your bridge named after you.” His response, “This big grin on his face,” was unforgettable, recalled his daughter.

On Friday, March 15 at 10 a.m. District 1 Councilmember and Council President Pro Tem Joe LaCava will meet with Kitty McDaniel to unveil the new sign renaming the bridges in her family's honor at

City seeks public input for its draft Environmental Justice Element

By DAVE SCHWAB

A draft Environmental Justice Element, which will be a new part of the City's General Plan, is now available for review and the City is seeking public input on it.

San Diego Community Newspaper Group held a Q&A with Tara Lewis, supervising public information officer in the City's Communications Department, to find out what environmental justice is all about.

SDCNG: What is this draft Environmental Justice Element and what is its purpose?

City: This draft includes goals toward a more equitable future, policies that inform City decision-making, proposed activities that build on existing programs to advance environmental justice, and a description of areas of the City most impacted and negatively affected by environmental burdens and associated health risks – collectively known as Environmental Justice Communities (EJ Communities). The purpose of the draft Environmental Justice Element (EJE) is to identify and reduce unique or compounded health risks, improve public infrastructure related to environmental justice, and improve overall health with a focus on EJ Communities. Priorities outlined in the EJE will be reflected in community plans, City Council policies, infrastructure priorities, and facility improvement programs, as well as annual City budgets that work together with the General Plan to advance improvements in neighborhoods throughout San Diego.

SDCNG: What do you expect to find out from the public in their review of EJE?

City: We partnered with five community-based organizations to help provide community engagement that is inclusive to all people in our City. Priorities identified by people living and working in EJ Communities were critical to informing the development of this element. Forty engagement events were held in partnership with CBOs to connect with community members at places and events in their neighborhoods. Now that a draft has been released, we are again asking the public to review it and to share comments and suggestions for consideration that will help further shape the element by completing the comment form linked on the EJE webpage or emailing the project team at publicspaces@sandiego.gov.

SDCNG: How does this environmental justice component tie in with the City's General Plan?

City: The General Plan guides future development across the City through citywide policies addressing land use, mobility, urban design, economic prosperity, recreation, conservation, noise, historic preservation, public spaces, services, and safety. Environmental justice will be a new element added to the General Plan to further the City's efforts to advance the equitable distribution of benefits and limit environmental burdens in the City to promote healthy and livable communities for all San Diegans. While some elements of environmental justice have already been included throughout the General Plan, this EJE highlights the importance of addressing environmental justice within the General Plan.

SDCNG: What will be done with the information you obtain from public input on environmental justice?

City: Goals, policies, and proposed activities within the draft EJE are categorized by the following seven topics, adapted from SB 1000:

- Inclusive Public Engagement in City Decisions;
- Pollution Exposure and Air Quality;
- Active Play;
- Promoting Healthy Food Access;
- Safe and Healthy Homes;
- Climate Change and Resilience; and
- Public Facilities and Infrastructure Prioritization.

To hear from community members in areas most impacted by compounded health risks, various events were held to help inform each topic advancing environmental justice across the city. Further input is welcome and valued to further help shape the EJE, ensuring that it reflects the concerns, needs, and perspectives of community members.

SDCNG: How does the City propose making things more equitable, from an environmental perspective, across regions Citywide?

City: The Environmental Justice Element prioritizes:

- Clean air that affects our children's health.
- Access to fresh food that nourishes our bodies.
- Enjoyable spaces where our families can play.
- Safe and healthy homes where our families live.
- Communication between City Officials and San Diegans to inform decision-making.

The City proposes to enhance equity from an environmental standpoint by adopting the EJE as a policy document. This will guide future community plan updates and planning initiatives to prioritize investments in areas with the greatest needs, focusing on EJ Communities and ensuring equitable investment across the city.

SDCNG: What are the ways the City will ultimately be made more environmentally "just?"

City: While the draft EJE applies Citywide, special attention is needed in EJ Communities to advance equity and sustainability goals. The varied development patterns in the City, while contributing to economic growth and community enrichment, reveal stark inequalities in how adverse effects are distributed. The draft EJE is critical in addressing these inequities.

SDCNG: Is there a timetable for accomplishing the goals of implementing environmental justice?

City: The goals and policies of the EJE, once adopted, will guide all future City decisions. Community involvement is extremely important to the City and the input received from our communities will drive the decision-making process. It is anticipated that the EJE will be presented to:

- Planning Commission (April 2024),
- The Land Use and Housing Committee (May 2024), and
- City Council (June 2024).

Community members are invited to sign up for notifications and easily find upcoming public hearing information on the Environmental Justice Element project website under the "Get Involved and Stay Connected" section.

San Diego Dreamers, a new PB community for women welcomes you

BY KYUGNMIN MIN

Interest in self-improvement and self-reflection is gradually increasing. Help books are constantly being released, and classics like Dale Carnegie's are still beloved. Many people start or end their days with a five-minute journal, answering questions such as "What I am grateful for?" or "Three amazing things that happened today," among others. Some people meditate during the serene morning, utilizing tools like "Calm" or "Headspace" – meditation apps.

But sometimes it is hard to manage all these activities alone. People can become exhausted, lack motivation, or lose their initial resolutions. The most important thing in this whole process is to encounter the "real me" by listening to inner thoughts. In San Diego, two women are willing to build healthy connections for women by sharing stories and experiencing ventures together: Hannah Brooks and Victoria Diehl of San Diego Dreamers.

"After COVID, everyone was isolated. It's still hard sometimes to get out, and all of a sudden, everything became digital," said Diehl. She moved to San Diego during the pandemic and had a hard time connecting with new people. Moreover, it is not easy to find new connections, especially in adult friendships after graduation.

At last month's event, which was about 'Creative Expression with Art and Music' attendees introduced themselves, and painted on small canvases with acrylic paint while Hannah Brooks sang and played guitar. PHOTO BY KYUGNMIN MIN

"Everyone is in different seasons. Some of the girls are single, some of them are married, and some of them have kids. There are a lot of different walks of life, and people usually drift apart because there isn't a central place to gather," she said.

Brooks and Diehl are both from Northern California, and they are both therapists. They have met a lot of people while working, but they wanted to get to know people who could become friends, not just as therapists and clients. They attended a journaling group together and acquired ideas to build their community.

"We wanted more of a wellness-inspired group that focuses on creating deeper friendships," said Brooks.

This is how San Diego Dreamers began. The event takes place every Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. at Fanuel Street Park. Each event has a different topic – Galentines Day (instead of Valentine's Day), Self-love and Love Languages, and Creative Expression with Art and Music have been some of the themes.

As their goal is to inspire each other, make friendships, and create lasting memories, Brooks and Diehl allow members to engage in deep conversations so that the group can run itself, akin to someone opening the sluice gate of sharing. They believe this will create an environment conducive to vulnerability.

"If one person shares something vulnerable, that creates a ripple effect. Others might think, 'They shared something personal. Now I feel encouraged to share something I'm dealing with.' It's about establishing group norms by allowing people to be themselves," said Brooks.

Every member can act as each other's therapist without realizing it, by sharing their lives. Brooks and Diehl don't have to be therapists; they are just individuals within the group. Each woman faces one another and themselves as human beings, not as careerists.

"We haven't asked what they do. It's not about 'what you do'; it's about 'who you are,'" said Diehl. This is how they strive to model healthy friendships and healthy professionalism.

The main parts of their activities are journaling, self-reflection, and meditation. Some readers might question whether these are activities that people normally do alone. What is the benefit of doing these things together?

They bring together women from different backgrounds in the same place once a week. As members share their thoughts, they empathize with others who have been in similar situations and worry about the same subjects, even if they come from entirely different worlds.

"It's interesting to see how [San Diego Dreamers] relates to people in different professions and experiences. We don't realize that we're all the same. We're still very isolated," said Diehl.

San Diego Dreamers serves as a public sphere where women can tear down the walls of isolation. "Half of the groups that showed up (to the second event) were the ones that came to the first one. We're already seeing community being built," said Brooks. Joining a new group might initially feel like stepping out of one's comfort zone, but it is now becoming another comfort zone for the members.

Their final goal is to create human connections that have a ripple effect within the community. "We want to inspire people to be their best selves while also providing a community for them to do so," said Brooks.

"Every monthly event is free to join by RSVP through San Diego Dreamers Link Tree (@sandiegodreamers), all of which are donation-based. Donations are available on the same page. Additionally, for weekly events, you are welcome to just show up. Upcoming themes for March include Perfectionism and Success, People-Pleasing, Family and Home, and Creative Expression with Potted Plants.

City invites public input on draft Mobility Master Plan

A series of public meetings will be held at libraries throughout the City of San Diego this month to provide more information and solicit feedback from San Diegans on the draft Mobility Master Plan.

The Mobility Master Plan is a comprehensive transportation planning effort to create a balanced, equitable and sustainable mobility system for the benefit of all San Diego residents and visitors. It will help support investments in areas with the greatest needs, promote pedestrian safety and advance the goals of the Climate Action Plan and the General Plan.

The City's Sustainability and Mobility Department will hold a series of "open house" style events at local libraries to answer questions and gather feedback on the plan, which includes a list of mobility projects in high-need areas across the City and new program options such as neighborhood shuttles, micromobility services and transit fare subsidies.

"We look forward to hearing back from San Diegans as we work together to create and support new and sustainable ways to get around," said the City's sustainability and mobility director Alyssa M. Muto. "This plan not only reflects the feedback we heard throughout the Climate Action Plan update process, but also the many City departments that plan for, construct and maintain our transportation system.

"We have worked with stakeholders and our transit agency to expand options to improve access to jobs, schools and everyday shopping needs. Through this public input process now all San Diegans will have the opportunity to learn more about the plan and share their thoughts and ideas for the various mobility options that work for them."

The draft Mobility Master Plan includes programs and a prioritized list of projects with information about the project selection criteria, focus areas, implementation, monitoring and funding. Public input will be used to improve the plan, which will be presented to the City Council for adoption later this year.

Public involvement is key to keeping San Diego at the forefront of green, sustainable, safe and equitable mobility practices now and in the future. Because every mile and every trip counts, more sustainable mobility options can get San Diegans where they want to go.

Everyone is welcome to stop by any time during the events, and Spanish language translation will be available. There will also be one virtual meeting in April for those who were unable to attend any of the in-person events in March. The events will be held on the following dates at these locations:

Wednesday, March 27,
· 10:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Pacific Beach/Taylor Library, 4275 Cass St.

Monday, March 18,
· 3:30-5:30 p.m., Valencia Park/Malcolm X Library, 5148 Market St.

Wednesday, March 20,
· 2-4 p.m., Rancho Bernardo Library, 17110 Bernardo Center Drive.

Thursday, March 21,
· 3:30-5:30 p.m., Mira Mesa Library, 8405 New Salem St.

Tuesday, March 26,
· 2-4 p.m., Linda Vista Library, 2160 Ulric St.

Thursday, April 4,
· 6-7 p.m., virtual open house on Zoom.

For more information, including project updates, presentations and access to the Plan and the comment portal, visit the Mobility Master Plan webpage. Questions can be directed to sustainability@sandiego.gov.

Charli's Landing in Mission Bay pays homage to local fishing community

By DAVE SCHWAB

If bayfront-patio and fast-casual are your favored kind of dining space, then Charli's Landing in Mission Bay is your kind of place. Previously Royal Rooster at Seaforth Marina at Quivira Basin, the waterfront space recently changed hands morphing into Charli's Landing at 1717 Quivira Road.

Business partners Ryan Tuller and Brant Crenshaw have updated their new retail space, named for Crenshaw's daughter. They've altered it to pay homage to the local fishing community with walls decked out with historic photos.

This is all altogether appropriate given that San Diego-native Crenshaw has spent most of his life living along Mission Bay, while Tuller has spent his days, not only in the restaurant industry but also as captain of several yachts between Newport and Panama.

Tuller laid out Charli's Landing's new business plan. "Our concept is fairly similar to what they (Rooster) were doing, allowing the ocean-front property with a nice patio to dictate the needs of the restaurant," he said adding, "This isn't a chef-driven place with a fancy menu. It's a place where people can come to get a solid seafood meal of fish and shrimp tacos, or a smash burger with beef from Brawley (in Imperial County). We wanted ours to be a place where people could come in and effortlessly have a good experience eating some really good food, and have a cold brew or lemonade outside in the sun and just enjoy the water."

Regarding their hours, Tuller noted they're presently open for breakfast, lunch, and dinner daily Tuesday through Sunday, from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. He added those hours will more than likely be extended to 5:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. once fishing season starts when spring sets at the end of March.

Of their menu, Tuller characterized it as "seaside California cuisine." He noted that consists of items such as breakfast tacos, Charli's SmashBurger with cheese and onion rings.

burritos, and sandwiches, along with local favorites like avocado toast. He added their menu includes kid pleasers like dollar pancakes, grilled cheese sandwiches, and chicken tenders. "We're proud of our smash burgers," Tuller enthused pointing out other popular menu items including the grilled or fried shrimp and fish tacos, as well as their assorted selection of burritos plus grilled or deep-fried chicken sandwiches.

Tuller added, once they expand their hours when fishing season commences, that their early-morning menu choices served from 5:30 to 7:30 a.m. will feature grab-and-go breakfast items to feed the local fishing community. There will also be other morning-focused dishes served like breakfast fried rice. Late-day options at Charli's Landing will range from tacos and burritos to smash burgers and seafood sandwiches. The fast-casual eatery has a walk-up ordering system with beer and mimosas available. Best of all, diners can enjoy their meals overlooking the marina on the outdoor deck within the adjacent park.

One of the many goals at Charli's Landing is to "add value" complementing Seaforth's fishing business, as well as serving the whale-watching crowds who are a seasonal mainstay of business at the marina. "It was pretty easy for us to work with the other tenants to improve the area," Tuller concluded.

Expand your taste and find new flavors at World Curry

By DAVE SCHWAB

If you're suffering from bored-with-lunch syndrome, it may be time to try something new and different.

World Curry in Pacific Beach is now offering a discounted lunch special to entice locals and out-of-towners alike to try their array of curries from around the globe.

Located at 1433 Garnet Ave., World Curry is a PB institution that has been serving the community for 29 years offering a veritable smorgasbord of curries served in a plethora of styles.

"We started in 1995 right after we came back from Thailand, Hong Kong, and Singapore," said Momoko Jackson, World Curry co-founder along with her late husband Bruce, of the establishment she now owns and is managed by their son Max. Though neither Jackson was from a food background, Momoko said they both "loved food and loved curry" in all its various flavors.

Of how they co-founded their business, she said: "We just started to get the idea that we would bring back this love for curry to San Diego, and have it in a very casual, laid-back spot, with nothing intimidating, just offer different kinds of curries in a very customer-friendly spot. Hence we picked PB."

Noting Bruce was "really into cooking," Momoko pointed out he took traditional curry recipes and "gave it a little bit of his translation," which she described as being "nothing too strong or too spicy," so it wouldn't be intimidating those trying it out.

The Jacksons first encountered one another in Japan where Bruce was a foreign exchange student with a finance major from SDSU.

"We were meant to meet," concluded Momoko, despite the fact they were from different cultures and neither of their family backgrounds included restaurants.

Momoko said the closest her family came to being in the restaurant business was her grandparents who were grocers which she said "totally sparked joy for me." She added she was working at the time "for corporate Japan." Ultimately, she and Bruce decided to move to San Diego where Bruce was born and raised.

Pointing out that curry is a "well-traveled" cuisine, Jackson said it became a Japanese staple after it was introduced there. "In Japan, we just cooked curry like a stew with potatoes, carrots, and onions," she said adding curry is now considered to be one of Japan's two national favorite dishes along with ramen. "We just grow up eating curry all the time," said Jackson admitting she has an enduring "sentiment for curry."

Curry: There are many varieties and the choice of spices for each dish in traditional cuisine depends on regional cultural tradition and personal preferences. Outside the Indian subcontinent, a curry is a dish from Southeast Asia that uses coconut milk or spice pastes, commonly eaten over rice. Curries may contain fish, meat, poultry, or shellfish, either alone or in combination with vegetables. Others are vegetarian. Dry curries are cooked using small amounts of liquid, which is allowed to evaporate, leaving the other ingredients coated with the spice mixture. Wet curries contain significant amounts of sauce or gravy based on broth, coconut cream or coconut milk, dairy cream or yogurt, legume purée, sautéed crushed onion, or tomato purée. Curry powder, a commercially prepared mixture of spices marketed in the West, was first exported to Britain in the 18th century. The British lumped all sauce-based dishes under the generic name "curry." It was introduced to English cuisine from Anglo-Indian cooking in the 17th century, as spicy sauces were added to plain boiled and cooked meats. Since the mid-20th century, curries of many national styles have become popular far from their origins, and increasingly become part of international fusion cuisine.

San Diego Humane Society anticipates busy kitten season

By DAVE SCHWAB

It's rained so hard this year that it's even showering kittens. Gearing up for another anticipated busy kitten season, the nonprofit San Diego Humane Society, as usual, is supporting the influx of new felines by hosting a virtual 'kitten shower.'

The month-long spring shower involves community members donating essential items – kitten formula, bottles, heating pads, scales, and blankets – from the organization's online baby registries, conveniently hosted by Amazon, Target, and Walmart at sdhumane.org.

Last year, SDHS' kitten nursery admitted 10,452 kittens. This year, due to ultra-rainy weather and the ongoing effects of reduced spay/neuter surgeries throughout San Diego County during the pandemic, similar or higher kitten numbers are expected. "We tend to see more kittens after a rainy winter, as lush outdoor areas create thriving ecosystems," said Jackie Noble, senior director of behavior, nursery, and foster at SDHS. "During rainy days we see an uptick in kittens coming in, likely due to mother cats relocating their young to seek shelter and a greater community inclination to rescue kittens when the weather is bad."

Noting that caring for orphaned kittens requires significant resources, Noble pointed out these especially vulnerable animals often have nowhere to turn. "Supporting the virtual kitten shower ensures the kittens in our care have everything they need to grow healthy and ready for loving homes," she said adding, "Donated items are delivered directly to SDHS, aiding in providing lifesaving care."

Due to San Diego's year-round mostly pleasant weather, Noble noted that kitten season too lasts longer. "Cat breeding is linked to daylight," Noble said. "So more daylight translates into more cats breeding and more kittens. As long as our days are bright and long – it will be kitten season, starting now through September or October. Of course, for us, the busiest time for kitten seasons are the spring and summer months."

In 2009, SDHS opened the country's first around-the-clock kitten nursery, now known as the Jim Lester Kitten Nursery & Foster Center. "When we started our kitten nursing program in 2009, kittens were the most euthanized animals in San Diego, there just weren't enough people to care for them," Noble said pointing out kittens admitted under 4 weeks old "have to be fed around the clock."

Kitten nurseries at SDHS campuses contribute to the organization's commitment to stay at zero euthanasia of healthy or treatable shelter animals in San Diego County.

KITTEN SHOWER

Through March 31, the kitten shower involves community members donating essential items – formula, bottles, heating pads, scales, and blankets – from the online baby registries, hosted by Amazon, Target, and Walmart at sdhumane.org/programs/kitten-nursery/kitten-shower.html.

Noble noted the goal now is to "save those kittens at risk of euthanasia." The effort has been successful as SDHS' kitten nursery is celebrating its 15th anniversary this year.

Today, SDHS shares best practices for kitten care nationwide, engaging trained foster volunteers to provide 24-hour care in their own homes, as well as offering daycare space for fosters who need help caring for kittens during the day.

The way the kitten shower operates, in effect now through March 31, is that participants first register, much like a baby shower. "We created Amazon, Target, and Walmart registries, and the public can purchase anything needed from them like kitten formula, which we go through really quickly," Noble said adding, "We also need things like heating pads to help keep kittens warm, food bowls and nutritional supplements the kittens need. There are all different prices for the kitten wish list."

Barnard Mandarin Magnet students celebrate groundbreaking

On Feb. 29, the UTK fifth-grade school in Pacific Beach kicked off the beginning of construction on its Whole Site Modernization project with a “3 Treasures” student lion dance and a performance from its fifth-grade Beijing Opera. Students and district leaders celebrated from Barnard Mandarin Magnet Elementary School’s joint-use field, which offered a clear view of active construction.

When completed in the spring of 2025, the site will provide a new classroom building and renovations to all other existing classrooms, the UTK/kindergarten area, student services offices, the multipurpose building, hard courts, and play courts.

To improve safety, an expanded parking lot with an on-campus student drop-off and pick-up area will be constructed.

“I see our students and I feel the excitement for a completely transformed campus,” Superintendent Dr. Lamont Jackson said. “With a new campus, we hope Barnard students will thrive and deepen their immersive language learning.”

Barnard Elementary added the Mandarin Chinese Immersion program in 2007 to give students instruction in both English and Mandarin Chinese.

The program integrates the Six Ancient Chinese Arts, including abacus, Kuiban, calligraphy, tai-chi, arts, music, dance, and literature. As part of the Mission Bay Cluster, students participate in a unique program where they can graduate high school fluent in Mandarin.

“Our students come to Barnard knowing little about Mandarin arts and leave here with a comprehensive understanding of the language, the culture, and the arts,” said Kingsley Chao, principal of Barnard Elementary. “We are setting them up to become global leaders in whichever career they choose.”

about or one that matches their hobbies.

“The final project format is digital and highlights the four phases of the project: research, plan-ning, action, and reflection,” Hensen said. “We have incredible projects this year that reflect the commitment and compassion of our eighth-grade class.”

Eighth-grade students Owen and Grace Sortland created a community service project to support Unity 4 Orphans, a philanthropic organization headquartered in the beach area. “I knew Owen and I wanted to help people. Through our research, we discovered Unity 4 Orphans,” Grace Sortland said.

“We were immediately drawn to the organization and their focus on helping children in Mexico. We contacted Joe Brandi, the founder of Unity 4 Orphans. He welcomed our efforts and gave us the go-ahead.”

“We made the posters advertising the need to support orphanages in Mexico, set up a GoFundMe page, and organized the donation process. We were looking for sports equipment, board games, clean bedding and clothing, as well as non-perishable food stuffs,” Owen Sortland said.

Was the project successful? “Yes,” said Grace Sortland. “We received over 25 bags and boxes of donations and $250 from the GoFundMe page. We collected donations at school as well as community members and parents delivered donations to our home. We delivered the donations to Mr. Brandi in early February.”

When asked how it feels to have their project, the Sortlands said they are “proud” and “grateful.”

“I am grateful that I had a chance to raise money and toys for deserving kids,” Owen Sortland said.

“I feel very proud and grateful for the generosity of the community. I hope and want this project to bring more attention to Mr. Brandi’s organization and goals, as well as spread awareness about the children Mr. Brandi helps,” Grace Sortland said.

After having a chance to reflect on their project, the Sortlands agreed that making more contacts with businesses and putting up more GoFundMe fliers would have boosted monetary donations.

service projects? “In early April, eighth-grade students will hold a gallery walk for sixth and seventh graders. A gallery walk is an opportunity for sixth and seventh graders to view the projects, give feedback to eighth-grade presenters, and perhaps spark an idea for a community service project among our younger students,” Hensen said.

On Wednesday, April 17 from 4-6 p.m., the IB Showcase will be at PBMS. Eighth grade students will present their final project to their parents and interested members of the public.

“Our school’s community service component empowers our students to realize they can solve real-world problems and have a positive impact on their community. Spend enough time in Pacific Beach and you are bound to see PBMS projects such as plaques featuring art work of endangered species on trash cans, beach clean-ups, small libraries, Wetlands Day, sports clinics, and various events supported and staffed by middle schoolers,” Hensen said. “And maybe one day they’ll keep their promise and fix the potholes on Ingraham Street.”

to rename the two Ingraham Street crossings over Mission Bay. I am honored to assist them and post signage naming both bridges, the Arthur R. and Anne McDaniel Bridge."

The McDaniels settled in Pacific Beach in 1959, both becoming high-profile civic activists in the beach community. Art McDaniel was a civil engineer, and Anne McDaniel was a community advocate. McDaniel's engineering contributions to the City include the design and oversight of three Mission Bay bridges: the North Harbor Drive Bridge, and the San Diego Trolley Bridges, where he invented the widely used signature flute column. As residents of San Diego since 1958, he and Anne operated McDaniel Engineering in the heart of PB.

"Anne McDaniel was a staple of the PB Town Council for over 50 years, and was voted honorary mayor of Pacific Beach twice," said Kitty McDaniel noting her mom and her best friend, Mary Wilding, created and co-founded Police And Emergency Services Appreciation Night, the annual celebration honoring first responders in PB. Kitty McDaniel also pointed out that Anne was voted "Woman of the Year" in 2016.

Of her dad and his community contributions, Kitty McDaniel said: "After designing the Ventura Street Bridge over Mission Bay (now called the Glen Rick Bridge), Art McDaniel, a structural/civil engineer, went on to establish his own company, McDaniel Engineering. In 1987, he was awarded the chance to redesign both of the old, wooden north and south Ingraham Street bridges over Mission Bay.

"Not only was he the designing engineer, but he acted as the project manager, overseeing every minute detail of the construction, even diving down into the new pilings to make sure they were safe. Upon finding cracks in these pilings, he had them dug out and replaced. His goal was to create safe, yet aesthetically pleasing bridges to grace his beloved community of Pacific Beach."

Concerning Anne McDaniel's accomplishments, her daughter said her mom also oversaw the planting of palms along Garnet Street, as well as successfully advocating in favor of building height limits.

Kitty McDaniel worked with the Council District offices of Lorie Zapf, Dr. Jennifer Campbell, and LaCava in turn to "get them on board" with renaming the bridges in her family's honor. She also gave PowerPoint presentations to civic organizations in town lobbying them to support her cause in making the bridges renaming a reality.

She did it, she said, for two reasons. First, because those structures were Art McDaniel's "passion and love," and also because she wanted the bridge dedication "to remain part of the community's legacy."

LIVE FROM SAN DIEGO – Music performances on the coast this week

By BART MENDOZA

SPOTLIGHT

Acoustic Evenings music series returns to the Athenaeum for its 24th season on March 22. Hosted by Jefferson Jay, this year's opening show will include performances from Jack Tempchin, Gregory Page (above), and BanjerDan. All three are wonderful talents, with Tempchin in particular, known for writing hit songs for the likes of the Eagles. However, Page is also an amazing songwriter. Over the past four decades, he has consistently penned heartfelt songs, such as, "Green Lights & Blue Skies" or "Sleeping Dogs," with instantly memorable melodies and thoughtful lyrics. Page's most recent album, "Modern Man," features a slightly quirkier rock feel than his earlier releases, but whatever he plays on the night will be sure to captivate listeners.

Acoustic Evenings: Friday, March 22 at the Athenaeum Music & Arts Library, 1008 Wall St. 7:30 p.m. $5-$20 lathenaeum.org.

Appearing at Humphrey's Backstage Live on March 17, Thomas remains one of San Diego's most dynamic performers, returning to a string of sold-out shows both at home and in Europe. While his blues gigs have been wowing audiences, it's his Gospel Brunch shows that have recently brought him the biggest acclaim. Joined by Sister Leola and for this performance, award-winning singer Rebecca Jade, Thomas provides a high-energy concert that is spiritual, uplifting, and full of infectious rhythms.

Earl Thomas & Sister Leola ft. Rebecca Jade: Sunday, March 17 at Humphrey's Backstage Live, 2241 Shelter Island Drive. 1 p.m. $20-$25. humphreysbackstage-live.com.

Formed in 1982, The Mar Dels are one of the longest-running bands in San Diego. Appearing at Tio Leo's on March 22, the secret to their success and longevity is simple. With both male and female vocals, they offer something for just about everybody. A living jukebox, whether you prefer Motown, surf, disco, rock 'n' roll, new wave, swing, powerpop, or would like to hear pretty much any major radio hit of the 1950s through the 1990s, it's probably in The Mar Dels repertoire. Perfect for dancing with an emphasis on "fun," it's easy to see why the Mar Dels remain one of the area's favorite bands after 42 years.

The Mar Dels: Friday, March 22 at Tio Leo's, 6333 Mission Gorge Road. 7 p.m. $12. tioleos.com

On March 22, legendary bassist Dr. Marshall Hawkins teams up with pianist Joshua White for the latest edition of the La Jolla Community Center's Fourth Friday Jazz Series. Hawkins has had an amazing career in music.

His most recent release is a collection of demos, Lost Takes, recorded with singer Roberta Flack in 1969. She's just one on a long list of music icons Hawkins has performed with, including Miles Davis, Donny Hathaway, and The Manhattan Transfer. Teamed with master improviser White, this performance will have jazz fans hanging on every note.

Dr. Marshall Hawkins & Joshua White: Friday, March 22 at the La Jolla Community Center, 6811 La Jolla Blvd. 8 p.m. $30. ljcommunitycenter.org.

Fans of modern rock won't want to miss the Moonage Daydreamers, playing at Beaumont's on March 23. Fronted by SDMA-winning singer/songwriter Ariel Levine, alongside guitarist John Yelenosky, the group performs rarely covered, but highly danceable, tunes by the likes of David Bowie, Roxy Music, Squeeze, and the Talking Heads. Levine is a terrific frontman, particularly strong on the Bowie material. Anyone who grew up listening to 91X-FM's early days or remembers MTV's beginnings will find much to enjoy in the Moonage Daydreamers repertoire.

Moonage Daydreamers: Saturday, March 23 at Beaumont's Eatery, 5662 La Jolla Blvd. 9 p.m. $10. beaumontseatory.com.

One of the greatest rock performers of all time, Bruce Springsteen, returns to San Diego on March 25 for a show at Pechanga Arena. The show is part of the first leg of a world tour. In a career nearly six decades long, Springsteen has only performed locally five times, bringing the excitement for this concert to a fever pitch for his San Diego fans. A string of greatest hits, such as "Born To Run," are sure to be featured this night. However, at press time, the tour's setlist had yet to be revealed, though the fact that his most recent album, "Only the Strong Survive," was comprised of R&B and soul covers may provide a clue.

Bruce Springsteen: Monday, March 25 at Pechanga Arena, 3350 Sports Arena Blvd. 7:30 p.m. $149 and up. pechangaarena.com.

RAIN, WIND, AND FIRE...

"The three menaces to any chimney, fireplace, or stove."

Every year there are over twenty thousand chimney / fireplace related house fires in the US alone. Losses to homes as a result of chimney fires, leaks, and wind damage exceeds one hundred million dollars annually in the US. Additionally, mold, mildew, pollen, dust and flammable creosote are among the hazards that can build up and collect in the flue of a chimney. A thorough inspection, and cleaning if necessary, will dislodge and remove such build-ups.

CHIMNEY SWEEPS, INC., one of San Diego's leading chimney repair and maintenance companies, is here to protect you and your home from losses due to structural damage and chimney fires.

Family owned and operated and having been in business for over 30 years, Chimney Sweeps Inc. is a fully licensed and insured chimney contracting company (License # 976438) and they are certified with the National Fireplace Institute and have an A+ rating with the Better Business Bureau.

For a limited time, readers of this paper will receive a special discount on our full chimney cleaning and safety inspection package with special attention to chimney water intrusion points in preparation for the rainy season.

SPRING ART EXHIBIT

La Jolla Riford Library at 7555 Draper Ave. is offering its spring art exhibit titled "Up Up & Away!" involving kites now through May 13. Kites have captivated mankind for centuries, serving a wide range of spiritual, military, and scientific functions, as well as entertainment for both young and old. Many artists have taken kite craftsmanship to new levels, pioneering new forms and spectacular artistry to create a beautiful relationship between us and the sky. The La Jolla Library celebrates these whimsical air-born objects that thrill and delight us all outdoors, but hanging from the rafters and walls become three-dimensional works of colorful art. The kites exhibited are donated from Kite Flite Seaport Village and will be available for sale with proceeds donated to support the La Jolla Riford Library.

NEXUS CLASSICAL CONCERT

Join in "Nexus" on March 16-17 at Mandeville Auditorium on UC San Diego campus at 9500 Gilman Drive. Tickets are available now. "Nexus" will feature composer and multimedia artist Nina Shekhar alongside iconoclastic French composers Claude Debussy, Lili Boulanger, and Francis Poulenc. For many San Diegans, "Nexus" will be the first chance to experience Shekhar's contemporary work Lumina. This piece was partly inspired by Hindustani classical music, which often involves an improvisational element and requires deep listening from the performers."We will feature three colorful works by French composers: Debussy's La Mer, his spectacular ode to the sea, Boulanger's vibrant D'un matin de printemps, and Poulenc's uplifting Gloria, sung by the Chorus and soprano Andrea Zomorodian.

NEW DOG MEMORIAL

FIDO board members and volunteers installed a new rock memorial for pets in the off-leash area on Fiesta Island. It replaced the unpermitted memorial removed by the city. FIDO worked for about a year to get the plans approved and the necessary permits. Karl Strauss releases Follow the Sun Lager Karl Strauss, San Diego's longest continuously operating post-Prohibition brewing company, has released Follow the Sun Lager as a new core beer. The 4.2% ABV brew will be available on draft and in six-packs of 12-ounce cans at Karl Strauss' five San Diego County locations in 4S Ranch, Carlsbad, Downtown, San Marcos (The Outpost beer garden), and Sorrento Mesa. Brewmaster Paul Segura made the announcement.

The light-bodied American lager has crisp malt notes and a subtle hop bitterness. The beer's launch also marks a change in Karl Strauss' packaging. Follow the Sun will be joined by core beers Aurora Hoppyalis IPA, Boat Shoes Hazy IPA, and Tower X West Coast IPA in 12-ounce cans later this spring.

"The words crisp, clean, and refreshing are thrown around a lot with lagers, but we feel like we hit that trifecta with this beer," Segura said. "Karl has been a staple in San Diego since 1989, and Follow the Sun symbolizes our passion for sharing not only our craft but a piece of the beautiful city we call home with people from all over."

Several restaurants, bars, and retailers are also carrying Follow the Sun. Karl Strauss' Beer Finder displays all current locations where it's available. Follow the Sun will also be available in 19.2-ounce cans at select sports and music venues.

Karl Strauss is celebrating its 35th anniversary in 2024. Details on anniversary events will be released in the coming weeks.

Soroptimist International of San Diego presented the Live Your Dream Awards Luncheon, Boutique, and Fashion Show on March 9 at the Sycuan Resort.

The event started with a fun shopping boutique featuring 16 local vendors. The items ranged from jewelry, and handbags, to garments. The guests adjourned for lunch where they were greeted by Erin Liddell who was the auctioneer for the afternoon.

The theme for the day was "Make Yourself Count" celebrating the Soroptimist Live Your Dream awardees and Soroptimist of San Diego Woman of Accomplishment. TV personalities Rory Devine and Geni Cavitt were the MCs for the afternoon. Judy Lawton chaired the event. During the ceremony, 11 deserving awardees were recognized and celebrated. The top winner, Gissell Ruiz, is a single mother who is going to Cuyamaca College and plans to become a registered nurse.

All of these women are the primary financial supporters of their families. These outstanding women will receive cash to advance their education, skills, and employment prospects. Soroptimist International of San Diego empowers women to achieve economic independence through education and training.

The fashion show began after the luncheon with the runway choreographed and coordinated by Gretchen Bergman. The models came down the runway showing off the trends from local boutiques. One of the "aahs" and "oohs" from the audience were the Mommy and Me matching dresses by Lydia Niebla. The highlight scene was shimmering gowns by Macy's Grossmont Center. Gretchen Bergman always included entertainment with her runway shows, which included singers Khara Rice, Leo Sandoval, Joey Molina, and Sky Molina.

The goal of the Soroptimist International of San Diego is to empower every woman and girl to maximize their potential. The vision of this global volunteer organization is to see that women and girls have the resources and opportunities to reach their full potential and live their dreams. Educational grants support female residents of a local sober-living home, raise public awareness against human trafficking in San Diego, and maintain a carpet school in Turkey for impoverished women and Syrian refugees. # Think globally, watch locally at Blue Water Film Festival

By DAVE SCHWAB

The fifth annual Blue Water Film Festival featuring environmentally conscious shorts, and animated and television films about water will screen at numerous La Jolla venues March 21-24 including The Conrad, UCSD Innovation Building, La Jolla Riford Public Library, and La Jolla Recreation Center, as well as the Museum of Photography in Balboa Park.

The film fest honoring World Water Day on March 22 offers 44 films over four days comprised of 12 features and 27 short films. Celebrated every year since 1993, WWD is an annual United Nations Observance focusing on the importance of freshwater. The special day celebrates water and raises awareness of the 2.2 billion people living without access to safe water. Observing the day is about taking action to tackle the global water crisis.

Blue Water Film Festival kicks off March 21 with the opening night reception and screening of Jean-Albert Lievre's "Whale Nation," presented by the French Consulate Julia Duhaut-Bedos at the Museum of Photographic Arts in Balboa Park. The festival centerpiece presentation will be presented by Austrian Consulate Michael Postl for the feature documentary film, "Orca Black White & Gold" directed by Sarah Norenberg. The festival will close with Boston Globe feature reporter David Abel's "Inundation District" and "In The Whale."

dams, lakes, streams, and waterway systems through cinema and engagement. Known for its environmental programming, the Blue Water Film Festival works to provide opportunities for support and mentorship of the emerging voices of up-and-coming environmental filmmakers.

Greg Reitman, the founder of Blue Water Film Festival who is an American film director, producer, screenwriter, and author, talked about the difficult start to the festival and its enduring significance.

"We were all set up, had $300,000 in funding and were fully operational and then COVID came and we had to do it (festival) online," Reitman related, noting the pandemic hindered, but didn't prevent, the festival from moving forward. "We figured it out quickly," he said. "We were able to stream the event and were one of the first to do an online festival and an online summit, and do it in a very effective way. We were sort of setting a trend for others to follow."

Blue Water Institute, a nonprofit, was also created in conjunction with the film festival to further a commitment to preserve the planet, driven by the Blue Water Film Festival's environmental programs that discover, innovate, and support the next generation of international environmental filmmakers.

"Our approach has intentionally been about amplifying environmental storytelling and honoring filmmakers for their work in bringing these stories forward," Reitman said. "It's really important that cinema captures the images, and provides data and analysis, that can help us to make better environmental decisions about water, which is a really important part of the fabric of life."

event beloved by environmental film fans and auteurs alike. Over 80% of the films in the 2024 Blue Water Film Festival slate will have filmmakers in attendance and online participation in Q&As following the screenings.

The festival's theme centers around the blue planet Earth. The festival's purpose is to encourage attendees to think broadly about how climate change affects planet Earth and deeply about the universal concerns and actions needed to bring us into balance. About 50% of all film selections are non-US productions, helping to fulfill the festival mission of promoting global cross-cultural understanding through film.

What would Reitman like viewers of the Blue Water Film Festival to come away with?

"We want people to be blown away by the content, mesmerized in terms of the breadth and scope of what's happening in the world and not to take anything for granted," he answered. "We also hope, when they see the power of the content, that they'll want to donate to support our nonprofit, so we can continue to do this every year and sustain the purpose of our mission. We want people to see film as a lens providing input enabling people to move the needle empowering cities, states and nations to move quicker (in preserving water). You can't escape it. Our planet is our home: We need to take care of it."

From prizefighter to Hollywood icon: Charles F. Reisner

By JILL ALEXANDER

In the annals of Hollywood history, the name Charles F. Reisner (or by his birth name Charles Francis Riesner) shines brightly. He was a screenwriter, film director, actor, and writer of many notable films.

Born on March 14, 1887, in Minneapolis, Minn., to John Riesner and Anna Bleich his journey through the entertainment industry is described as "nothing short of extraordinary," as one film historian noted. Reisner's career was a testament to his versatility and creative spirit, spanning various roles and genres. Tragically, Charles Reisner passed away on Sept. 24, 1962, at the age of 75 in La Jolla from a heart attack leaving behind a lasting legacy in the world of film and comedy.

EARLY YEARS

Reisner's early years saw him in the boxing ring, but he didn't stop there. As a vaudevillian performer for a decade, he earned the admiration of audiences and fellow artists alike. His talents even extended to lyric writing for musical comedies on the illustrious Broadway stage. "A master of visual comedy," another enthusiast commented, "Reisner's ability to devise intricate sight gags was legendary, earning him a well-deserved place in the annals of cinematic history."

Reisner's journey took a significant turn when he made the move to California in 1915, where he embarked on a new chapter as an actor in one-reel comedies at Universal Studios. He continued to hone his craft, gathering invaluable experiences at Vitagraph before eventually landing at Keystone, where he crossed paths with none other than the legendary Charles Chaplin. "Reisner's work with Charles Chaplin on classics like 'A Dog's Life' and 'The Kid' showcased his exceptional talent for enhancing the comedic genius of the silent screen era," praised a silent film scholar.

CHAPLIN CONNECTION

Their collaboration culminated in "The Gold Rush" (1925), where Reisner was credited as the assistant director. The film's success only added to his growing reputation as a creative force in Hollywood, and his contributions to Chaplin's comedy classics became legendary, according to IMDb.

In his later years, Reisner made a significant impact at Warner Brothers.
